Admiral Sims' Thrilling Story of "Mystery Ships" in the War

HOW GERMAN SUBMARINES WERE DECOYED BY THESE CRAFT TO DESTRUCTION

Every One of These German Sea Pirates Sent to the Bottom Represented 40,000 Tons of Allied Shipping Saved, for That Was the Average Sunk by Each of Them—Ruses That Were Adopted to Entice Them Into Traps Now Officially Explained for the First Time.

Floating Fortresses Were These Vessels, Though, Until Their False Works That Concealed Their Guns Were Dropped, They Looked Like Tramps.

THIS is the first of a series of three articles by Rear Admiral William Sowden Sims that will be printed in the Post-Dispatch, telling for the first time officially the story of the work of the so-called "Mystery Ships" in hunting German submarines during the war. The other two articles will be printed later this week.

By ADMIRAL W. S. SIMS.

This is a chapter from Rear Admiral Sims' book, "Victory at Sea," and is printed by special arrangement with "World Work."

MY CHIEF purpose in writing these articles is to describe the activities during the world war of the United States naval forces operating in Europe. Yet it is my intention also to make clear the several ways in which the war against the submarine was won; and, in order to do this, it will be necessary occasionally to depart from the main subject and to describe certain naval operations of our allies. The most important agency in frustrating the submarine was the convoy system. An examination of the tonnage losses in 1917 and in 1918, however, discloses that this did not entirely prevent the loss of merchant ships. From April, 1917, to November, 1918, the monthly losses dropped from 875,000 to 101,168 tons. This decrease in sinkings enabled the allies to preserve their communications and so won the war; however, it is evident that these losses, while not necessarily fatal to the allied cause, still offered a serious impediment to success. It was therefore necessary to supplement the convoy system in all possible ways. Every submarine that could be destroyed, whatever the method of destruction, represented just that much gain to the allied cause. Every submarine that was sent to the bottom, it was estimated, amounted in 1917 to a saving of about 40,000 tons per year of merchant shipping; that was the amount of shipping, in other words, which the average U-boat would sink if left unhindered to pursue its course. Besides escorting merchant ships, therefore, the allied navies developed several methods of hunting individual submarines; and these methods not only sunk a considerable number of U-boats, but played an important part in breaking down the German submarine morale. For the greater part of the war the utmost secrecy was observed regarding these expedients; it was not until the early part of 1918, indeed, that the public heard anything of the special service vessels that came to be known as the "mystery" or "Q-ships"—which represented one of the most successful devices for hunting submarines—although these had been operating for nearly three years. It is true that the public knew that there was something in the wind, as it was announced that certain naval officers had received the Victoria Cross, but as there was no citation explaining why these coveted rewards were given, they were known as "mystery V. C.'s."

Capt. Gordon Campbell's Remarkable Mystery Ship Work

On one of my visits to Queenstown, Admiral Bayly showed me a wireless message which he had recently received from the commanding officer of a certain mystery ship operating from Queenstown, one of the most successful of these vessels. It was brief but sufficiently eloquent. "Am slowly sinking," it read. "Good-by. I did my best."

Though the man who had sent that message was apparently facing death at the time when it was written, Admiral Bayly told me that he had survived the ordeal, and that, in fact, he would dine at the Admiralty House that very night. Another fact about this man lifted him above the commonplace: he was the first Q-boat commander to receive the Victoria Cross, and one of the very few who wore both the Victoria Cross and the Distinguished Service Order; and he subsequently won bars for each, not to mention the Croix de Guerre and the Legion of Honor. When Capt. Gordon Campbell arrived, I found that he was a Britisher of quite the accepted type. His appearance suggested nothing extraordinary. He was a short, rather thick-set, phlegmatic Englishman, somewhat noncommittal in his bearing; until he knew a man well, his conversation consisted of a few monosyllables, and even on closer acquaintance his stolidity and reticence, especially in the matter of his own exploits, did not entirely disappear. Yet there was something about the Captain which suggested the traits that had already made it possible for him to sink three submarines, and which afterward added other trophies to his record. It needed no elaborate story of his performances to inform me that Capt. Campbell was about as cool and determined a man as was to be found in the British navy. His associates declared that his physical system absolutely lacked nerves; that, when it came to pursuing a German submarine, his patience and his persistence knew no bounds; and that the extent to which his men concentrated upon the task in hand amounted to little less than genius. When the war began, Capt. Campbell, then about 30 years old, was merely one of several thousand junior officers in the British navy. He had not distinguished himself in any way above his associates; and probably none of his superiors had ever regarded him as in any sense an unusual man. Had the naval war taken the course of most naval wars, Campbell would probably have served well, but perhaps not brilliantly. This conflict, however, demanded a new type of warfare and at the same time demanded a new type of naval fighter. To go hunting for the submarine required not only courage of a high order, but analytical intelligence, patience and a talent for preparation and detail. Capt. Campbell seemed to have been created for this particular task. That evening at Queenstown he finally gave way to much urging and entertained us for hours with his adventures; he told the stories of his battles with submarines so quietly, so simply and, indeed, so impersonally, that at first they impressed his hearers as not particularly unusual. Yet, after the recital was finished, we realized that the mystery ship performances represented some of the most admirable achievements in the whole history of naval warfare. We have laid great emphasis upon the brutalizing aspects of the European war; it is well, therefore, that we do not forget that it had its more exalted phases. Human nature may at times have manifested itself in its most cowardly traits, but it also reached a level of courage which, I am confident, it has seldom attained in any other conflict. It was reserved for this devastating struggle to teach us how brave modern men could really be. And when the record is complete it seems unlikely that it will furnish any finer illustration of the heroic than that presented by Capt. Campbell and his compatriots of the mystery ships.

CAPT. GORDON CAMPBELL, V. C., D. S. O., R. N.

The most successful of all the mystery ship commanders. Twelve submarines were sunk by these ships, four of which were credited to Capt. Campbell. The heroism of this service reached its height in an engagement between a submarine and Capt. Campbell's ship, the Dunraven.

A mystery ship of the British navy. A twelve-pounder is concealed beneath what purports to be a hatch amidships in the well deck just forward of the bridge.

To the Outward Eye Mystery Ships Looked Like Tramp Steamers

This type of vessel was a regular ship of His Majesty's navy, yet there was little about it that suggested warfare. To the outward eye it was merely one of those several thousand freighters or tramps which, in normal times, sailed sluggishly from port to port, carrying the larger part of the world's commerce. It looked like a particularly dirty and uninviting specimen of the breed. Just who invented this grimy enemy of the submarine is, like many other devices developed by the war, unknown. It was, however, the natural outcome of a close study of German naval methods. The man who first had the idea well understood the peculiar mentality of the U-boat commanders. The Germans had a fairly easy time in the early days of submarine warfare on merchant shipping. They sank as many ships as possible with gunfire and bombs. The prevailing method then was to break surface and begin shelling the defenseless enemy. In case the merchant ship was faster than the submarine it would take to its heels; if, as was usually the case, it was slower, the passengers and crews lowered the boats and left the vessel to its fate. In such instances the procedure of the submarine was invariably the same. It ceased shelling, approached the life boats filled with survivors and ordered them to take a party of Germans to the ship. This party then searched the vessel for all kinds of valuables, and, after depositing time bombs in the hold, rowed back to the submarine. This procedure was popular with the Germans, because it was the least expensive form of destroying merchant ships. It was not necessary to use torpedoes or even a large number of shells; an inexpensive bomb, properly placed, did the whole job. Even when the arming of merchant ships interfered with this simple program, and compelled the Germans to use long-range gunfire or torpedoes, the submarine commanders still persisted in rising to the surface near the sinking ship. Torpedoes were so expensive that the Admiralty at Berlin insisted on having every one accounted for. The word of the commander that he had destroyed a merchant ship was not accepted at its face value; in order to have the exploit officially placed to his credit, and so qualify the commander and crew for the rewards that came to the successful, it was necessary to prove that the ship had actually gone to the bottom. A prisoner or two furnished unimpeachable evidence, and, in default of such trophies, the ship's papers would be accepted. In order to obtain such proofs of success, the submarine had to rise to the surface and approach its victim. The search for food, especially for alcoholic liquor, was another motive that led to such a maneuver, and sometimes mere curiosity, the desire to come to close quarters and inspect the consequences of his handiwork, also impelled the Hun commander to take what was, as events soon demonstrated, a particularly hazardous risk.

This simple fact that the submarine, even when the danger had been realized, insisted on rising to the surface and approaching the vessel which it had torpedoed, offered the allies an opportunity which they were not slow in seizing. There is hardly anything in warfare which is more vulnerable than a submarine on the surface within a few hundred yards of a four-inch gun. A single, well-aimed shot will frequently send it to the bottom. Indeed, a U-boat caught in such a predicament has only one chance of escaping; that is represented by the number of seconds which it takes to get under the water. But before that time has expired rapidly firing guns can put a dozen shots into its hull; with modern, well-trained gun crews, therefore, a submarine which exposes itself in this way stands practically no chance of getting away. Clearly, the obvious thing for the allies to do was to send merchant ships, armed with hidden guns, along the great highways of commerce. The crews of these ships should be naval officers and men disguised as merchant masters and sailors. They should duplicate in all details the manners and the "technique" of a freighter's crew, and, when shelled or torpedoed by a submarine, they should behave precisely like the passengers and crews of merchantmen in such a crisis; a part—the only part visible to the submarine—should leave the vessel in boats, while the remainder should lie concealed until the submarine rose to the surface and approached the vessel. When the enemy had come within two or three hundred yards, the bulwarks should fall down, disclosing the armament, the white battle ensign should go up and the guns should open fire on the practically helpless enemy.

Germans Learned of Ruse When One U-Boat Escaped

Such was the mystery ship idea in its simplest form. In the early days it worked according to this program. The trustful submarine commander who approached a mystery ship in the manner in which I have described promptly found his resting place on the bottom of the sea. I have frequently wondered what must have been the emotions of this first submarine crew, when, standing on the deck of their boat, steaming confidently toward their victim, they suddenly saw its bulwarks drop and beheld the ship, which, to all outward appearances, was a helpless, foundering hulk, become a mass of belching fire and smoke and shot. The picture of that first submarine, standing upright in the water, reeling like a drunken man, while the apparently innocent merchant ship kept pouring volley after volley into its sides, is one that will not quickly fade from the memory of British naval men. Yet it is evident that the allies could not play a game like this indefinitely. They could do so just as long as the Germans insisted on delivering themselves into their hands. The complete success of the idea depended at first upon the fact that the very existence of mystery ships was unknown to the German navy. All that the Germans knew, in these early days, was that certain U-boats had sailed from Germany and had not returned. But it was inevitable that the time should come when a mystery ship attack would fail; the German submarine would return and report that this new terror of the seas was at large. And that is precisely what happened. A certain submarine received a battering which it seemed hardly likely that any U-boat could survive; yet, almost by a miracle, it crept back to its German base and reported the manner of its undoing. Clearly, the mystery ships in future were not to have as plain sailing as in the past; the game, if it was to continue, would become more a battle of wits; henceforth every liner and merchantman, in German eyes, was a possible enemy in disguise, and it was to be expected that the U-boat commanders would resort to every means of protecting their craft against them. That the Germans knew all about these vessels became apparent when one of their naval publications fell into our hands, giving complete descriptions and containing directions to U-boat commanders how to meet this new menace. The German newspapers and illustrated magazines also began to devote much space to this kind of anti-submarine fighting, denouncing it in true Germanic fashion as "barbarous" and contrary to the rules of civilized warfare. The great significance of this knowledge is at once apparent. The mere fact that a number of Q-ships were at sea, even if they did not succeed in sinking many submarines, forced the Germans to make radical change in their submarine tactics. As they could no longer bring to, board and loot merchant ships, and sink them inexpensively and without danger by the use of bombs, they were obliged not only to use their precious torpedoes, but also to torpedo without warning. This was the only alternative except to abandon the submarine campaign altogether.

Still the Germans Walked Into These Sea Death Traps

Berlin accordingly instructed the submarine commanders not to approach on the surface any merchant or passenger vessel closely enough to get within range of its guns, but to keep at a distance and shell it. Had the commanders always observed these instructions the success of the mystery ship in sinking submarines would have ended then and there, though the influence of their presence upon tactics would have remained in force. The allied navies now made elaborate preparations, all for the purpose of persuading Fritz to approach in the face of a tremendous risk concerning which he had been accurately informed. Every submarine commander, after torpedoing his victim, now clearly understood that it might be a decoy dispatched for the particular purpose of entrapping him; and he knew that an attempt to approach within a short distance of the foundering vessel might spell his own immediate destruction. The expert in German mentality must explain why, under these circumstances, he should have persisted in walking into the jaws of death. The skill with which the mystery ships and their crews were disguised perhaps explains this in part. Anyone who might have happened in the open sea upon Capt. Campbell and his slow-moving freighter could not have believed that they were part and parcel of the royal navy. Our own destroyers were sometimes deceived by them. The Cushing one day hailed Capt. Campbell in the Pargust, having mistaken him for a defenseless tramp. The conversation between the two ships was brief but to the point:

Cushing: What ship?

Pargust: Gordon Campbell! Please keep out of my sight.

The next morning another enemy submarine met her fate at the hands of Capt. Campbell, and although the Cushing had kept far enough away not to interfere with the action, she had the honor of escorting the injured mystery ship into port and of receiving as a reward three rousing cheers from the crew of the Pargust, led by the renowned Campbell.

Crews Had to Change Their Habits and Entire Appearance

A more villainous looking gang of seamen than the crews of these ships never sailed the waves. All men on board were naval officers or enlisted men; they were all volunteers and comprised men of all ranks—Admirals, Captains, Commanders and midshipmen. All had temporarily abandoned His Majesty's uniform for garments picked up in second-hand stores. They had made the somewhat disconcerting discovery that carefully trained gentlemen of the naval forces, when dressed in castoff clothing and when neglectful of their beards, differ little in appearance from the somewhat rough and tumble characters of the tramp service. To assume this external disguise successfully meant that the volunteers had also to change almost their personal characteristics as well as their clothes. Whereas the conspicuous traits of a naval man are neatness and order, these counterfeit merchant sailors had to train themselves in the casual ways of tramp seamen. They had also to accustom themselves to the conviction that a periscope was every moment searching their vessel from stem to stern in an attempt to discover whether there was anything suspicious about it; they therefore had not only to dress the part of merchantmen, but to act it, even in its minor details. The genius of Capt. Campbell consisted in the fact that he had made a minute study of merchantmen, their officers and their crews, and was able to reproduce them so literally on his vessel that even the expert eye was deceived. Necessarily such a ship carried a larger crew than the merchant freighter; nearly all, however, were kept constantly concealed, the number appearing on deck always representing just about the same number as would normally have sailed upon a tramp steamer. These men had to train themselves in slouchiness of behavior; they would hang over the rails, and even use merchant terms in conversation with one another; their officers were "masters," "mates," "pursers" and the like, and their principal gathering place was not a wardroom, but a saloon. That scrupulous deference with which a subordinate officer in the navy treats his superior was laid aside in this service. It was no longer the custom to salute before addressing the

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

The League as an Issue.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The league of nations seems to be practically debased to a partisan issue in the Senate, but the common people who are not engaged in the political game as a profession will continue to consider it as pre-eminently a moral and commercial proposition. The Senate may dilly-dally with the covenant until the party conventions convene and launch it as the paramount issue, unless the sovereign voters demand, with ever-increasing vigor and determination, the settlement of this momentous project at an earlier date. The Republican party seems to be in a most desperate dilemma for an issue on which to wage a campaign.

Senator Lodge and his colleagues have seemingly concocted to kill the covenant indirectly through reservations or amendments.

A league of nations is a necessary institution to enforce peace, but another war, more horrible than the last one, may be necessary before some American politicians become statesmen.

President Wilson, aware of the natural selfishness of men and the intense rivalry and jealousy between the two great parties, appealed, by public letter, for the election of a Democratic Congress. The treaty and covenant would have been ratified long ago had the electorate granted his request.

We cannot expect world peace until there is peace in the Senate. The Senate is doing its "fighting" after the real war is won. The coming presidential battle has largely eclipsed the treaty and covenant.

Greater statesmen and patriots seem to be on the outside of the Senate. The Senate perhaps had expected to ratify the peace treaty as a matter of routine duty, leaving peace to run its normal course and posterity to its own fate, as in the past, without a supplementary treaty to preserve peace.

Political profiteers seem determined to so amend or repeal the covenant that the voters will not recognize it as a Wilson document or a Democratic achievement.

The Senate, it does seem, desires to rewrite and pass the covenant with the consent and on the advice of the President, contrary to the letter and spirit of the Constitution.

A certain group of Senators would "perfect" the covenant now and for all time, but such a performance is impossible.

Greater statesmen thought that the Constitution was a perfect document at the time of its adoption, but subsequent generations deemed it wise and necessary to amend it some 18 times. And each amendment seems to have strengthened rather than weakened that grand old document. President Wilson admits that the covenant is imperfect, but that it furnishes the only foundation available on which to predicate the temple of permanent peace.

Woe unto the man or political party that would prostitute the treaty or covenant on the altar of partisan politics.

Contrasts in Headlines.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Big headlines in newspapers last week: "Nation-wide round up of radicals," "Thousands of foreigners arrested. Many to be deported," etc. At the same time: "Ellis Island crowded with emigrants entering United States; 3000 waiting now to enter;" "Officials working day and night;" "Every ship coming in crowded to capacity." Truly, yes, very truly. Life has its little jokes. CHAS. C. CASS.

A Friend of Russia.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I have been reading for the past four months your editorials in the Post-Dispatch and noting the way you are trying to run down Russia. I was with the army in Southern Russia, the army that was told that it was fighting for Democracy. I, as an individual, saw the Bolshevists and beg to state that the so-called "Red Army" is the best democracy army in the world, the slaughtering reports are all capitalism reports. I was wounded and still carry a 32 caliber steel bullet in my body; it was at Belleau Woods and was a few months later discharged from the hospital and sent to Russia.

I do not believe in anarchy but in real free Democracy and free speech.

Minnesota's Bonus.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

This is hard to figure out. We have a man in our outfit, the Fifty-third Infantry, U. S. He enlisted in Minnesota and Minnesota is giving $15 a month's bonus from the beginning of hostilities till peace was signed. That makes $540 for him and he never even smelt powder. The Fifty-third never left Texas. Myself and hundreds of other Missouri boys have been under shell fire and through hardships and we get no bonus. We sure would appreciate it if Missouri would come across.

P.-D. READER FOR OVER 15 YEARS.

EDUCATION IN MISSOURI.

One of the important points made in the Post-Dispatch's article on "Missouri a Backwoods State—Why?" was the low condition of education in the State. Missouri's rank in education in the list of states was thirty-second.

In a later article, "How to Change Missouri From a Backward to a Forward State," we pointed out the importance of "man power, which is the prime factor in production and fruitful co-operation."

"Man power," we said, "must be developed, not only physically, but mentally, morally and technically to reach its highest efficiency. Education is the fundamental factor in developing man-power efficiency. The school is the only agency."

Referring to the charts of the Production Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, we pointed out that boys who have no high school training are worth in productive capacity annually, between the ages of 18 and 25, from $350 to $688. Between the same ages boys who have had high school training earn from $500 to $1550. We pointed out that 50 per cent of the boys leave school after the first grade and less than one-twentieth enter the high school.

We pointed out that the average pay of teachers in the rural districts is only $344 a year and the total amount expended for school purposes in the State outside of the cities is $5,000,000. We concluded the subject of education in Missouri with this statement:

> Obviously the first task for the co-operative effort of the people of Missouri is to raise the standard of education. This can be done by building better schoolhouses, raising the pay and standard of teachers and connecting the schools and homes with good roads.

All of this is corroborated and emphasized by the report submitted to the Executive Committee of the State Teachers' Association by C. A. Phillips, Dean of the State Teachers' College, and C. H. Williams, director of extension work in the University of Missouri. The report contains the results of investigation of educational conditions in the State. It shows that there are teachers receiving as low as $25 a month and that the highest pay of teachers in the country districts is $125 a month. The average pay of Missouri teachers in the rural districts is $1.50 a day—a sum lower than that received by any day laborer. The majority of the teachers get less than $560 a year.

No argument is necessary to prove the disastrous effect of such pay on the standard of teaching in the State. It is not a living wage, nor anywhere near a living wage. None but men and women who have other means of support or who are desperately in need, regardless of qualification, or who can get no other employment can afford to accept positions in the schools for such disgracefully meager compensation.

The result is not only the reduction of the standard of teaching to the lowest level, but the driving of good teachers out of the profession or out of the State.

"Ignorance is the curse of God," said Shakspeare. The curse will lie heavy on Missouri unless these educational conditions are promptly changed. Missouri cannot go forward politically, morally or materially with vacant schoolhouses or incompetent teachers and illiterate population. The State will inevitably go backward—it will be governed by ignorant yaps, incapable of comprehending the first principles of progress or of developing the State's resources.

We repeat again, with special emphasis:

"Obviously, the first task for the co-operative effort of the people of Missouri is to raise the standard of education."

More money for the schools—for schoolhouses, for teachers and for good roads to make the schools available. This is the only way out.

THE FOLLIES OF LONG AGO.

That visitor from Mars, in whose hypothetical presence the moralists find inspiration and texts, would assuredly be convinced, should he drop in on us now, that extravagance was a brand new vice. It is denounced from every rostrum. Soap-box and purple dais speak the same language in belaboring this adversary. These be the supercilious times, the peacock customs, as we learn from the philippics volleyed from front and rear and both flanks.

It is on the subject of clothes, though, that the critics of our foibles and vanities hit their top stride. We have become abject slaves to fashion. Style is the talisman. Vogue is the word, the law. The ancient common sense, the homespun virtues of the fathers are gone. We are ruled by the tyranny of a fluttering, plumed mobocracy. It wasn't so in the old days.

But are they so sure about that, these counselors of frugality who bewail the simplicity that is no more? If they will but turn back to the dim, now almost mythical antiquity when the New England Academy of Immortals was in flower, turn back to that hermitage on the shore of Walden Pond, they will find Brother Thoreau lamenting the follies of that legendary Spartan regime as lugubriously as any Cabinet officer or lady chairman of a fair price committee bewails this present profligacy.

"When I ask for a garment of a particular form," explains that philosopher, "my tailoress tells me gravely, 'They do not make them so now,' not emphasizing the 'they' at all, as if she quoted an authority as impersonal as the Fates. * * * The head monkey at Paris puts on a traveler's cap, and all the monkeys in America do the same," a simian metaphor, we submit, as deliciously pat today as in the decadent, luxury-mad Concord of the long ago.

Again: "The childish and savage taste of men and women for new patterns keeps how many shaking and squinting through kaleidoscopes that they may discover the particular figure which this generation requires." And wherefore? "The manufacturers have learned that this taste is merely whimsical." And in sorrowful conclusion, Thoreau remarks: "I cannot believe that our factory system is the best method by which men may get clothing. As far as I have heard or observed, the principal object is, not that mankind shall be well and honestly clad, but, unquestionably, that the corporations may be enriched."

Nobody has sung more fervently or sincerely the glory of a patched pantaloon, the royalty of a threadbare coat, than has Henry Thoreau. But his song was pitched in a minor key, as he contemplated the improvidence, the recklessness, of Concord's smart set.

There were profiteers in those days, and the rank and file were about as foolish and erring as we of today. Our ancestors were not paragons. And is it not somewhat comforting to find that out?

THE PARTISAN'S ONLY WAY.

In his speech announcing his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Senator, Mr. James L. Minnis devoted a large portion of his time to attacking the President, whose leadership was adjudged a complete failure, without reservations of any kind. "Wherever Mr. Wilson looks he leads us into difficulties," said Mr. Minnis.

But can the ills that harass us today be charged to the stumbling, unillumined leadership of Woodrow Wilson? Mr. Minnis says so, but in so doing is he not at variance with many abler, or at least older, warriors of his camp? We have been assured repeatedly by grave Senators, by noted publicists and by the Governor of Kansas, that Mr. Wilson was repudiated in November, 1918, when the whole vast program of reconstruction was placed in the hands of the Republican party.

Was not that the issue of the campaign? Were not the American people informed that the Republican party was the only party equal to that mighty task, the only party with the genius and capacity for placing us back safely on the path of peace and devising the ways and means for a prompt resumption of orderly processes?

Is it possible that Mr. Minnis is not aware of the impatience with which the Republican Congress elected in November, 1918, waited for the opportunity to get to work? They insisted upon an extraordinary session being called on the heels of the dying Congress' adjournment. They pointed to November as the authority for their demand. And when the President appeared disinclined to comply, they muttered threats of impeachment proceedings and talked of convening without the President's summons. All this because of their intense eagerness to get at the job of reconstruction.

Well, the extraordinary session was finally called on May 19. On that day the Republican party stepped into power, with a majority in both houses of Congress, and the President stepped out. Since that day, almost nine months ago, the Republican party has been in a position to enact any piece of legislation it wished.

What has it done in those nine months of undisputed power, of undisputed leadership, or undisputed responsibility? It has not done a thing. Its record is a blank page. Its failure, in view of the unparalleled circumstances and the immeasurable need for service, is the most abject spectacle of legislative incapacity in our history. In the face of that record the manifest thing for partisan politicians to do is that which Mr. Minnis has done—damn Wilson. It is the easiest way.

PEACE AND ZINC.

Many operators in the Joplin zinc mining district insist that the salvation of that industry rests in a tariff which will prevent the importation of Mexican ore. Figures compiled by Mr. C. E. Siebenthal of the United States Geological Survey seem to explode that contention.

Those figures show that during 1919 the recoverable zinc content of ore mined in the United States was 569,000 tons, while the recoverable zinc content from ores imported from Mexico last year was 11,000 tons. That a negligible importation of less than 2 per cent of the home production could seriously bear the market is manifestly absurd. Another explanation must be found for the distressing experience of the zinc mining industry. It can be found in the figures of Mr. Siebenthal.

The production of zinc ore in the United States in 1917 was 713,359 tons—or more than 25 per cent greater than that of last year. Such unprecedented production was the result of the unprecedented prices for zinc ore. Those prices, which finally reached the incredible figure of $139 a ton—or twice as much as the top figure of the great boom of 1899, which converted Joplin from a straggling town to the fourth city of Missouri—stimulated production everywhere. The marvelous development of the Oklahoma field was one result. But along with that mines long abandoned sprang into life and camps that had been proceeding at a leisurely pace leaped into hectic activity. The final consequence was an immense overproduction.

The condition was greatly aggravated by the fact that in 1918 we had swung over completely to a war basis. Zinc, so indispensable in the arts of peace, was practically a Cinderella in the arts of war. The unhappy coincidence of a huge overproduction and a subnormal demand prevailed.

The trouble with the zinc mining industry has been organic. The market fundamentals had been violated. The law of supply and demand has been working implacably. It must continue so to work until something like an equilibrium between supply and demand is restored. Fortunately, that prospect now seems bright. The vast overproduction of the high-price years is gradually being absorbed.

It is peace, not a tariff, that will restore prosperity to the operators and miners of the zinc district.

Wind of the night, what word?
All through the hours you've stirred,
Rattling casement, shutter and all
With troublous moan and wraithlike call;
All through the hours you've stirred.
Wind of the night, what word?

With troublous moan I've stirred,
Telling you what I've heard.
Never a word have you caught of it all,
Naught of the drift of my wraithlike call.
Telling you what I've heard
With troublous moan I've stirred.

All through the hours I've heard.
Wind of the night, what word?
I have heard nothing but groans and sighs,
Women's wailing and baby cries.
Wind of the night, what word?
All through the hours I've heard.

You have heard groans and sighs,
Arise to your task, arise!
These I have brought from across the sea,
Where they starve while they wait for peace to be.
Arise to your task, arise!
You have heard groans and sighs.

POLITICAL MAXIMS.

To conceal the fact that you will "stand for anything" you must always assure the public that you stand for a principle.

No campaign can be started without an issue. First get your issue and then cloud it.

Always tell your hearers that the need of the hour is a strong and fearless leader. Then pause for them to take a good look at you and guess who you think the leader should be.

After saying that every candidate should express his views on the issues of the day, carefully refrain from expressing yours. This puts it squarely up to the other fellow.

When saying you are pleased to look into so many intelligent faces don't fail to include in your swinging gesture the prominent citizens on the platform who are expected to show their intelligence by contributing to your campaign fund.

After the contributions are all peldged and a thorough understanding is assured you may jump on the plutocrats and the "Wall street crowd." It pleases those out in front while the campaign committee knows it is harmless.

Don't fail to ask your hearers where this country would be if it hadn't been for your political party. Nobody can answer that and the silence while you pause for a reply is always impressive.

Tell your hearers many problems must be handled by the coming administration. This will be news to them and give them something to think about.

When discussing the high cost of living go strong on inflation of the currency and lack of stability in the rates of foreign exchange. This makes unnecessary any reference to profiteers which might offend the tender sensibilities of the campaign committee.

Always say that you are for a policy which will keep the railroads running. You may safely challenge anyone within the sound of your voice to state a good and sufficient reason why the railroads should not be kept running.

Legislation by Congress and other circumstances over which we have no control have put a new holiday on the calendar, It is "Prohibition Eve."

THE NEW FICTION.

Percival Pish was a pirate. One could see it in his clear eye, his well-rounded cheeks and his fine even teeth which had never been contaminated by the touch of ardent spirits or tobacco. He rallied his trusty men around him. "Dear old tops," he said, "we are about to weigh anchor for another adventure. Is all in readiness?"

"Aye, aye, sir," responded Claude Clearwater, the first mate. "We have on board a goodly store of that which will fit us for the high emprise. There be many caddies of green tea in the hold, to say nothing of casks of rare old root beer, sarsaparilla, cream soda, three-star orangeade, ginger ale of good vintage and the like."

"Nothing malt or vinous, I trust, and surely nothing distilled," quoth the pirate chief.

"Nothing of the sort, my master," the mate gave answer. "Had a suggestion been made to take on such things the crew most certainly would have mutinied."

"Dear comrades that they are, I know it," said Percival Pish with a winning smile. "My men can all be trusted. There is not even one of them that chews gum."

"Right you are, master," said they all in chorus.

So they made all in readiness and in the third hour of the wrist watch they lifted anchor and sailed away.

The wind stiffened into a gale. "Mercy me!" quoth the pirate chief, "I do believe we are in for a storm. "Pipe all hands on deck for tea."

Thus refreshed the men fell to with a will and succeeded in taking in most of the sail before the mainmast was carried away.

Just after dawn a cry of "sail off the port bow" came from one of the lookouts. After training his glasses on the strange vessel the mate called out: "An easy mark, my master. She is unarmed." "Give me the binoculars," quoth the pirate chief.

After one look he shook his head. "Nay, nay, old dear," he exclaimed. "There is no loot there to tempt pirates of our ilk. That is the floating oasis that plies between Miami and Havana for traffic in strong drink. There be on board only whiskies, brandies, wines, cordials and the like."

With hearty accord the pirate crew agreed that the vessel was not worth looting. So they sailed all that day and at nightfall they dropped anchor off a little coast town and the mate and twenty trusty followers went ashore for loot, first drinking deep drafts of strawberry soda, artificially flavored and colored.

Two hours later they returned to the ship. "A fine night's work," quoth the mate.

"What was your loot?" asked Percy.

"Fourteen boxes of prime fudge," replied Claude Clearwater, proudly.

"Aye, but you know our rule," quoth Percy. "I trust you left compensation for what you took?"

"That we did," said the trusty mate. "In exchange we left cigar store coupons, which cannot be redeemed in this part of the world, and putting which out of circulation will help to cripple the iniquitous tobacco traffic!"

"A fine night's work, indeed," exclaimed Percy. "Pipe all hands to fudge."

AN EXPRESSION.

I WORK with your children.
All day we study
Reading, writing and arithmetic.
We call it making game.
Games have rules.
They teach fair play
And give self-expression.
Sometimes when playing
The children forget
That I am an older playmate,
And call me "mother."
Then do I know
That I am really
Your children's teacher.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

THE COST OF ARMY JUSTICE.

From the San Fransisco Call.

AMERICA has not been the only country to "investigate" the courtmartial procedure of her armies. England has been doing it also, has appointed a committee to inquire into army justice. That committee reported that during the war the total number of trials of soldiers was 252,773. The report does not say how many of these men were found guilty—but the British soldier would tell you that a courtmartial and a verdict of guilty were usually the same thing. The largest number of these trials were for drunkenness and the maximum punishment for drunkenness, "in the case of a private soldier," was two years' imprisonment with hard labor.

The purpose of punishment in the British army, as in all armies, was not to correct, but to make an example of the soldier, and the inquiring committee reaffirmed the military doctrine that "the essence of military punishments is that they should be exemplary and speedy." And so, at least a quarter of a million men came out of that one army with an unfortunate idea of the law. For them it was like an Austrian "whizz-bang;" you couldn't hear it coming in time to dodge. If it hit you, it was all over, and if it didn't, you were simply lucky. Most of them carry that analysis back into civilian life and adopt it as a working theory; and then society itself appears a cruel and deadening and unsympathetic machine.

PHILIPPINES INDEPENDENCE.

From the Detroit News.

EVERY American can find, in his own national creed, substantial arguments in favor of independence for the Filipino people, as for every other people under the sun.

The movement launched in the Philippine Legislature can command only complete respect from a nation whose attitude toward the islands has been, from the first, wholly unselfish and protective.

Any unwillingness this country may feel to granting this independence is based not on any possible argument against the virtue of independence, nor on any distrust of the intellectual capacity of the Filipinos as individuals. It is found solely in the anxiety that an able and ambitious people should show themselves capable of using the democracy they seek. The necessary preliminary to that is the choice of a national tongue.

It is a great misfortune that in the islands there are six languages, each with two or three dialects. Under such conditions self-government will be practically impossible. The preliminary requisite for independence is the ability to have one voice speak intelligently for the entire nation.

There would seem to be no other barrier to Filipino independence.

ANOTHER LOST CONTINENT.

From the Providence Journal.

THE suggestion that there may once have been a continent bridging the Pacific between Robinson Crusoe's island and the Hawaiians is a novel one, apparently even to geographical scientists. It seems that the professor of geology at the College of Hawaii who offers it was struck by the similarity of certain fresh-water molluscs from the former island, that the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Science had gathered, to Hawaiian molluscs; and from this clue he reasons that rivers, instead of the vasty ocean, must at some long-gone period have connected the two points. He is about to visit Crusoe's island—designated on the map as Juan Fernandez, and territory of Chile—to seek more evidence. It ought to be a fascinating search.

The Lost Continent of familiar legend is submerged in the Atlantic. But, very likely, there is another in the Pacific. Scientists are nowadays disposed to believe that there may have been an Atlantis, such as Plato described, inhabited by a prosperous and powerful people who were all engulfed in the sea "in a single day and one fatal night."

Events in the Social World

Davis-Langenberg Oriental Ball Tuesday and Real Circus Party for Miss Ada Johnson Thursday Evening at Country Club Important Affairs of Week.

MRS. NEILL McMILLAN'S "Feast of the Nile" was such a wonderful success that it seems to have started a craze this season for fancy dress balls and two will be held at the Country Club this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Langenberg will give an Oriental ball Tuesday evening, when the club will be transformed into an Arabian setting. The ball is announced as "At the Edge of the Desert." Here the guests, who will be dressed to represent ths different desert tribes, Persians, Arabs, Turks and other Mohammedan worshipers, will gather at 8 o'clock to feast and dance with "Sheik Davis and Sheik Langenberg and their favorite slaves," who will be represented by Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Langenberg.

The other fancy dress ball, which will be given Thursday evening, by Gates Williams in honor of Miss Ada Johnson, one of the most popular debutantes of the season, is to be a circus party and the guests have been asked to come as snake charmers, jugglers, clowns, side show freaks, bareback riders, ballet dancers, acrobats and the like, and it is even rumored that the fat lady and the bearded lady will be among those present. The invitations to this unique affair are miniature red paper circus posters, which read: "Come one, come all, to Ada's Circus Party." In the interior of the club there will be three tents, and in the main tent Gates Williams will be ring master. The entertainment is to be a surprise, but there probably will be side shows, a merry-go-round, popcorn, peanuts, pink lemonade and everything that goes with a regular circus.

Another treat in store for the debutantes is the ball, which Mrs. J. L. D. Morrison of the Buckingham Hotel will give tomorrow evening at the Woman's Club in honor of her granddaughter, Miss Adele Carr, who is visiting her from Albuquerque, N. M.

With these three balls, the several important weddings and the dinner parties and luncheons that have been planned, society will have an unusually busy week.

Mrs. Katherine Bonnie of Louisville, and Carl Langenberg, son of Mrs. Henry F. Langenberg of 5244 Washington boulevard, will be married March 27 at Mrs. Bonnie's home in Louisville. The ceremony will be performed at noon, and will be followed by a small reception at which only the immediate families and a few intimate friends will be present. Although no formal announcement has been made, friends of Mrs. Bonnie and Mr. Langenberg have known for some time that an engagement existed. Mrs. Bonnie has spent much time in St. Louis as the guest of Mrs. Effie Bagnell Culbertson of 12 Westmoreland place, and is expected to arrive from Louisville this week to visit Mr. Langenberg's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Langenberg of 49 Westmoreland place.

Miss Mary D. Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Breckinridge Jones of 45 Portland place, who will become the bride of Harrison Hoblitzelle Wednesday, is being extensively entertained. Friday evening she was guest of honor at a theater party and supper dance which Mr. and Mrs. Vincent L. Price gave, Saturday evening Miss Nancy Bates gave a dinner party at the Country Club dinner dance, today Mr. Hoblitzelle's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George K. Hoblitzelle of 6450 Ellenwood avenue, will give a luncheon, Mrs. Harold Bixby a tea and Miss Annie Laurie Warmack a dinner party at the St. Louis Club. Mrs. Hayward Niedringhaus will give a large dinner party tomorrow evening and Louis Werner will entertain at dinner the following evening.

The ceremony will be prfeormed at the Union Avenue Christian Church late Wednesday afternoon and will be followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents. In the wedding party will be Miss Frances Reid Jones, who will be maid of honor for her sister, Miss Annie Laurie Warmack, Miss Nancy Bates, Mrs. Hayward Niedringhaus and Mrs. Harold Bixby as bridesmaids, Maury Hill as best man, Bob Reynolds, John Young Brown, Samuel Conant, Dan Jones, Kent Colwell and William Blair of Detroit as groomsmen and ushers.

Miss Olivia Harbaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Harbaugh of 2 Lennox place, will give a theater party tomorrow evening in compliment to Miss Eunice McNulty of Chicago, who is the guest of Miss Elizabeth Smith, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Smith. The other guests will be Miss Elizabeth Benoist and Messrs. William Schock, Ray Miller, Todd Clark and Lannan Benoist. After the theater, the party will attend Mrs. J. L. D. Morrison's ball at the Women's Club.

Stuart Stickney of the St. Regis apartments enterntained at dinner last evening at the Country Club dinner dance in honor of Miss Ada Johnson. The guests included Misses Jane Bemis, Grace Taylor, Ruth Lionberger, Frances Garrison, Eleanor Beggs of Pittsburg, Carter Mulliken, Nancy and Dorothy Walker, and Messrs Arthur Crunden, Andrew McCreery, Ollie Anderson, Francis Niedringhaus, Francis Drew, Duncan Houser, Arthur Stickney, Taylor Stickney, George Scott, Jack Lionberger, Gates Williams, Andrew Johnson and Messrs. and Mesdames Harold Kauffman, Burgoyne Wilson, Orion Willa and Ephron Catlin.

Miss Raydell Thomas of Lenox Hall gave a tea Friday for 60 friends and announced the engagement of Miss Ruth Miller, to Miss Thomas' brother, J. Martin Thomas, son of Mrs. M. Louise Thomas. Miss Miller, who has been a member of the faculty of Lenox Hall for two years, is the daughter of the Rev. C. H. Miller, field representative of the ministerial relief board of the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Thomas formerly resided here but is now in Cleveland, where he will take his bride. He served in France for a year with the Third Field Artillery. Mrs. George Leighton and Miss Elizabeth Donaldson served at the tea.

The wedding of Miss Ruth Burlingame, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Burlingame of 5655 Bartmer avenue, and Clelland Antrim, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Antrim of 25 Kingsbury place, has been set for Wednesday, Feb. 11. It will be a church affair, taking place at the First Presbyterian Church at 8:30 o'clock, and there will be a small reception at the St. Louis Club. Plans for the weddining party have not been completed.

A WEDDING which took place in New York last week which came as a complete surprise, was that of Miss Esther Wheeler and Dr. Louis W. Schreiber, who were married Thursday evening at the Little Church Around the Corner. The ceremony was quiet with only the immediate families and friends of the couple who reside in New York present. A wedding supper followed.

Miss Wheeler and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler of 6195 Kingsbury boulevard, went to New York last Saturday and Dr. Schreiber followed Monday. After a short honeymoon, the couple will return to St. Louis and will be at home at 6195 Kingsbury boulevard.

Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler expected to sail yesterday for Cuba, to be gone several months.

The bride received her education at Mary Institute and at Mrs. Dow's school at Briar Cliff, N. Y. She did not make a formal debut but served as maid of honor at several of the Veiled Prophet balls. Dr. Schreiber is a graduate of Johns Hopkins University. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Schreiber of Baltimore, and is a member of the University and Sunset Hill Country Clubs.

Three important engagement announcements figured in the social news of the week. The brides-to-be are: Misses Marion Bridge of Westmoreland place, who will wed Theodore Welz Sterling of New York; Frances Hayes of Kingsbury place, whose betrothal to Capt. Gordon M. Baker of Charleston, S. C., has been formally announced, and Miss Alpha Hatch of Cabanne place, who will marry William B. Shelp Jr., of the Buckingham Hotel.

Mrs. Lawrence Boogher of 6241 Waterman avenue gave a luncheon yesterday at the St. Louis Club in honor of Miss Frances Carleton, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse L. Carleton. Luncheon was followed by a matinee party. The guests were Misses Patricia Carleton, Lida Crawford, Elizabeth Kennard, Frances Garrison, and her guest, Eleanor Beggs of Pittsburg, Ruth Leggatt, Alicia Hafner, Frances Ewens, Margaret Maxwell and Mrs. Ferguson.

Mrs. J. W. Mott of Poplar Bluff, Ark., has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. B. O. Wells of Buckingham Court. Mrs. Wells and Mrs. Mott will depart today for Galveston, Tex., to spend the remainder of the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Hutchings Moore of 4478 McPherson avenue, formerly of Rome, Ga., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Bessie Ann Moore, to Maj. Lawrence Sprague Churchill, U. S. A. The wedding will take place at 5 o'clock on the evening of Jan. 17, at the First Baptist Church in Rome, Ga. Mrs. Moore has departed for Rome and will be joined there next week by Mr. Moore and the bride-to-be's cousin, George Thomas Dierking of 5216 Lansdowne avenue, who will be one of the groomsmen. Maj. Churchill is from Oswego, N. Y., and is a graduate of Union College at Schenectady, N. Y. After March 1 the young couple will be at home at the Air Service Training Station, Souther Field, Americus, Ga.

Miss Dorothy Koehler of Beverly Farms, Boston, formerly of St. Louis, who has been the guest of friends and relatives here, departed last week for California. Miss Koehler is a niece of Messrs. Hugo and Max Koehler and while here was the guest at a number of informal affairs, among them a dance given Tuesday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Roosevelt Thomas at their home on the Price road. Miss Koehler's mother, Mrs. George A. Dobyne, with Mr. Dobyne and their little son, Robert, also spent several days here en route to Chandler, Ariz., to spend the remainder of the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Trites of Concordia, Kan., are the guests of Miss Florence Hogan of 5171 Cabanne avenue.

Miss Janice Frances Feldman has returned to the Gardner School in New York City, having spent the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Feldman of 56 Kingsbury place.

The engagement of Miss Mary Norvell Morton to Raymond J. Wiese of Davenport, Io., was announced last week. Miss Morton is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Morton of Webster Groves. She is a graduate of Mary Institute, class of 1918, and has been one of the popular girls in the younger set. Mr. Weise is a graduate of Ames College and for some time has been doing research work in South America. The wedding will take place in the spring.

The last recital of the Hotel Statler musicale teas will take place Monday afternoon, Jan. 19. Dora de Phillippe, soprano of the Chicago Opera Company, will be the artist. The special hostesses for the afternoon are Mrs. John Fowler, Mrs. Lon O. Hocker, Mrs. William Bagnell, Mrs. J. M. Franciscus, Mrs. N. A. McMillan, Mrs. Ames Cushman, Mrs. Harry Block and Mrs. Harvey Mudd.

Miss Mabel Jones of Washington, D. C., who passed the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Spencer of Pershing avenue, has gone to California.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Virginia Mae Powers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Powers of 5250 Kensington avenue, and Frank Beardslee, on Wednesday, Dec. 17. They will be at home after Jan. 15 at the Marne Apartments.

The marriage of Miss Nell Wiedmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wiedmer of 5379 Pershing avenue, and A. A. Hallberg of Chicago took place Jan. 3 at the Lafayette Park

Presbyterian Church. The Rev. W. F. McMillin performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families at 4 o'clock. The couple departed for the East on their honeymoon. They will reside in Chicago.

The regular January meeting of the Margaret A. E. McLure Chapter, U. D. C., was held Monday, at the home of Mrs. J. L. Griswold of 5245 Washington boulevard. Mrs. Kate Phillippi and Miss Laura Phillippi assisting. A called meeting of the chapter will be held at the residence of Mrs. J. L. Griswold, 5245 Washington boulevard, tomorrow, at 2 o'clock, [illegible] complete arrangements for the Valentine ball. During the war the Valentine ball, which had been an annual event of the chapter, was discontinued, but arrangements are now in progress for a ball to be given in the rose parlor of the Buckingham Hotel, Feb. 14, the proceeds to go toward the educational fund of the chapter.

Mmes. Robert W. Brooks, Wilson W. Keyser, Edward G. Tutt and Wallace Delafield will be without hats at the tea to be given in honor of Mrs. A. V. L. Brokaw, by Mrs. James H. McCabe of 5611 Bartmer avenue, on Thursday afternoon, from 3 until 5 o'clock. The following will serve: Mrs. Milton C. Marshall, Mrs. James Avery Webb, Miss Nellie A. Holman and Miss Edna Newcomb. Mrs. Brokaw is the retiring regent of the St. Louis Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

The Carondelet Women's Club met Monday evening in the auditorium of the library, Mrs. William P. Evans presiding. Miss Kate Brown read a paper on "States Rights vs. Centralization," and Miss Margaret Foristel gave a history of the tariff. The next meeting will be Jan. 19.

The marriage of Miss Belle Brockling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Brockling of 2510 W. Dodier street, to Henry L. Blattel of Kelso, Mo., will take place at St. Augustine's Church at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The Lafayette W. C. T. U. will hold its regular business meeting at 2 o'clock Wednesday at the Barr Branch Library.

The Press Committee of the Eighth District of Women's Clubs will give a "Get-to-Know-You" luncheon at the Marquette Hotel, Monday, at 12:45 o'clock. The guests will be all members of the committee, honorary members and officers of the district. There will be speakers and music. Mrs. C. B. Bowman is chairman.

The Carpe Diem Literary Club met at the home of Mrs. Charles Oesterly in Richmond Heights Monday. The Rev. Mr. Haxlett gave a lecture on "Scenic South America."

The Cornelia Greene Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, was entertained at the residence of Mrs. F. W. Green, 6203 Washington boulevard, Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 7, with Mrs. C. P. Johnson as assisting hostess. Prof. Edward F. Jackson gave an address on the "Washington Memorial at Valley Forge." Mrs. C. P. Johnson will give a card party at her home, 6350 Pershing avenue, Jan. 28, for the Patriotic Fund of the Chapter, and Mrs. John Trigg Mass will give a "White Elephant" party Feb. 14 for the same fund.

The much talked of Roman ball that was to have been given at the Coliseum Shrove Tuesday evening under the direction of Mrs. N. A. McMillan and Mrs. George Gelhorn, has been postponed because of the impossibility of obtaining the big hall on that date. The ball will not be a thing altogether lost, however, as arrangements have been made for a night next fall when it will be carried out along lines even more elaborate than had been planned.

A theater party was given by Mrs. J. Stevenson of 2314 University street in honor of Miss Theodosia Peters and her mother, Mrs. Rose Peters of Chicago, Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Hansgen 952 Maryville avenue entertained with a dinner dance Saturday evening in honor of their daughter, Miss Edmee Hausgen and Miss Kathryn Myers.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Buckel and children of 3433 St. Vincent avenue departed Monday for Elcentro, Cal., to spend the remainder of the winter. Mrs. Buckel was formerly Miss Irene Huth.

Cards are being mailed to Smith College women and their friends for a demonstration luncheon of the "Smith Exchange," on Jan. 17, at the Church of the Unity. This exchange, through which everything may be obtained, from jellies to a jitney, is one of the novel ideas of the local committee for the campaign for $4,000,000 for the college to be launched on that date all over the country. The luncheon will be managed by Miss Edith Souther, who is chairman of the exchange.

Among the St. Louis women who have gone to Smith are Mmes. Harry Langenberg, Nathaniel Ewing, Charles Bascom, Charles P. Pettus, Ernest Sachs, James McCluney, A. Wessel Shapleigh, Walter Baumgarten, Albert Taussig, Henry Ferriss, Thomas Galt, W. V. Shevil, Wallace Renard, N. D. Thompson Jr., Blasdel Shapleigh, Nathaniel Semple, W.

ADMIRAL SIMS' THRILLING STORY OF MYSTERY SHIPS

commander: more frequently the sailor would slouch up to his superior, his hands in his pockets and his pipe in his mouth. This attempt to deceive the Hun observer at the periscope sometimes assumed an even more ludicrous form. When the sailor of a warship dumps ashes overboard he does it with particular care, so as not to soil the sides of his immaculate vessel; but a merchant seaman is much less considerate; he usually hurls overboard anything he does not want and lets the ship's side take its chances. To have followed the manner of the navy would at once have given the game away; so the sailors, in carrying out this domestic duty, performed the act with all the nonchalance of a merchant seaman. To have messed in naval style would also have been betraying themselves. The ship's cook, therefore, in a white coat, would come on deck and have a look around, precisely as is done on a freighter. Even when in port officers and men maintained their disguise. They never visited hotels or clubs or private houses; they spent practically all their time on board; if they occasionally went ashore, their merchant outfit so disguised them that their best friends could not recognize them on the street.

After Time, the Problem of Concealing the Gun's Crew.

The warlike character of their ships was even more cleverly hidden. In the early days the guns were placed behind the bulwarks, which, when a lever was pulled, would fall down, thus giving the man unobstructed range at the submarine. In order to make the sides of the ships collapsible, certain seams were unavoidably left in the plate, where the detachable part joined the main structure. The U-boat commanders soon learned to look for these betraying seams before coming to the surface. They would sail submerged around the ship, the periscope minutely examining the sides, much as a scientist examines his specimens with a microscope. This practice made it necessary to conceal the guns more carefully. The places which were most serviceable for this purpose were the hatchways—those huge wells, extending from the deck to the bottom, which are used for loading and unloading cargo. Platforms were erected in these openings, and on these guns were emplaced; a covering of tarpaulin completely hid them; yet a lever, pulled by the gun crews, would cause the sides of the hatchway covers to fall instantaneously. Other guns were placed under lifeboats, which, by a similar mechanism, would fall apart or rise in the air, exposing the gun. Perhaps the most deceptive device of all was a gun, placed upon the stern, and, with its crew, constantly exposed to public gaze. Since most merchantmen carried such a gun, its absence on a mystery ship would in itself have caused suspicion; this armament not only helped the disguise, but served a useful purpose in luring the submarine. At the first glimpse of a U-boat on the surface, usually several miles away, the gun crew would begin shooting; but they always took care that the shots fell short, thus convincing the submarine that it had the advantage of range and so inducing it to close.

Capt. Campbell and his associates paid as much attention to details in their ships as in their personal appearance. The ship's wash did not expose the flannels that are affected by naval men, but the dungarees that are popular with merchant sailors. Sometimes a side of beef would be hung out in plain view; this not only kept up the fiction that the ship was an innocent tramp, but it served as a tampting bait to the not too-well-fed crew of the submarine. Particularly tempting cargoes were occasionally put on deck. One of the ships carried several papier mache freight cars of the small European type, covered with legends which indicated that they were loaded with ammunition and bound for Mesopotamia. It is easy to imagine how eagerly the Hun would wish to sink that cargo!

These ships were so effectively disguised that even the most experienced eyes could not discover their real character. For weeks they could lie in dock, the dockmen never suspecting that they were armed to the teeth. Even the pilots who went aboard to take them into harbor never discovered that they were not the merchant ships which they pretended to be. Capt. Hanrahan, who commanded the mystery ship, Santee, based on Queenstown, once entertained on board an Irishman from Cork. The conversation which took place between this American naval officer—who, in his disguise, was indistinguishable from a tramp skipper of many years' experience—disclosed the complete ignorance of the guest concerning the true character of the boat.

"How do you like these Americans?" Capt. Hanrahan innocently asked.

"They are eating us out of house and home!" the indignant Irishman remarked. The information was a little inaccurate, since all our food supplies were brought from the United States; but the remark was reassuring as proving that the ship's disguise had not been penetrated. Such precautions were the more necessary in a port like Queenstown, where our forces were surrounded by spies, who were in constant communication with the enemy.

I can personally testify to the difficulty of identifying a mystery ship. One day Admiral Bayly suggested that we go out in the harbor and visit one of these strange vessels lying there preparatory to sailing on a cruise. Several merchantmen were at anchor in port. We steamed close around one in the Admiral's barge and examined her very carefully through our glasses from a short distance. Concluding that this was not the vessel we were seeking, we went to another merchantman. This did not show any signs of being a mystery ship; we therefore hailed the skipper, who told us the one which we had first visited was the mystery ship. We went back, boarded her, and began examining her appliances.

The crew was dressed in the ordinary sloppy clothes of a merchantman's deckhands; the officers wore the usual merchant ship uniform, and everything was as unmilitary as a merchant ship usually is. The vessel had quite a long deckhouse built of light steel. The Captain told us that two guns were concealed within this structure; he suggested that we walk all around it and see if we could point out from a close inspection the location of the guns. We searched carefully, but were utterly unable to discover where the guns were. The Captain sent the crew to quarters and told us to stand clear. At the word of command one of the plates of the perpendicular side of the deckhouse slid out of the way as quickly as a flash. The rail at the ship's side in front of the gun fell down and a boat davit swung out of the way. At the same time the gun crew swung out and fired a primer to indicate how quickly they could have fired a real shot. The Captain also showed us a boat upside down on the deckhouse—merchantmen frequently carry one boat in this position. At a word a lever was pulled down below and the boat reared up in the air and revealed underneath itself a gun and its crew. On the poop was a large crate about 6x½x8 or 10 feet. At a touch of the lever the side of this crate fell down and revealed another gun.

For the greater part of 1917 from 20 to 30 of these ships sailed back and forth in the Atlantic, always choosing those parts of the seas where they were most likely to meet submarines. They were "merchantmen" of all kinds—tramp steamers, coasting vessels, trawlers and schooners. Perhaps the most distressing part of existence on one of these ships was its monotony; day would follow day; week would follow week; and sometimes months would pass without encountering a single submarine. Capt. Campbell himself spent nine months on his first mystery ship before even sighting an enemy, and many of his successors had a similar experience. The mystery boat was a patient fisherman, constantly expecting a bite and frequently going for long periods without the slightest nibble. This kind of an existence was not only disappointing but also exceedingly nerve racking; all during this waiting period the officers and men had to keep themselves constantly at attention; the vaudeville show which they were maintaining for the benefit of a possible periscope had to go on continuously; a moment's forgetfulness night betray their secret, and make their experiment a failure. The fearful tediousness of this kind of life had a more nerve-racking effect upon the officers and men than the most exciting battles, and practically all the mystery ship men who broke down fell victims not to the dangers of their enterprise, but to this dreadful tension of sailing for weeks and months without coming to close quarters with their enemy.

Every Woman Needs IRON at Times

If women would only take Nuxated Iron when they feel weak, run-down, tired out—when they are pale, nervous and haggard—there are thousands who might readily build up their red corpuscles, become rosy-cheeked, strong and healthy and be much more attractive in every way. When the iron goes from the blood of women, the healthy glow of youth leaves their skin and their charm and vivacity depart. A two weeks course of Nuxated Iron works wonders in many cases. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

LICHTENSTEIN LECTURES ON "MUSIC AS SOCIAL FORCE"

Under the auspices of the Washington University Association, Victor Lichtenstein lectured on "Music As a Social Force" at the Washington University Medical School last Tuesday evening.

He pointed out characteristic features of the three great streams of folk music, the Celtic, Slovic and Germanic, and discussed the undoubted folk song inspiration of many classic masterpieces. An Irish folkstune, "Kitty of Colerance," he said, was immortalized by Beethoven in the last movement of his seventh symphony, the first movement of which is rhythmically an Irish jig.

The lecture was illustrated at the piano with compositions by Grieg, Barodine, Tschaikowsky, Scott, Beethoven and Schumann.

ONE CHARGE IN MISS HALLEN'S SUIT DISMISSED

Allegation of Malicious Prosecution Dropped, Leaving False Arrest and Imprisonment Charges.

$60,000 ASKED OF TWO DEFENDANTS

Physician Who Treated Her After Collapse Thursday Testified She Suffers From Traumatic Neurasthenia.

At adjournment of court yesterday Miss Hildegarde Hallen dismissed the charge of malicious prosecution in her $60,000 damage suit against John S. Leahy, an attorney, and former Chief of Detectives James H. Smith, leaving the allegations of false arrest and imprisonment on two occasions in March, 1909, still in the case.

It was explained by her counsel that the first charge was eliminated because it became necessary for the plaintiff to elect on which of the charges in her petition she chose to stand, the various counts describing the same offense. Furthermore, it was stated, Dr. G. Wylie Broome, her physician, testified that Miss Hallen had said she did not fear criminal prosecution as she knew she was innocent. Hence her nervous condition would not likely result on that score, but was due to the other charges alleged by her, he said.

The case will be resumed tomorrow in Circuit Judge Hartmann's court, where it has been on trial before a jury since last Monday. Miss Hallen's suit is now based on the allegation that the shock of her arrest and imprisonment in connection with the investigation of the forgery charge against her former employer, M. Dwight Fortner, a realty broker, and of subsequent questioning by Smith and Leahy, the latter representing one of the victims of Fortner's crime, made a nervous wreck of her.

Physician's Testimony.

Dr. W. A. Baker, assistant house physician of the Planters Hotel, who treated the plaintiff on Thursday when the setting off of a newspaper photographer's flashlight caused her to faint, testified at the hearing yesterday that he found Miss Hallen to be suffering from traumatic neurasthenia, which, he said, was permanent. Counsel for the defense asked him if in treating nervous patients doctors do not strive to keep their minds off the subject which worries them. He answered that this was one way of treating such cases but that there are many others, principally hygienic.

The defense then sought to show that a law suit such as Miss Hallen is prosecuting would have a tendency to aggravate her nervous disorder, as it kept her mind on the subject she alleged was the cause. The witness admitted that rest is needed and that her lawsuit might make her condition worse, but he added that he did not know that excitement over such a cause would be sustained for nine years, which is the time her case has been pending.

Posed for Photographs.

In an effort to corroborate Miss Hallen's explanation Friday that she had posed in the nude for a photographer in order to get money "to buy bread," her mother was recalled to the stand to testify to the latter's financial and physical condition at the time the pictures were taken. Mrs. Hallen started to tell that she was sick and without funds when the defense's objection to this line of evidence as immaterial was sustained. Her daughter, in telling about the nude pictures Friday, said that the photographer wanted the poses for artistic purposes, to be used commercially, and that he promised on his honor not to display her head in exhibiting them.

Their grocer, she said, had refused to extend them more credit, and, in the exigencies of the occasion, she accepted the photographer's offer. He paid her either $5 or $10, she said. The photographer, it was testified, was William Hoke, who had a studio on Third street, near Pine street, and who since has been a Major in the army.

History of Case.

Leahy and Smith deny that they are liable or that Miss Hallen was harshly treated by either of them. They contend that her arrest and the subsequent questioning of her by them was necessary in the investigation of the charges against Fortner, who, at the time, was a fugitive, but later was captured in Paris, and served a term in the penitentiary for his crime.

The plaintiff was a notary public, and, according to the defense, it was due to her alleged illegal acknowledgment of documents as a notary that Fortner was enabled to profit by his forgeries. She admitted in her testimony that when Fortner asked her to affix her notarial seal to documents she did not read them fully.

While she was on the stand Miss Hallen was cross-examined as to why she waited nearly two years before filing her suit. She said that the first lawyer she retained "dilly-dallied and shilly-shallied" until she discharged him. Then she said she went from one lawyer's office to another until she at last found one "who was brave enough to file the suit." Her attorneys are Frank H. Haskins and Randolph Laughlin.

Distress After Eating

When you feel heavy and oppressed after eating, you have indigestion.

Your digestive organs are unable to dissolve and assimilate the food in your stomach. It forms in hard lumps and irritates the delicate stomach linings. Hence, that feeling of distress.

When your stomach is unable to do its work properly, take something to help it out.

Eupepsia Tablets are a stomach remedy that you can absolutely depend upon. Because Eupepsia Tablets contain just the help the stomach needs.

Eupepsia Tablets relieve the stomach by digesting every particle of food in it. They do this quickly and naturally. At the same time they tone and strengthen the digestive organs. They ease and soothe the natural action of the stomach's surface, and they completely restore the digestive apparatus to perfect health.

You who suffer from stomach trouble of any kind—you owe it to yourself to know the positive efficacy of Eupepsia. And every day you delay trying this perfect digester means a delay of good appetite, restful sleep, sound nerves and a healthy stomach.

THE TEST IS FREE

Try Eupepsia Tablets at our expense. Go to your druggist today. Get a 60c box. After you have used the entire box, if you are not relieved of dyspepsia or indigestion in any form, return the empty box to your druggist. He will promptly refund your money.

If your druggist does not carry Eupepsia Tablets, write us direct. Our guarantee holds good, however you purchase. A trial treatment and booklet on Stomach Trouble mailed free.

Our Pre-Inventory Clearance Sale Begins Tomorrow

IN these 2 pages we present only a part of the greatest sale news of the season. Sweeping reductions have been made on merchandise that is highly desirable and seasonable.

It is the broadest Pre-Inventory Clearance Sale that we have ever held.

The Pre-Inventory Clearance Sale of 3000 Pairs of Women's Gloves

Two Groups, $1.10 and $1.65

THIS sale includes all groups that have become slightly soiled or in any way mussed or stained from display in the department during the big rush season just passed. The 3000 pairs include fine Kid Gloves for dress and street wear, both light weights and heavy weights, and every pair chosen from our regular stock.

Regular $2.50, $3 and $4 Gloves, in this sale $1.65

Regular $1.50 and $1.85 Gloves, in this sale $1.10

First Floor—Tables.

The Pre-Inventory Clearance Brings a Sale of

200 Velvet Bags

Regularly $5.75 to $7.00 at $3.85

Regularly $9.00 to $15.00 at $5.85

THE above reductions constitute values that cannot be equaled again; in fact, on most Bags the prices are less than the manufacturing cost. These Bags are simply a surplus stock, greater than we desire to show at inventory time; and to reduce stock the prices have been reduced.

The Bags are made of the finest quality chiffon velvet, and in their making every little detail has been carefully and painstakingly done—even to the fitting of the mirror, and the finish of the coin purse. The Bags are beautifully lined with silk or satin. The bag frames include those made of metal, as well as covered frames. There are all sizes and colors, and every serviceable new shape is represented.

A Tremendous Special Purchase and Timely Basement Sale of

6000 Women's Knit Union Suits

All of the Style Illustrated and in All Regular and Extra Sizes

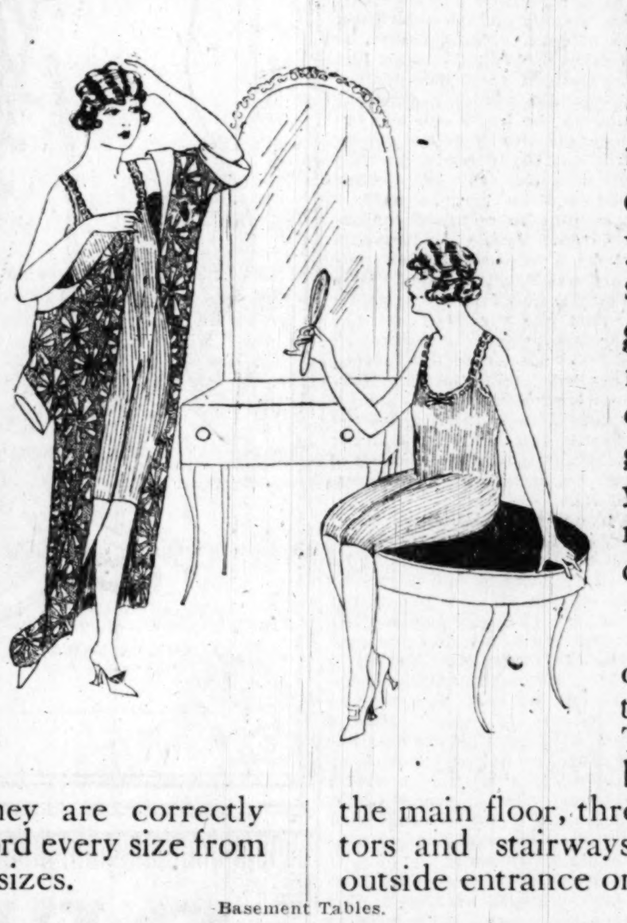
75c

Regular $1.25 Suits

¶On sale in the basement shops because the quantity is too large to be handled in the regular first floor department.

¶In the basement shops where this sale will be conducted, tables will be conveniently arranged with the sizes so divided as to make selection most easy.

¶The style of these garments is what most women are now demanding; fine Ribbed Knit Union Suits, low neck, no sleeves, regulation arm hole, knee length and tight knee.



The bigness of this opportunity may be most fully appreciated when we explain that before placing these garments on sale we carefully shopped the entire city and found no garments equal to these 75c Union Suits at a price lower than $1.25 a garment.

The desirability of these Union Suits can be appreciated at once. They are correctly made, fit snugly, and afford every size from regular up to large extra sizes.

¶Because there is but one style—the style illustrated—there will be no difficulty in giving you very prompt service. For every garment is in perfect condition, making it only necessary for you to go to the table holding your size and select as many garments as you desire.

There will be plenty of efficient salespeople to give you quick service. This basement sale will be easily accessible from the main floor, through the various elevators and stairways, as well as from the outside entrance on Ninth street.

Sale of 2400 Men's Shirts

Regular $3.50, $4.00 and $4.50 Shirts

SHIRTS made of woven satin striped madras, Russian cord madras, Ramona satin striped madras and jacquards; neat conventional and fancy patterns.

¶ It was our purpose in preparing this sale to give the men of St. Louis a better Shirt for the money than could be obtained anywhere else. To be absolutely sure that we were going to offer a greater Shirt value we have had expert shoppers make complete and thorough investigation in all the leading stores in the city. We have found that the Shirts to be offered for $2.95 in this sale are selling elsewhere today at $3.50, $4.00 and $4.50. Not in a single instance could we find a shirt to compare with any of these at lower prices than $3.50, $4 and $4.50.

¶ In this sale you can choose from 2400 Shirts and pay $2.95 for any Shirt you select.

¶ This wonderful sale came about through a fortunate purchase in which we secured the entire surplus stock of a big well-known Shirt manufacturer.

¶ The Shirts have never been out of their wrappings and the patterns are complete in their assortment, affording everything from the narrow pin stripe to big, wide, heavy stripes, in all colors and black.

¶ The size assortment has been chosen in proportion to those greatest in demand, so that sizes will likely be complete until most of the shirts are gone.

¶ One of the most remarkable things about this big sale is the fact that it has been planned with the idea of selling 2000 Shirts the first day. Think a moment of the magnitude of such a selling—$5900 worth of Shirts will be sold if 2000 are disposed of the first day, and the Shirts will go. It is more likely that the entire 2400 will be sold before the day is ended, for men will buy these Shirts in half dozen and dozen lots. They are such unusual values.

¶ The sale will be conveniently arranged in our regular men's furnishing shop, with plenty of big tables stacked high with Shirts of every pattern. The sizes will be kept in separate places, so that the least possible time will be needed in making a selection. The salesforce will be greatly augmented by experienced people, so that there will be prompt and efficient service.

¶ Three big windows display all the various patterns today, at the corner of Ninth and Olive Streets.

CHICAGO SHERIFF'S ACT IN FORCING PRISONERS TO WITNESS HANGING BOTH CONDEMNED AND PRAISED

Chiefs of Police and Detectives Applaud It

Majority Opinion, However, Is That the Spectacle Is More Degrading Than Reformative and That the Experiment Is a Retrogression in Handling Criminals

DID Sheriff Peters of Chicago hit upon a wise penalogical policy on Jan. 2 when he compelled 200 of the worst criminals in the Cook County jail to witness the execution of Raffaello Durrage? Are the beneficent effects of such a spectacle sufficient to outweigh its degrading and horrible aspects?

In Chicago, all legal executions take place in the inclosed court of the jail upon which the tiers of cells open It has been the custom of the Sheriff's office heretofore to remove the prisoners from the cells that look upon the court during executions On this occasion, however Sheriff Peters selected 200 of the most hardened criminals in his custody and put them in cells where they could look directly upon the scene.

The dispatches on the day of the execution said that the prisoners made a jest of it and showed more interest in a demand for breakfast at the usual hour. Later reports, however, show that this demonstration occurred in another part of the jail from which the execution was not observable. As far as the men who actually witnessed it from their cells were concerned, the scene was extremely depressing, so harrowing to some of them, indeed, that they were not able to sleep for 48 hours afterward.

The Post-Dispatch presented the facts in the Chicago case to several St. Louis criminologists and alienists, as well as to the Chiefs of Police and Detectives and to Wardens of several state prisons By way of getting still another viewpoint of the experiment, seven of nine life-term prisoners now in the city jail also were interviewed.

By MARTIN O'BRIEN,

Chief of Police of St. Louis.

"I BELIEVE that a public exhibition of the punishment for a crime is all right and beneficial as far as the hardened criminal is concerned. As to the beginners and first offenders I possibly would recommend a little less severity.

I have always believed that the more of an example you could make of the punishment of a criminal the less crime you would have. Punishments are set to be made public else why the punishments? The more of those criminally inclined at heart who are brought to forcibly see the possible results of a criminal life the less they will be inclined to adopt such a career.

For instance, I remember when I was a boy down in Texas, three young fellows convicted of stealing cattle were hanged publicly. I remember that almost every father of a boy in that section took his boy to town that day so they might see the horrible example. It is useless to say there was little cattle stealing around that section thereafter. One doesn't easily forget such examples. I never will and neither will any other of those boys. He will remember it until the end of his life. And I dare say there are mighty few, if any, of all that crowd who ever subsequently committed any kind of a crime. I'd almost gamble that every one of them led a straight an honable existence.

As to the adoption of such a method of administration nationality, I can only say this as I did before—that for the hardened criminal I think it would be a good thing, but for the more tender ones—well there might be other and better methods used."

Sheriff Is Certain That He Gave Prisoners "Unforgettable Lesson"

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.

SHERIFF PETERS, who caused 200 of the murderers and other hardened criminals in the county jail to witness the execution of Raffaello Durrage, who killed a man and woman, who had ordered him from their home, is the center of alternating storms of criticism and praise for his act.

He announces that the policy will be continued, as it gives criminals a memorable lesson. Opponents of the plan are bending all their energies to prevent any more public hangings. For the most part they are persons who are violently opposed to capital punishment, regardless of the atrocity of the crime.

There are hints that Gov. Lowden, will reprieve convicted murderers until such time as he has positive assurance the execution will be private.

Edwin W. Sims today, in his annual report as president of the Chicago Crime Commission, fully supports the Sheriff's attitude. The report pointed out that there were 300 murders and 10,000 thefts in Chicago in 1919.

"If we are to cope successfully with the problem of reducing crimes in Chicago, we must understand the criminal," said Mr. Sims. "There has been too much meddling by well-meaning people who do not understand crime.

"We have been providing criminals with flowers, libraries, athletics, hot and cold running water, social visiting, paroles and pardons until what was previously intended as punishment is no longer punishment but a vacation."

The Sheriff's contention that to see a hanging gives even the hardest criminal something he cannot forget is borne out by interviews with many of the prisoners. With but one exception, all of them say they have enough and nothing will prompt them to go to the limit of killing of a fellow creature.

One Has Been Sick Since.

One prisoner who is soon to be hanged for decapitating a woman has been ill ever since he saw the hanging and all the others are noticeably tamed. They have seen the ultimate end of a career of crime. There is no more joking or rough badinage in the jail over the hanging.

Those who witnessed it fiercely stop other prisoners who assume an air of levity.

Sheriff Peters cites the case of Michigan, which abolished capital punishment a few years ago, and murderers have increased approximately 300 per cent since. The murder rate is also high in other states which prohibit capital punishment. Sheriff Peters insists the penalty for crime should be made terrifying. There is too much coddling of criminals, he says. They are provided pleasant quarters, well fed and entertained, while the families of their victims are neglected. Quite too frequently the criminal is set free to continue his ugly career, but when he sees one of his ilk hanged, it gives him something to think about.

Numerous letters commending him for his policy of allowing prisoners to witness the execution of Durrage are being received by Sheriff Peters.

Practically all of the communications are from attorneys and business men of large cities.

Prison Wardens Say Nothing Good and Much Evil Is Certain to Result From Such Methods—Seven of Nine Life Termers in St. Louis Jail Give Their Views.

By JOHN P. HANNEGAN,

Chief of Detectives of St. Louis.

I BELIEVE the results will justify the means.

Men hardened in crime or others just starting out on a criminal career would be influenced to seek a better life if an example of what their crimes might lead them to were brought home in a forceful manner.

Punishments assessed for crime committed are just as much for the example they will hold for others as they are to punish the actual criminal. The more forcibly this example is set forth to the minds of these criminally inclined the less crime we will have, I believe.

For instance, take automobile stealing. If there was a drastic law fixing capital punishment for this offense and one or two thieves made to pay the penalty, there would be no more stealing of automobiles.

I have never believed in rose water and kid gloves in the treatment of criminals of any kind. We have too many examples every week of the results of such treatment. It's the benefactor always who gets the worst of it. Seldom do we hear of anyone who had befriended a crook getting any benefits or good results from such efforts.

The punishment is the deterrent. The more public the punishment the more effective. There were few wife-beaters when they had the public whipping post for such. There are few murders in New York because of the fear of 'the juice,' as the electric chair is known, and fewer murders in London than anywhere else, because a murderer there has no recourse to all the little technicalities that cobweb some of the American methods of law procedure. In six weeks, in London, men are executed for murder. It takes years here sometimes to bring about a conviction.

As to the adoption of public hangings, I can only say this, that if I were in charge of such an affair here I believe I would invite the prisoners in the jail to the hanging.

Out in Oklahoma when it was a territory years ago a band of outlaws terrorized what was known as "The Strip." Judge Parker in Fort Smith, Ark., sentenced 42 of the gang to be hanged. That started the reformation of that section of the country. The example had been set and served its purpose. Criminals degrade themselves when they commit crime. I cannot see that it would degrade them any more to witness the punishment.

By LAWRENCE McDANIEL,

Circuit Attorney for St. Louis.

THE law of Missouri provides that death as a punishment shall be by hanging within the walls of the jail, and if the jail be not within a wall, that such sentence be executed in an inclosure, surrounded by a wall, sufficiently high to exclude the view of persons on the outside, and that there be present at the execution such officials, guards and assistants as the officer executing the sentence may see proper to admit.

The law imposes upon the official in charge of the execution the duty of requesting the presence of the Prosecuting Attorney where the conviction was had, the Clerk of the Court and 12 representative citizens of the county to be selected by him, two of whom shall be physicians or surgeons, counsel for the person convicted, a minister of the gospel to attend him, if he so desire, and such of his relatives as the official may deem proper may also be admitted; but no person under 21 years of age shall be allowed to witness such execution.

FORCING PRISONERS TO WITNESS HANGING IS DISCUSSED

My views fully accord with the law hereinbefore stated. I do not believe that any beneficial result can be attained by compelling a person to witness the execution of another.

Lawyers, Psychologists and Alienists Agree It Is Bad Enough

THOMAS B. HARVEY, former Circuit Attorney and one of the leading practitioners in the criminal courts: The generally accepted theory is that an exhibition of hanging is repulsive and degrading. In many states the law requires that the death penalty be inflicted in the presence of only such witnesses as the statutes direct, and the reason for this is, I apprehend, that such exhibitions are considered brutalizing and calculated to arouse the resentment of those who are opposed to capital punishment. Those people constitute a very large element of the community. What right has the state to compel prisoners to witness such a disgusting and degrading scene? If the prisoners were actually guilty of the offenses for which they were jailed the State could exact only such punishment as the law prescribes, and had no authority to inflict this additional penalty. Its effect upon them could only cause them to become greater enemies of society. The death penalty might as well be executed in public as in the presence of prisoners so far as beneficial effect is accomplished. The Sheriff was wrong.

PROF. EDGAR JAMES SWIFT, psychologist at Washington University: I am of the opinion that the beneficent effects of such a spectacle do not outweigh its degrading effects. Indeed, I doubt any beneficent effects.

DR. FRANCIS M. BARNES, alienist, University Club Building: The revival of the old experiment of public or semi-public hangings such as the one carried out by the Cook County Sheriff is not justified in so far as bringing about penological reforms is concerned. The tendency in penological reform today is towards the introduction of corrective rather than punitive measures in handling criminals. This tendency is based upon the known fact that a large proportion of our criminal population is mentally deficient.

Such a spectacle is retrogressive and we know from history that there are no beneficent effects resulting; on the contrary we do know that it does not act as a deterrent of crime in those witnessing it. It certainly would not be a good policy to adopt in the administration of capital punishment either for its effect upon habitual or casual criminals for the reasons which I have stated.

THE REV. FATHER HUBERT GRUENDER, professor of psychology, St. Louis University: A spectacle, such as was presented in Chicago, might be a deterrent of crime in uncivilized people but it could hardly have any beneficial influence upon the minds of an enlightened race. The Jews of ancient time stoned their criminals in public in order to make an example of them, but conditions have changed. Such an exhibition is repulsive because it arouses only the brutal instinct in man. There should be a solemnity about death.

CHARLES P. JOHNSON, noted criminal lawyer: It was uncalled for, unjust and brutal, and, so far as I can see, could have no beneficial result. It was simply an exhibition to those confined as it would have been to those citizens at large who seek such scenes out of morbid curiosity. It was an exhibition of torture the same as in those ancient times when men were burned at the stake. It could not possibly have any deterrent effect on any of those prisoners in their future conduct. It has only a degrading influence on those who witness such scenes. It arouses only the inherent savagery in men. I cannot imagine why an official should want to give such an exhibition to men under his care. It cannot be educational for good in any respect. It simply was revolting.

Dr. CHARLES G. CHADDOCK, alienist, 3705 Delmar boulevard: My answer is "No," to all your questions, and for these reasons: Because exhibitions of brutality may incite to brutality; because criminals might be thus only more firmly convinced that the repressive methods used by the law are brutal rather than beneficent. Modern social effort, in order to be reformative, must recognize the necessity of demonstrating to those who break the laws that the laws in themselves are, or are intended to be, beneficent. Crime is one of the results of social evolution, and society should realize that criminals are only individuals that failed to keep up with the march of progress.

DR. M. A. BLISS, alienist, Humboldt Building: It would not, in my opinion, be a good policy in the administration of capital punishment. Hardened and confirmed criminals are, I believe made more callous by witnessing executions. The policy is wrong—whether witnessed by the public or by differentiated criminals.

What Prison Wardens Think of Experiment; Opinions Are Divided

CAPT. PORTER GILVIN, Warden of the Missouri Penitentiary: I don't believe the result which was sought was obtained. I never would have done such a thing, and would not have permitted it to be done. I don't believe that the watching of an execution would have a beneficial effect, nor a corrective effect, upon the mind of any individual, and there is great danger that the opposite result might occur.

HENRY TOWN, Warden Wisconsin State Prison, Waupun: Method not recommended as penological policy. My opinion is the result would be demoralizing.

WILLIAM FENTON, Warden Nebraska State Prison at Lincoln: In my judgment it is fundamentally wrong. It will not deter crime; it will in my judgment engender crime. I am emphatically opposed to such practice.

T. M. PYTSIANA, Warden of Kentucy Prison at Frankfort: I heartily approve of the Chicago Sheriff's experiment. I think it would to a great extent better the criminals. I do not consider this demoralizing or degrading to the worst of criminals. A forethought of punishment is likely to prohibit crime. I recommend it as a good penological policy.

Opinions of Seven of Nine Life Termers Now in St. Louis City Jail

Seven out of nine men confined in the city jail on life sentences, many of whom will shortly go to the penitentiary for the commission of the crime of murder, discussed their view of the effect of the action of the Cook County Sheriff. The greater majority of those spoken to could see no good in conducting a hanging before prisoners as a deterrent to crime.

EARL HUNTER, leader of the Meramec Bank robbers—If the Sheriff of Cook County hanged a man before me to teach me a lesson, I should say that he had succeeded only in hardening me toward the conduct of society in general. What he tried to do was to throw the fear of God in the hearts of a few men, but only succeeded in making them think worse of the human kind.

Capital punishment does not keep persons from committing murder. A man who commits crime does not figure its consequences, because he does not figure getting caught. If he did he wouldn't do it. A good thief goes into every job figuring success, and he goes with the same confidence that a business man enters a big financial deal.

Crooks I have come in contact with were men of more than average intelligence, whose cleverness had been developed along wrong lines. Were these men given proper educational facilities, which they deserve, they would have, in all probability, have commanded the respect of their fellow men.

I do not believe an object lesson as to the ultimate results of crime, as attempted by the Chicago Sheriff, does any material good, because each criminal, for himself, will say the lesson does not apply to him.

JOHN DOUGHERTY, one of the "Kid" Becker slayers: I would not care to see a hanging from the jail. I am here for a first offense, and if I were to witness a hanging with an opportunity of freedom later I believe it would have a terrible effect on me. I believe it would make me hesitate, knowing the consequences. I don't believe a Sheriff could make me look at such a thing, but for those who did perhaps it would have a beneficial effect in deterring them from a like crime. However, I am sure there are some men upon whom such a lesson would fall flat. Since I have been in here—nine months in all—some have come back the third time.

MARTIN HULBERT, convicted of killing a Kroger store manager: I think a man who could devise the scheme of the Chicago Sheriff to improve other men is himself a menace to the public. Such a proceeding to inject moral fear in men

New System of Fat Reduction

Here's a new way for all fat people to laugh together at that old bugaboo—Obesity. The saying that "there is nothing new under the sun" does not now apply to fat people any more. Here is something new for them—a new sensation, a new pleasure, a new and graceful figure, easily found by anyone who is passing beyond the limits of slimness. Everyone has heard of the Marmola Prescription; that harmless combination of fat-defying elements discovered by one of our foremost physicians. Now, from the same high authority, there comes another idea—the idea of condensing these same pure, harmless ingredients into a pleasant little tablet. Taken after eating and at bedtime, they help the stomach to dispose of all the fatty foods, converting them into compact, solid flesh, muscle and energy, without dieting or exercise. Marmola Prescription Tablets regulate the entire system—do for you what bodily exertion and self-denial cannot do, and the fat, once routed, is gone for good. You can prove all this at a trifling cost. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists or sent postpaid by the Marmola Co., 864 Woodward Av., Detroit, Mich., A large case—sufficient to bring lasting results—is but $1.

"A Godsend" says one user of "More Eggs."

I received your "More Eggs" Tonic and found it was a great Godsend. I was only getting 12 eggs a day, and now I am getting 50 per day.
MYRTLE ICE, Boston, Ky.

400,000 Poultry Raisers Praise "More Eggs"

The few letters printed below voice the sentiment of over 400,000 poultry raisers in all parts of America who have bought, tried and tested my "MORE EGGS" tonic. Their experience is a true sign of what you may expect and can do in increasing your egg yield through the use of "MORE EGGS," the most wonderful egg producer known.

"More Eggs" Paid the Pastor

I can't express in words how much I have been benefited by "More Eggs." I have paid my debts, clothed the children in new dresses, and that is not all—I paid my pastor his dues. I sold [illegible] dozen eggs last week, set 4 dozen, ate some and had 1½ dozen left.
MRS. LENA McBROON, Woodbury, Tenn.

1200 Eggs from 29 Hens

The "More Eggs" Tonic did wonders for me. I had 29 hens when I got the tonic and was getting 3 or 4 eggs a day. April 1st I had over 1200 eggs. I never saw the equal.
EDW. MEKKER, Pontiac, Mich.

$200 Worth of Eggs from 44 Hens

I never used "More Eggs" Tonic until last December; then just used one $1.00 package and have sold over $200 worth of eggs from 44 hens. "More Eggs" Tonic did it.
A. G. THODE, Sterling, Kans., R. No. 2, Box 47.

1368 Eggs After One Package

Last fall I bought a package of your "More Eggs" Tonic and would like to have you know the result. From January 1st to July 1st my hens laid 1368 eggs.
A. E. WHITE, Scranton, Pa.

1707 Eggs in 21 Days

I read the report of the woman poultry raiser in Waverly, Mo., only ten miles from Dover getting 1500 eggs from 160 hens in 21 days. I have that record beaten a country block. I have only [illegible] hens and in 21 days I got 1707 eggs. Beat that if you can. I am feeding "More Eggs" to my hens.
MRS. WILLARD SMITH, Dover, Mo.

858 Eggs in 21 Days—Used Two Boxes of "More Eggs"

I have fed about two packages of your egg tonic to 60 hens and have gotten 858 eggs from Jan. 21 to Feb. 11, and I think that is wonderful.
MRS. ERNEST RUBISON, Republic, Mo.

Gets 35 Eggs Instead of 5

I have used Reefer's "More Eggs" Tonic only two weeks and can see a great improvement in my hens. I get from 30 to 35 eggs a day now. Before I started using "More Eggs" Tonic I got 4 or 5 Eggs a day.
MRS. W. T. JOHNSON, Box 96, Pelican, La.

Didn't Get an Egg Until Using "More Eggs"

Enclosed find check for $5.00 to pay for "More Eggs" Tonic. We have 200 hens and have not got an egg for two months until we began to feed your tonic. Please send me your agents' terms. It will sell very well.
JOS. E. McKEE, Norton, Kans.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN,

This is to certify that Mr. E. J. Reefer has deposited in this Bank Ten Thousand Dollars. Out of this special fund this Bank is authorized and does hereby guarantee to return to any of Mr. Reefer's customers the total amount of their purchases from him, if the goods purchased are not entirely satisfactory in every way or if Mr. Reefer fails to do as he agrees.

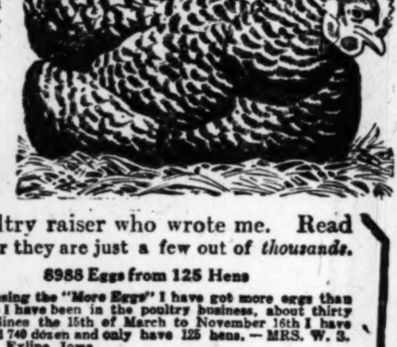
Very truly yours,
[illegible]
Vice President.

You, too—

can get more eggs from your hens. Surely, if Reefer's "More Eggs" can bring such wonderful results for 400,000 chicken raisers, all over the country, it can do the same for you. Read the letters:—double, yes triple egg production! Don't hesitate. Read my free offer. You take no risk. Results guaranteed. Send the coupon (no money) at once.

160 Hens 1500 Eggs

LAST winter eggs sold as high as $1.00 a dozen. I predict that this winter eggs will go even higher. This is my judgment as America's foremost poultry expert. Poultry raisers are going to reap tremendous profits. You, too, can make sure of a big egg yield by giving your hens a few cents' worth of Reefer's "More Eggs" Tonic. This product has already been tried, tested and proven by 400,000 chicken raisers. It has stood the test of years and is acknowledged the best and most successful egg producer on the market today. Every day that you don't use it means that you are losing money. Start with a few cents' worth of Reefer's "More Eggs" Tonic. Act now!



Got 117 Eggs Instead of 3

That's the experience of one enthusiastic poultry raiser who wrote me. Read the wonderful testimonials printed below and remember they are just a few out of thousands.

160 Hens—1500 Eggs

I have fed 2 boxes of "More Eggs" to my hens and I think they have broken the egg record. I have 160 White Leghorns and in exactly 21 days I got 125 dozen eggs.—MRS. H. M. PATTON, Waverly, Mo.

27 Eggs Instead of 1

I began feeding "More Eggs" Tonic to my flock of hens in November. At that time I was getting one egg every other day. Then on Dec. 5th I brought in 27, which is pretty good for this time of the year. I think "More Eggs" Tonic is fine.—MRS. E. H. PALMER, Dundee, Mich.

8988 Eggs from 125 Hens

Since using the "More Eggs" I have got more eggs than any time I have been in the poultry business, about thirty years. Since the 15th of March to November 16th I have marketed 740 dozen and only have 125 hens.—MRS. W. S. DEAHL, Exline, Iowa.

1368 Eggs After 1 Package

Last fall I bought a box of your "More Eggs". From January 1st to July 1st my hens laid 1368 eggs.—A. E. WHITE, Scranton, Pa.

PASSING UP A CORNER COSTS MOTORMAN $13

Car Was Behind Schedule, but Judge Says It Must Stop for Passengers.

The pastime of racing merrily by corners where would-be passengers are waiting is likely to be less popular among United Railways motormen in the future, following a fine of $10 and cost, or $13 in all, which was assessed yesterday in Police Court against August Schulenberg, a motorman on the Wellston line. It was testified that he passed up several persons who wished to board his car at Seventh street and Franklin avenue, shortly after noon on Jan. 2.

"Working people," announced Judge Mix, "are entitled to have street cars stop at the crossings when they are waiting in the customary place."

As has been related, one of the baffled passengers was Policeman Mitchell of the Angelica street station. He and the others were so incensed that he caught the next car, following Schulenberg to the car sheds, and arrested him on general principles.

Later it was recalled that an ordinance existed making it a misdemeanor for a motorman to pass by would-be passengers, if signaled to stop at a regular crossing, unless all the seats in the car are occupied, and another car, following the same route throughout, is not more than 300 feet behind.

Counsel for the United Railways placed Schulenberg's conductor, L. M. Mayfield, on the stand to testify that all the seats on the car were occupied. Evidence was then sought to show that the motorman was not signaled by hand, but Judge Mix ruled that if persons stand out in the street at a customary stopping place, this is signal enough for all sensible persons.

W. D. Loudermilk, motorman on the Wellston car following Schulenberg's, testified that when he turned into Franklin avenue from Broadway he saw the preceding car at Seventh street, two blocks away. The question rose as to whether the two cars were 300 feet or more apart. Judge Mix offered to obtain the exact measurement from the Street Department, whereupon counsel for the United Railways admitted it was probably more than 300 feet.

Schulenberg testified he was trying to make up time, as he was four minutes late in starting the westbound trip. He saw some persons at Seventh street, he said, but was not signaled and sped on by.

FORCING PRISONERS TO WITNESS HANGING IS DISCUSSED

should be met by some drastic punishment by law for the perpetrator. I don't see how witnessing such a spectacle is calculated to improve one. On the contrary, I believe it would have a tendency to make the witnesses more callous and hardhearted. My idea is that if men in jail get the idea that they are subjected to such treatment it would make them worse men than they are reputed to be. I see no moral lesson in it, and don't think it would be a good practice as public policy.

CHARLES BERGMAN, Meramec Bank robber: According to the way I figure it that was not much of a stunt at Chicago. Men don't kill people because they give it any thought. If a man is going to commit a crime he don't figure to kill anyone. The Chicago Sheriff's act might deter a few younger men in crime, but not others. Crimes for which men hang are committed because of necessity. You take our case. We wanted to give up before hurting anyone, but we couldn't. We didn't have a chance. Sergt. O'Brien told his comrades to shoot to kill. It was a case of try and save ourselves. You never know what you will do until you are placed right up against it. I don't see how any good is going to come out of letting prisoners see hangings.

JERRY ROBINSON, who killed a negro: I see no good in criminals witnessing hangings. Many of them know before they start out that if they kill they will hang. What's in a man's mind to do he will do, I believe. Some fellows have done some things to me since I've been in jail that I don't deserve, and if I get out of here I'll kill them.

JAMES MITCHELL, who killed a policeman, said he believed if men could see the punishment they would get for killing it might make them think and keep them from the crime of murder.

HAROLD HILLEBRAND, who was convicted for killing a shoe repairer: I don't think Sheriffs should be permitted to hold hangings where prisoners can see them. I know I should never forget such a thing.

JUDGE POLLOCK ORDERS INQUIRY INTO TESTIMONY BEFORE MASTER

Conduct of Witnesses in Sherman Firm's Injunction Suit to Be Investigated.

District Attorney Hensley yesterday was directed by Federal Judge Pollock to take up with the Federal Grand Jury the testimony that was given before Special Master Matt G. Reynolds in the suit of the Sherman Service Corporation against J. W. Sterne and N. O. Shively, former employes of the Sherman corporation, to restrain them from engaging in a business similar to that of the Sherman corporation, which is the investigating of the industrial conditions in manufacturing plants and the activities of union organizations.

It was alleged that certain witnesses in the case had been paid money to furnish affidavits against the defendants. At the hearing before Master Reynolds several witnesses made conflicting statements.

Judge Pollock's order directing a grand jury investigation is for determining if any false statements were made under oath, and, if such was the case, for the further purpose of taking such action as the District Attorney and grand jury deem advisable.

CONROY'S

An Institution That Sells Only the Best Pianos and Players

A Business becomes an Institution when the experience of an ever-increasing number of satisfied customers attests the soundness of its policies through many years of successful public service. Such an Institution is the House of Conroy.

Its established policies have been founded on the following principles:

1. Limiting its field to Pianos and Players only, and thus securing exclusive representation for the finest Pianos and Players obtainable.

EXCLUSIVE REPRESENTATIVE FOR THE AMPICO
in the
KNABE, HAINES BROS.
and
MARSHALL & WENDELL PIANOS

2. Selling only instruments which Conroy's experts have tested and found to measure up to the high standard in tone value, construction and perfect finish set by this institution.
3. An absolute one price policy.
4. A simple, clear-cut guarantee of every Piano or Player sold.

Continued adherence to these successful principles of music merchandising has given Conroy's a dominant position in the St. Louis piano field.

Your own youngster can purchase a Piano or Player from Conroy's with the same assurance of perfect satisfaction to you, as though it had been selected by Rachmaninoff himself.

Special Purchase & Sale of Hart Schaffner & Marx Finest Suits

Copyright, 1919, Hart Schaffner & Marx.

This great sale is very unusual

It is very unusual that such a sale of fine suits such as this one which we now feature is possible—conditions would not ordinarily justify it, but through our close co-operation with Hart Schaffner & Marx, the greatest makers of fine clothing, we are able to keep pace with our precedence of the institution of just such an exceptional sale as this as a regular yearly feature of our business

All new merchandise is featured in this great purchase and sale of Hart Schaffner & Marx finest suits—beautiful, new all-wool fabrics styled correctly for young men and men—many of the models being later creations than those shown in our earlier Fall stock Come here now and save from $6 to $21 on the finest clothes made

At Death's Door

"I was talking with my neighbor, Mr. Webb, the other day, regarding the great trouble his stomach had given him. He said he suffered 7 or 8 years, and had been almost at death's door a number of times from acute indigestion and bloating of gas, which seemed to shut off his heart action. He said he wouldn't have lived much longer if he hadn't taken Mayr's Wonderful Remedy when he did, which made a well man of him." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Judge & Dolph's 8 Stores, Enderle Drug Co.'s 5 Stores, Cloughly-Koppenbrink, Cloughly Bros.' FATHERS OF DEAD SOLDIERS WILL ASK FOR BODIES' RETURN

Will Meet Secretary Baker in Company With Other Parents From Eastern Cities.

Five St. Louisans, fathers of soldiers who lost their lives in France, departed yesterday noon for Washington, where they will meet representatives of Bring-Home-the-Soldier-Dead League of Chicago, Pittsburg, and several eastern cities and interview Secretary Baker to induce him to urge the immediate return of the soldiers' bodies.

The five represent the St. Louis branch of the organization which was formed here two weeks ago. They are Morris Goldman, Charles Duncker, Chris Sodeman, Thomas Skinker, and J. C. Ziegler. The French Government has asked that the bodies remain undisturbed until 1922 and the national organization was established to appeal to Congress for immediate action.

Headquarters of the delegates will be in the rooms of Justice McCoy of the District of Columbia.

Don't Despair Over Poor Complexion

If Pimpled, Blotched or Covered in Spots With Rash Just Use Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

Lay aside for a time your face creams, lotions, etc., and use Stuart's Calcium Wafers. Simply take them after meals. No effort whatever. Then note the difference. Small wonder that these remarkable wafers are sold in every drug store throughout the U. S. and Canada.

Don't despair if your face is covered with pimples, blotches, liver spots or your skin is covered in spots with tetter, rash, etc. Just use Stuart's Calcium Wafers for a short time and see how nicely you will clear up your skin.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers are sold by all druggists everywhere. Price 50 cents a box.

STOP CATARRH! OPEN NOSTRILS AND HEAD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Relieves Head-Colds at Once.

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed and you can't breathe freely because of a cold or catarrh, just get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream into your nostrils and let it penetrate through every air passage of your head, soothing and healing the inflamed, swollen mucous membrane and you get instant relief.

Ah! How good it feels. Your nostrils are open, your head is clear, no more hawking, snuffling, blowing; no more headache, dryness or struggling for breath. Ely's Cream Balm is just what sufferers from head colds and catarrh need. It's a delight.

3 GIRLS CARRIED FROM BEDS BY BURGLARS

Their Screams in Each Instance Cause Them to Be Dropped By Intruders.

Kidnaping in one of its milder forms has apparently been added to the activities of one or more of the burglars operating in the city during the last fortnight. Three times in that period intruders have carried young girls from their rooms to the outside of their homes, in each instance dropping them when the victim's screams aroused members of their families or neighbors.

The latest incident of the kind occurred early yesterday morning when a burglar in the home of Walter Rick of 3218 Dodier street, lifted Rick's daughter, Viola, 12 years old, from her bed and carried her to a passageway between two houses across the street from her home. The intruder dropped her in the snow and fled after her screams had aroused her father and neighbors.

Taken to Back Yard.

Miss Mildred Bunda, 16 years old, of 2320 Madison street, had a similar experience at 4:15 a. m. Friday and at 5:15 a. m. Dec. 30, Mildred Rostick, 10 years old, of 4249 North Prairie avenue, was carried into the back yard of her home by a burglar.

The burglar got into the Rick home by "jimmying" the back door. After taking $26 from Rick's trousers he went to a side room where Viola and two younger sisters were sleeping and picked up Viola. She evidently did not wake up until the cold air was reached, as she afterwards told her parents that the burglar was crossing the street when she discovered she was not in bed.

Younger Sisters Scream.

The two younger sisters screamed when they missed Viola and their father ran to the front door, which had been left open by the burglar. Rick heard Viola screaming for help across the street and found her lying in the snow between two houses where she had been dropped by the intruder. Neighbors, attracted by the child's screams, aided the father in a search for the man, but found no trace of him. Footprints indicated he had fled through a back yard to an alley.

The Bunda girl was awakened Friday morning by a draught from a window, which the burglar had opened after entering the house through a back door. She arose to close the window and the burglar grabbed her about the waist and carried her under his arm to the back porch. She screamed and he dropped her as he was going down the steps to the yard. He had taken 75 cents, a street car token, a watch and a cigar from her father's clothes.

Mildred Rostick was found in a coal shed in the rear of her home after her mother, awakened by her screams, made a search for her. The child had a scratch on her neck, which she said the burglar had inflicted in choking her to stop her outcry. A gold watch and $8 were taken from the Rostick home.

Cavalry Associations Ball.

The twenty-eighth annual masquerade ball of the Italian-American Cavalry Association will be given tonight at Trimp's Hall, 4458 Delmar boulevard. The festival committee comprises Joseph Pebaz, chairman; Joseph Comotto, John Mazzoni, Emil Vescovo and Zenaro Capporallo.

No Bust Pads

NOW. Use the National

"Bust developed 5 inches," says Mrs. Allendorf.

"The first three weeks bust developed 3¼ in.," reports Dr. Allendorf.

Only Real Bust Developer

The National is the special Bust Developer Dr. C. S. Carr formerly recommended in the Physical Culture Magazine as the only safe, reliable method known for enlarging the bust in a natural way. Of this method, Dr. Carr said: "Indeed, it will bring about a development of the busts quite astonishing."

This has been proven over and over by those using The National. In reports sent us some have obtained as much as fine inches development by following Dr. Carr's instructions.

Valuable Book FREE

If you want a beautiful, plump, full bust, write for our valuable book on bust development, containing the article by Dr. Carr, in which he tells specifically the causes of non-development and how the bust may be developed harmlessly to its most beautiful proportions. Sent free to every woman in need of development. If you wish book sent sealed, inclose 6c postage.

WE TEACH COMMERCIAL ART

NOW you can get PRACTICAL, RESULTFUL training in Commercial Art. The Meyer Both Company, known the world over as the largest art organization in the field, is training students the practical way. Meyer Both studies are based upon 19 years of most successful experience. The Meyer Both Company pays to artists in its employ hundreds of thousands of dollars each year—among them Meyer Both trained artists earning $6,000, $8,000, $10,000, and more per year. You constantly see Meyer Both illustrations in the leading newspapers, magazines, posters and direct advertising all over U. S. and Canada. This training has brought success to some artists who have failed to make good after studying elsewhere.

The Meyer Both College teaches you the fundamentals of art, AND MORE—it teaches their practical application to commercial purposes. Commercial Art is Dollar Art—practical art for practical purposes. When you take up your studies in the Meyer Both College, you get the benefits of active contact with the dominant organization in THE VERY FIELD YOU ARE SEEKING SUCCESS. Who else could teach you so well and so resultfully?

The demand for commercial artists is greater every year—the shortage today is acute. It's a highly paid, intensely interesting profession. The opportunity is equally open to men and women.

Meyer Both Company conducts its school in its own name—positive evidence of thoroughness and sincerity. You can reap the benefit of its practical teaching and individual instructions without disturbing your present occupation by the HOME STUDY METHOD.

Send 4c for this big special book, "YOUR OPPORTUNITY." It contains a wealth of information regarding Art in advertising and its market. It tells in pictures and figures what Meyer Both artists are doing and what you can expect to do.

are needed at once to become telephone operators in St. Louis. Over 400 girls have been added in the past four months to take care of the enormous increase in the number of daily calls.

THESE girls will have work that is pleasant, permanent and profitable. They will be paid a good salary even while they are learning the business, and that salary will be increased as soon as the training course is completed.

They will have rest rooms, locker rooms, lunches at cost, vacations with pay, and sickness benefits.

They will enter an honored occupation for girls at a time when the opportunities it offers for rapid advancement to higher positions are the greatest in its history.

YOU can be one of these one hundred and fifty girls, if you are 16 years of age or over, and can pass simple entrance requirements. Make application by telephoning Lindell 12080, or preferably by applying at

"LA LA LUCILLE" IS WEEK'S STAGE NOVELTY

Musical Farce at American—Charming "Maytime" Returns to Shubert-Jefferson.

"La La Lucille," a musical farce with a cast including the elongated and comical Sam Hardy, opens an engagement of eight nights and a Saturday matinee tonight at the American Theater, while the charming musical comedy, "Maytime," seen here last February, begins a week's return visit at the Shubert-Jefferson.

The offering at the American, according to the advance notices, will please those "who like a little spice in their plays," it is added that many of the situations, "though they seem otherwise," are harmless and meant for laughing purposes only. The book is by Fred Jackson, author of many successful farces. The music and lyrics are laid at the door of George Gershwin, Arthur J. Jackson and B. G. DeSilva. The play comes here from Chicago, after a New York run.

In the cast are the veteran J. Clarence Harvey, seen here in several Winter Garden shows; Florence Mackie, Marguerite McNulty, Charles J. Stine, Cordelia MacDonald, Tom Collins, Marjorie Bentley, John Lowe, Eleanor Daniels, Alfred Hall, Stanley Warner and Estar Banks. An attractive chorus is promised.

Appealing Music in "Maytime."

As remembered from last year, "Maytime" is lively with clever funmaking, melodious with appealing music, gallant in scenic dress, and informative as a panorama of American social life for the last three-quarters of a century. The curtain rises upon the New York of 1840; in the next scene P. T. Barnum and other celebrities are seen at Mme. Delphine's Night Club; the next scene is in the 'eighties, and the last one in the twentieth century. The same characters and their descendants figure throughout the play, and the scenes are bound together by a beautiful story of love forever lost and enduring forever. Two musical numbers remain in the memory, a pretty song, "Will You Remember Me?" and a polka, "Jump Jim Crow."

Miss Carolyn Thompson, who sings sweetly and looks and acts charmingly, returns in the part of Ottillie Van Zandt. Melvin Stokes will have the part of Richard Wayne, sung here before by John Charles Thomas, now in the Kreisler operetta "Apple Blossoms." William Morris comedian, who originated the role of Matthew Van Zandt, will appear in it here. John T. Murray was the Matthew of last year. Others in the cast are Douglas Wood, Arthur Albro, Tebby Webb, Edna and Genevieve Temple, Amy Leicester, Edward F. Nannary, Nina Valieri, Ruth Watson, Iseth Munro and William Blaisdell.

Margaret Anglin Next Week.

Margaret Anglin in "The Woman of Bronze," is promised at the American for the week beginning Monday, Jan. 19; for the following week the American announces Eddie Leonard in his new musical comedy "Roly Boly Eyes." The Shubert-Jefferson's announcements for the next two weeks are respectively "Business Before Pleasure" and "Fifty-Fifty," a musical comedy.

Stella Mayhew, popular comedienne, and Julius Tannen, most voluble of monologists, are leading attractions on this week's bill at the Orpheum. Other attractions are George Kelly in "The Flattering Word;" A. Robbins, "the walking music store;" Frank Burt and Myrtle Rosedale in "The Substitute;" a farce, called "Sweeties;" Ted Doner and "The Royal Gascoignes." The Standard offers "The Social Follies," and the Gayety, Dave Marion.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE AND RIALTO GO TO EASTERN FIRM

Delaware Corporation Leases Theaters—Cella-Tate Interest to Retain Voice in Management.

Negotiations begun some time ago by a Delaware corporation to obtain control of the Grand Opera House and the Rialto Theater, owned by the Cella-Tate interests, were concluded yesterday and leases for the two properties were acquired by the Eastern concern.

At the offices of Frank R. Tate in the Central National Bank Building, it was stated that the Cella-Tate interests will retain some connection with the management of the theaters, but details were refused. Information as to the amount involved in the local deal also was unobtainable. The Delaware corporation, it was said, is negotiating for theaters in other cities, involving the expenditure of about $15,000,000.

TWO SPRINGFIELD LAWYERS WILL HELP STATE IN U. R. CASE

Circuit Attorney Engages Attorneys to Aid in Prosecution of McCulloch and Cameron.

Circuit Attorney McDaniel yesterday made it known that he spent Friday in Springfield, Mo., and while there engaged the services of two Springfield lawyers to aid him in the prosecution of Richard McCulloch, former general manager, and Bruce Cameron, former transportation superintendent of the United Railways Co. who are to be tried there on charges of burglary and larceny in connection with the theft of United Railways settlement ordinance referendum petitions.

The lawyers engaged are Samuel M. Wear and O. J. Page, Prosecuting Attorney of Greene County.

The cases against McCulloch and Cameron were taken to Springfield on a change of venue and are expected to come up for trial at the March term, which opens on the last Monday in March.

Hair Trouble Successfully Treated
CALVACURA STOPS HAIR FALLING
THE CALVACURA METHOD is a scientific, natural method, invariably producing gratifying results

Mrs. John Malouin writes: "The sample box started a growth of new hair and I am so pleased I am sending for a full treatment."

Mr. Frank H. Wright says: "Your Calvacura No. 1 cured me, also my brother-in-law, and I can recommend it to anyone."

If You Suffer from Dandruff, Falling Hair, Prematurely Gray Hair, Stripy, Sticky or Matted Hair, Itching or Eczema of the Scalp, or if you are becoming bald, do not neglect it; relieve the trouble at once.

Simple Test. If hairs adhere to your comb, examine them closely. If the root is pale, dry, dead looking, take warning; correct the trouble if you want to save your hair and make it grow.

Let Us Prove to you by sending you a Sample Treatment and our illustrated book, "The Triumph of Science Over Baldness," that the Calvacura Natural Method of Hair Culture stops the falling of hair, drives away dandruff or eczema of the scalp and promotes the growth of new hair.

We will send a liberal sample of Calvacura No. 1 and our illustrated book on the care of the hair and scalp, if you will write your name and address plainly on a piece of paper, enclose it with ten cents, silver or stamps, as evidence of your good faith, in an envelope addressed

If You Are Ruptured, Give Yourself a Fair Chance

FOR the benefit of readers we take pleasure in publishing the Brooks offer to save all who are ruptured from wearing painful makeshift trusses that do not cure.

The Brooks Appliance Co. gladly sends their remarkable patented Appliance ON TRIAL to prove that it holds the rupture back, keeps it in place, prevents it coming down or slipping out and finally assists Nature to heal up the rupture.

No man or woman ever can look and feel his or her best while suffering the torment, pain and discomfort of rupture.

Every day that you suffer from rupture—every hour of truss torture that you endure—after you read this page is your own fault.

For many years we have been telling you that no makeshift truss will ever help you. We have told you about the harm ill-fitting trusses are doing. We have told you that the only truly comfortable, sanitary and scientific device for holding Rupture is the Brooks Rupture Appliance.

Now we offer to prove it to you, entirely at our risk. We will send you a Brooks Repture Appliance on trial. If you really want to be rid of your rupture fill out the coupon below and mail it today.

Instead of wearing a steel spring or inflexible harness, try the velvet-soft Brooks Appliance.

Instead of the old hard or stuffed pad, use the soft rubber automatic air cushion of a Brooks Appliance.

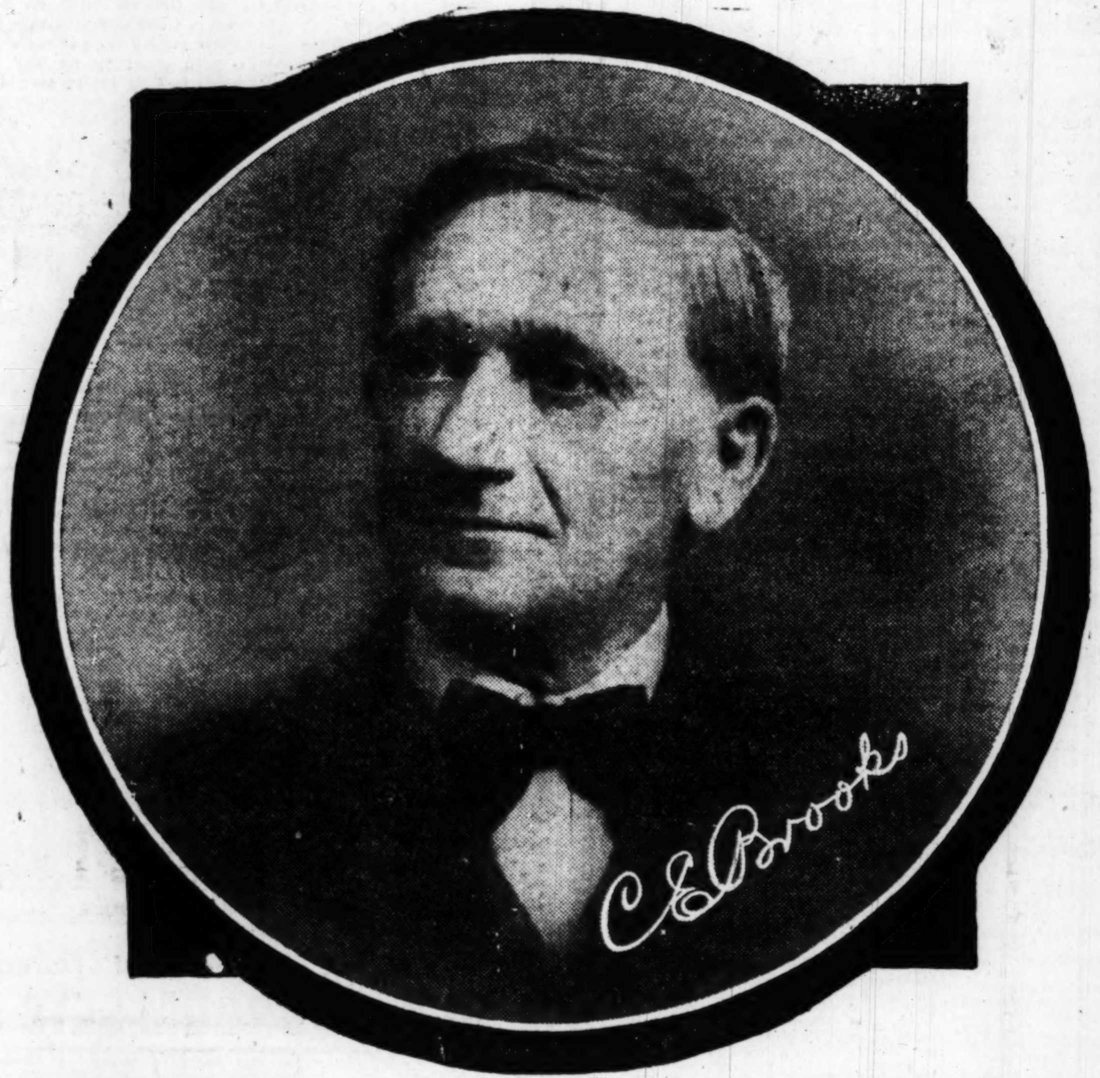
The Brooks Appliance clings to you without force and you are hardly concious of its presence. But above all else, it HOLDS Always.

Within an hour after you receive the Brooks Appliance, if you take advantage of this remarkable trial offer, you will throw away your truss forever.

Over 685,000 People Have Accepted This Offer Why Not You?

Doesn't that prove that the Brooks Appliance is not an experiment, but a positive success—that it does all we claim for it? Among these 685,000 men, women and children there must be hundreds whose condition was identical with yours. Can you afford not to investigate and satisfy yourself when it costs you nothing to prove what the Brooks Appliance will do for you?

This wonderful device is a triumph of scientific and mechanical genius, the outcome of more than 30 years' experience, and the results accomplished by its use are little short of miraculous.



Mr. C. E. Brooks, Inventor of the Appliance. Mr. Brooks cured himself of rupture over 30 years ago and patented the Appliance from his personal experience. If ruptured, write TODAY to the Brooks Appliance Company, Marshall, Michigan.

Many hundreds of physicians and surgeons recommend the Brooks Appliance and condemn makeshift trusses as more harmful and dangerous than any other method of retaining and treating rupture. Thousands of people have written us testifying to the amazing results they have secured from this great invention. Many of these people live right in your vicinity and we will be glad to send you copies of their thankful letters if you will ask for them when you write.

Men, Women and Children Find the Brooks Appliance Equally Effective.

No matter if your rupture is old and severe or only recently developed, no matter if you are young or old, you should not fail to profit by this No-Risk Trial Offer.

No other rupture support, truss, lock, device, pad or plaster is offered to the public under so broad a guarantee of satisfaction.

If for any reason whatever you do not wish to keep the Brooks Appliance after you try it, send it back. You don't have to give any reason. You are to be the sole judge. There will be no argument, no dispute or misunderstanding.

Ten Reasons Why You Should Accept This Offer.

It is absolutely the only Appliance embodying the principles that inventors have sought after for years.

The Appliance for retaining the rupture cannot be thrown out of position.

Being an air cushion of soft rubber it clings closely to the body, yet never blisters or causes irritation.

Unlike ordinary so-called pads, it is not cumbersome or ungainly.

It is small, soft and pliable, and positively cannot be detected through the clothing.

The soft, pliable bands do not give the unpleasant sensation of wearing a harness.

There are no metal springs in the Appliance to torture one by cutting and and bruising the flesh.

All materials are the very best that money can buy, making it a durable and safe Appliance to wear.

Our reputation is so thoroughly established and our prices so reasonable, our terms so fair, that you should not hesitate to send the free coupon today.

The Brooks Appliance Co.

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers You.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness and bladder irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids so they no longer irritate, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and other organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

K. OF C. PLAN NIGHT SCHOOL FOR SERVICE MEN IN ST. LOUIS

Free Instruction on Business and Professional Subjects to Be Provided by War Fund.

Plans are being formed by the Knights of Columbus for the establishment of a free night school in St. Louis for discharged soldiers, sailors and marines, according to W. J. Moriarity, director of the Central Southern department of that organization.

Ten million dollars of the war activities fund remaining on hand will be spent in the establishment and maintenance of schools of this type in all the large cities of the country, Moriarity said yesterday. The subjects that will be taught are salesmanship, accountancy, motor mechanics, stenography, business English, commercial law, mechanical drawing and any other for which there is sufficient demand. Registrations will be received on Feb. 1 in Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Fort Wayne, Springfield and Peoria, Ill., and Oklahoma City, Dallas and Fort Worth of this district.

Only certified teachers will be employed in the schools, and all instruction and text-books will be furnished free. A registration of at least 2000 is expected when the school is opened in St. Louis.

Church Social for Young People.

The Rev. Dr. Benjamin Young, pastor of Union Methodist Episcopal Church, 3610 Delmar boulevard, will preach at 11 o'clock today on the subject, "The Church We Forgot," and in the evening on "If I Were You." The young people of the church will have a social time in Luccock Lodge, adjoining the church, from 4 to 7 o'clock, including supper and informal program.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Lustre at Once.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant, and you appear years younger.

ENDS STUBBORN COUGHS IN A HURRY

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It is very easily prepared, and really there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a pint bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, the full pint saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft Wayne, Ind.

Blood-Iron Phosphate for Weak, Thin Folks

Weak, thin, nervous people almost invariably owe their condition to lack of phosphate in the nerves and lack of iron in the blood. One of the surest, quickest and safest ways in which to make up the deficiency is to take with each meal a five-grain tablet of digestible phosphate and iron known among druggists here as Blood-Iron Phosphate, because it supplies iron to the blood as well as phosphate to the nervous system. People who have tried it say that one five-grain tablet taken with each meal quickly restores depleted nervous energy, enriches the blood, increases strength, vitality and endurance, and those who are too thin usually put on pounds of solid stay-there flesh in a short time. Inasmuch as Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Johnson Bros.' Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and all other druggists are authorized to sell Blood-Iron Phosphate under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back, every thin, weak, nervous or anemic man or woman should give it a trial without delay.

Important—Blood-Iron Phosphate is sold only in original packages, containing enough for three weeks' treatment at $1.50 per package—only 50 cents a week.

SURVEY OF RESULTS OF DEMOCRACY IN INDUSTRIAL PLANTS

Majority of Concerns Using Plan, in Reports to Associated Industries, Announce Benefits.

BOTH SIDES USUALLY GET SATISFACTION

System Most Commonly Practiced Is Organization Like Our Government, With House and Senate.

Instances of the workings of industrial democracy plans, for the representation of employes in the management of industrial plants, have been compiled by the Associated Industries of Missouri, from data furnished in answer to inquiries. The office of the Associated Industries of Missouri is in the Security building.

The result of the inquiries has been announced in a bulletin sent to members, with the statement that the organization does not indorse or oppose any of the plans, but invites consideration and criticism of them.

The bulletin states that the plan most commonly referred to as industrial democracy is that introduced by John Leitch. It is modeled after the Federal Government. It provides for a house of representatives composed of representatives elected by wage-earning employes, a Senate composed of heads of departments and foremen, and a cabinet composed of the company's executives. These bodies hold meetings at stated periods on the company's time. They initiate and act upon measures relating to wages and working conditions. All such measures must be approved by the cabinet before they become effective. The plan includes a production dividend paid weekly or monthly, based on the percentage of saving in the cost of production.

Experiences of Users.

The Packard Piano Co. of Fort Wayne, Ind., whose motto is: "If there is no harmony in the factory, there will be none in the piano," has used the industrial democracy plan for six years, the bulletin states, with results which their president says, "have exceeded our fondest expectations." He adds: "Since putting this plan into operation we have not had a disagreement of any kind. We have had matters where there was need for adjustment, but there has always been a spirit of co-operation and fair play underlying every case."

Another user of this plan is the American Multigraph Co. of Cleveland, whose president, H. C. Osborn, speaks very highly of it in interviews and magazine articles. He is especially impressed with the fact that the close relationship established with the employes has resulted in the suggestion by employes of many labor-saving devices and improvements in manufacturing methods, which have been adopted with profit to the company.

"Both Sides Satisfied."

The president of the Passaic Metalware Co., of Passaic, N. J., where industrial democracy has been in operation about a year, writes: "Both our employes and the company's officers are thoroughly satisfied with industrial democracy, and we see no reason why it should not be successful anywhere, if the management particularly will put the right spirit into the work. In our opinion if every business in this country were an industrial democracy, there would be no strikes, no labor union, no discord of any kind—there can't be where the rule is applied of fifty-fifty between employer and employe."

Sidney Blumenthal & Co., Inc., New York, have been operating their fabric mills with 1800 employes under industrial democracy for about three years. Sidney Blumenthal, president of the company, says in a letter:

"An example of what we have been able to do in the past is clearly shown by our proposition to install a double shift in our plant. The management showed to the house of representatives and senate that by running the machinery more time, it would be possible to work less hours for the employes. This was taken up by a committee from the house and senate, and they proposed a plan which was accepted and adopted by the congress.

Quality of Goods Improved.

"This and all other matters come up in the house and under industrial democracy, the quality has increased from 73 per cent perfect goods to over 90 per cent perfect goods, and in doing this the quantity has not lessened."

That the plan is not absolute insurance against labor trouble is shown by the comment of William Demuth & Co., of New York:

"You may have heard about a strike which occurred in our plant over six weeks ago. It was started by an outside agitator whose business it is to formulate unions where none have existed before. He had no end of difficulty in getting our people to follow him, and therefore resorted to all kinds of intimidations and succeeded in pulling out about 60 per cent of our people. When we found that those who remained loyal were intimidated to a dangerous degree, we closed our plant for two weeks, and resumed

They're Going in "Double Quick Time"—Why Shouldn't They—At These Price Reductions!

You know overcoats of the same quality cost less if bought from the maker—middlemen's profits, etc., are eliminated. Therefore a little sound reasoning on your part will tell you this sale is the one big selling event in this man's town by a big margin—the savings are nearly double, because it's the maker's prices that are reduced.

Just think of it—buying a Bond all wool overcoat for $26.50 or $36.50 while a lot of people are telling you the $100 overcoat is a "fixture."

The uncertainty of prices for next season is responsible for this sale now. While prices may be higher, they may be lower or the same—it's impossible to tell. We do away with this uncertainty by disposing of present overcoats at these smashing price reductions.

Tells Friends He Is Not Dead.

EVANSVILLE, Ind. — Edward Vaughn, an oil man, formerly of Mt. Carmel, Ill., has returned to that town to prove to his friends that the report of his death "was greatly exaggerated." Vaughn left Mt. Carmel four years ago, and since then has been in oil fields in Oklahoma and Texas. He is now living at Mineral Springs, Tex. Some time ago a report wah circulated to the effect that Vaughn had been killed in Texas, and he said he came back to prove to his friends that it was false.

New Hair Growth After BALDNESS

HAIR GROWN ON MR. BRITTAIN'S BALD HEAD BY INDIANS' MYSTERIOUS HAIR GROWER

My head at the top and back was absolutely bald. The scalp was shiny. An expert said that as he thought the hair roots were extinct, and there was no hope of my ever having a new hair growth.

Yet now, at an age over 66, I have a luxuriant growth of soft, strong, lustrous hair! No trace of baldness. The pictures shown here are from my photographs.

At a time when I had become discouraged at trying various hair lotions, tonics, specialists' treatments, etc., I came across, in my travels, a Cherokee Indian "medicine man" who had an elixir that he asseverated would grow my hair. Although I had but little faith, I gave it a trial. To my amazement a light fuzz soon appeared. It developed, day by day, into a healthy growth, and ere long my hair was as prolific as in my youthful days.

That I was astonished and happy is expressing my state of mind mildly.

Obviously, the hair roots had not been dead, but were dormant in the scalp, awaiting the fertilizing potency of the mysterious pomade.

I negotiated for and came into possession of the principle for preparing this mysterious elixir, now called Kotalko, and later had the recipe put into practical form by a chemist.

That my own hair growth was permanent has been amply proved. Many men and women, also children, have reported satisfactory results from Kotalko.

How YOU May Grow YOUR Hair

My honest belief is, that hair roots rarely die even when the hair falls out through dandruff, fever, excessive dryness or other disorders. I have been told by experts that often when hair falls out the roots become imbedded within the scalp, covered by hard skin, so that they remain for a time like bulbs or seeds in a bottle which will grow when fertilized. Shampoos (which contain alkalis) and hair lotions which contain alcohol are enemies to the hair, as they dry it, making it brittle. Kotalko contains those elements of nature which give new vitality to the scalp and hair.

WESTERN CANADA PROSPERING

Ten Thousand Farmers Added to Population in a Year.

WINNIPEG, Manitoba.—Ten thousand farmers have been added to the rural population of Canada's four Western provinces since last March, according to John Wardrop of the Industrial and Resources Department of the Canadian National Railway.

"This number," said Wardrop, "includes returned Canadian soldiers. Five hundred of these have located in the Saskatoon district and many more around Prince Albert, where all free land grants have been reserved for them. Many of the civilian settlers were of Canadian birth. Many city men have gone on the land. Many were from the Scandinavian countries. At least 50 per cent were from the United States. More than 200 branch banks of the chartered banks of Canada have been established in as many towns of the Canadian West during the year. There could be no better sign of prosperity than these new banks. Not only is Western Canada being rapidly settled, but the towns are showing a fine, steady development."

Course in Citizenship.

CHICAGO.—The American Library Association voted in favor of a $2,000,000 fund to be expended among other things for "education in citizenship and American ideals." The program also included provision for books for the blind, library branches in communities without free library service and circulation of books in army posts, on ships and in other Government and civic centers.

SURVEY OF RESULTS OF DEMOCRACY IN INDUSTRIAL PLANTS

business on Sept. 24, under the same conditions which existed when the men walked out. We have every confidence in industrial democracy and have decided to retain it as a permanent part of our organization.

Comment of Employe.

Harry Leibold, an employe of the Demuth company writes: "Industrial democracy has given us our say in the management of the shop; it has reduced our working hours per week from 53 to 48; it has given us insurance; it has given us a lunchroom where we can get good meals for 20 cents; it has made this shop a better place to work in; it is teaching English to our foreigners and helping them to become Americans; it has taught us that the firm has troubles and worries just the same as we have, and that by working and co-operating together we all benefit."

The Bethlehem Steel Co. of Bethlehem, Pa., which, as is known, was not seriously affected by the steel strike in operating under a plan of employe representation concerning which the company says:

"The Bethlehem plan, which has been in operation since October, 1918, we feel is no longer an experiment. The original by-laws made provisions for amendments, and, as was anticipated, we are, from time to time, making improvements and changes. The operation of the plan to date shows it to be fundamentally correct and in our judgment, has proven a success."

This plan specifically provides as do most of the others considered here, that there shall be no discrimination among employes on account of membership or nonmembership in a labor union.

Results Vary.

A firm with a less satisfactory experience is the Keystone Steel and Wire Co. of Peoria, Ill., which installed employe representation only a short time before the steel strike was called. The employment director writes:

"Just about the time our plan went into effect, our employes went on a strike, and, therefore, we have only settled one or two matters through the plan. We believe, however, that it will operate successfully."

Decisions are not always in favor of the employes, according to the Miller Lock Co. of Philadelphia, where employe representation has been in operation a year and a half. The employment director writes:

"A typical case that our shop committee handled was a reduction in hours below the standard working time. It meant a reduction in pay. Another deal was a case wherein the wages of the piece workers were reduced."

Readjustment Problem.

The problem of readjustment in the Leeds & Northrup Co. of Philadelphia, when the signing of the armistice caused cancellation of the company's large war orders, was solved by the industrial council of employes. The company had a greatly enlarged force which had been working overtime and was being paid accordingly. The company wished to avoid reducing the income of its employes which would result from the discontinuance of overtime work, but it could not afford to maintain the increased force and advance wages to an extent which would equal the amount paid when overtime was included. The management referred the matter to the Overtime Pay Committee of the Employes' Council, which recommended the following plan:

"A 10 per cent reduction in the manufacturing department employes, eliminating those who appeared to be least desirable, or unsuited to the work. A 10 per cent increase in the hourly rate of the remaining employes. Such reduction in the various nonproducing departments as the efficient conduct of the business would permit."

Settlement Effected.

The matter was adjusted in this way, apparently to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Other firms which have made reports on the working of employe-representation plans are the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. of Akron, O.; the Timken-Detroit Axle Co. of Detroit, the Duchess Manufacturing Co., clothing, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; and the Irving-Pitt Manufacturing Co. of Kansas City.

Object to American Motors.

BERLIN.—German builders of automobiles and motor trucks are protesting at the importation into Germany of American automobiles and lorries from occupied territory. It is charged that an attempt is being made by a newly organized company to ship into Germany 16,000 cars and trucks by way of Coblenz. Such a flooding of the German market, it is stated, would result in the discharge of many workers.

BIG ULCER ALL HEALED

"Now I Can Walk," Says Mrs. Southcott of Medina.

"Here is another letter that makes me happy," says Peterson of Buffalo, "one that I would rather have than a thousand dollars."

"Money isn't everything in this world. There is many a big hearted, rich man who would give all he has on earth to be able to produce a remedy with such mighty healing power as Peterson's Ointment, to sell at all druggists for 60 cents a large box."

Read this letter, written February 14, 1918, by Mrs. Albert Southcott, of Medina, N. Y. It seems like a miracle, but it is true, every word of it.

I know it because I get similar letters almost every day from people who have used my ointment for old sores, eczema and piles.

Is it any wonder I am happy!

Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.

Dear Sirs—

"I was an untold sufferer from an old running sore and ulcers I had tried most everything without any relief from pain. A friend told me of your wonderful ointment and the first box took away the pain that had not left me before in years, and after using just nine dollars worth of the salve I am cured. The ulcer was 9 inches by 6½ inches, is all healed and I can walk. Never, never will I be without Peterson's again.

"You may use this to recommend your ointment if you wish. I cannot say enough to praise it." Yours truly, Mrs. Albert Southcott, Medina, N. Y. Mail orders filled by Peterson Ointment Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Judge & Dolph, E. A. Medler, Enderle Drug Co. and Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. will supply you.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in; about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

How Can I Have Beautiful Hair And Skin?

In most cases by making Cuticura your every-day toilet preparations. Thus you have the delicate Cuticura medication applied in a natural and wholesome way, calculated to restore clogged, irritated skin pores to health, and health means beauty and purity.

If Your Complexion Is Marred

by clogged pores, pimples, blackheads, redness or roughness, gently smear the face, on rising, with Cuticura Ointment on the end of the finger. Wash off in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water, using plenty of soap, best applied with the hands, which it softens wonderfully, and continue bathing a few minutes. Finally dust on a few grains of Cuticura Talcum, the most fragrant and healthful of Talcum Powders.

If Dandruff Menaces Your Hair

touch spots of dryness, dandruff or itching, on retiring, with the Ointment on end of forefinger. Cover head for night. Next morning shampoo with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Rinse with tepid water. Repeat in two weeks if needed.

Then make these fragrant supercreamy emollients your every-day toilet preparations, and have as a result in most cases a clear, sweet, healthy skin, clean scalp, good hair and soft, white hands with little trouble and trifling expense.

Soap 25c, Ointment 25 and 50c, Talcum 25c. Sold throughout the world. For sample each free address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. O, Malden, Mass." Cuticura Soap shaves without mug.

The DOCTOR'S ADVICE

by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character; the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers should apply to any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Building, College-Ellwood streets, Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. Ther remedies can be obtained at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Elsie M." writes: "I have such short, stringy, straggling hair and my scalp is full of dandruff. Please advise what to do."

Answer: The best advice I can offer is simple. Get at a well-stocked drug store a 4-oz. jar of plain yellow Minyol, directions accompanying, and use it regularly. It promotes a healthy, vigorous growth of hair and abates dandruff, itching scalp, lusterless hair and stops falling hair. If the hair is harsh and straggling it restores a soft, fluffy appearance, and brings back the intense natural color.

"Hazelle" says: "I would certainly appreciate something that would increase my weight and take away that languid feeling which I am subject to most of the time. My blood is weak and watery and my appetite is poor."

Answer: Your condition is very easily overcome if you will follow the directions given below. Ask your druggist for 3-grain Hypo-Nuclane Tablets and take according to the directions and your weight should increase. These tablets promote assimilation, absorption and aid digestion, transform the complexion and figure. They should be taken regularly for several months.

"D. E. G." writes: "My rheumatism is getting worse all the time. I am getting so stiff that it makes it very hard for me to get around."

Answer: Get at the drug store the ingredients named, mix thoroughly and take a teaspoonful at mealtime and again at bedtime, and you should soon be entirely relieved of that disagreeable disease, rheumatism. Purchase 2 drams of iodide of potassium; ½ oz. of wine of colchicum; 4 drams of sodium salicylate; 1 oz. comp. fluid Balmwort; 1 oz. comp. essence Cardiol, and 5 ozs. of syrup sarsaparilla. This has satisfied thousands.

"A. J. C." writes: "I have suffered with a chronic cough for almost a year, and catch a fresh cold every few weeks. Nothing the doctor gives me helps, so I write to you."

Answer: You need a thorough laxative cough syrup, one that not only relieves but surely drives it from the system. The following regularly used will oust any curable cough or cold promptly: Obtain a 2½ oz. bottle of essence of Mentho-laxene, mix it with a home-made sugar syrup or honey as per directions on bottle.

"Secretary" writes: "I have pains in my spine and frightful headache in back of head, fainting spells, twitching and trembling, nervousness sleeplessness, loss of appetite and strength, and in fact am a 'has-been' when it comes to performing accustomed work and duties."

Answer: In all such cases the assimilative functions have not kept pace with waste functions and a powerful, harmless tonic treatment is needed. I find three-grain Cadomene Tablets unexcelled and astonishingly beneficial in such cases and advise them for you.

"Weakness" writes: "Have been doctoring for kidney trouble and now want your advice. Frequent desire is followed by burning pain and am very tender and sore over region of bladder. Also backache affects me dreadfully. Can hardly move when I awake in the morning. Weakness, too, is a symptom."

Answer: I think if you will take Balmwort Tablets regularly for a few weeks your kidneys and bladder will become normal and such symptoms vanish. This is unequaled for such complaints in my estimation.

"Poor H." writes: My health is very poor on account of a long-standing constipation. I have to use pills or something all the time. Can you prescribe something to take that will cure chronic constipation?"

Answer: Constipation is probably the cause of more illness than any other thing. Most remedies only aggravate the trouble and never cure. I always prescribe 3-grain Sulpherb Tablets (not sulphur tablets), and have found them most reliable and gradually curative. They act pleasantly and tone up the bowels and liver while purifying the blood.—ADVERTISEMENT.

Just Apply This Paste And the Hairs Vanish

(Helps to Beauty)

A safe, reliable home-treatment for the quick removal of superfluous hairs from your face or neck is as follows: Mix a stiff paste with some water and powdered delatone, apply to objectionable hairs and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This simple treatment is unfailing and no pain or inconvenience attends its use, but to avoid disappointment be certain you get genuine delatone.

BEET SUGAR MEN WOULD HAVE OWN ORGANIZATION

WASHINGTON—Countrywide organization of sugar beet farmers to fight the so-called sugar trust is the object of a joint convention of farmers' organizations called to meet in Denver Jan. 26.

The call, issued by the Intermountain Farmers' Association, the Farmers' Union of Colorado, the Ancient Order of Gleaners, the Farmers' Union of Nebraska, the Mountain States Beet Growers' Association, the state granges of Washington and Colorado, and more than 12 co-operating farmers' organizations, declares the country is producing less than one-fourth the sugar consumed in it and asserts "the national sugar bowl is in the clutches of a few powerful corporations who are united as to form a most menacing trust."

"The trust in stress of war," says the call, "sought and obtained special privileges at the expense of the beet growers, whereby it gained enormous profits and has sought to prevent the growth of the beet sugar industry in this country."

The object of the convention, the call states, is to expand and preserve the sugar beet industry, reduce the shortage and restore normal prices.

PARTY DEMANDS ASSEMBLY RESTORE SOCIALIST SEATS

Statement Issued in New York Defending Suspended Members and Calling for Revocation of Action.

"ENTIRE GROUP IN ASSEMBLY UNSEATED"

"Not Within Province of One Party or Two Parties to Judge Whether Third Is Inimical to Nation's Interests."

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—The Executive Committee of the New York Socialist party today demanded that the Assembly "re-enfranchise the thousands of voters" of the State who voted the Socialist ticket by immediately revoking its "disgraceful and autocratic action" in suspending five Socialist Assemblymen.

In a statement issued after an all-night session at its local headquarters, the committee declared that the voters who sent the Socialist Assemblymen to Albany asserted that the Socialist party is not "inimical to the public welfare." Revocation of the Assembly's action was demanded in order that a "Republican form of Government, guaranteed to each State by the Federal Constitution, be restored to the people of New York," the statement said.

Socialist Statement.

"The State Executive Committee of the Socialist party views with astonishment and indignation the unprecedented action of the State Assembly in unseating the Representatives of the Socialist party," the Socialist statement said. "The resolution adopted by the Assembly is filled with innuendoes and vicious misstatements apparently drawn to suit the purpose of Mr. Sweet, the speaker of the Assembly, Attorney-General Newton and their reactionary associates. The action of the Assembly is the culmination of a long series of outrages against constitutional rights and the best traditions of the nation.

"The St. Louis resolution, now three years old, is referred to in the hope of justifying the usurpation of the Assembly. The Socialist party was opposed to the war and many other citizens were opposed to entering it, including members of Congress.

The Assembly resolution "proceeds to deliberate falsehood when it asserts that the Socialist party urged the people to refuse to engage in the production of munitions of war and other necessities," the statement said.

"In its proclamation last August the Socialist Party declared that we pledge our support to the revolutionary workers of Russia in the maintenance of their Soviet Government, to the radical Socialists of Germany, Austria and Hungary in their efforts to establish working class rule in their countries." This statement which followed the overthrow of Czarism and Kaiserism, is craftily construed to imply that our organization is committed to force and violence to accomplish its aim.

"The Assembly resolution further asserts that the Socialist party is committed to the Moscow internationale and that the latter is pledged to the violent overthrow of organized Government. The Socialist party is not committed by any international organization and even if affiliated with the Moscow internationale this would not commit it to violence."

Defends Party Pledge.

The statement defends the Socialist party pledge, which "has been a qualification for membership for 20 years," continuing:

"We have intended to guard against political trading or compromise with other political parties. To sign such a pledge is no more a violation of the Constitution of the United States than similar pledges taken by members of the Masonic Order, Knights of Columbus, trade unions or any other association of citizens.

"It is absurd and dishonest to contend, as the third paragraph of the Assembly resolution does, that there is something illegal or criminal in the acceptance of such a pledge. Throughout the country small cliques of politicians, bankers and business men instruct and pledge representatives of the two dominant parties to carry out certain policies and there are many cases of representatives who fail to obey these cliques and are retired to private life."

Submitting that "it is not within the province of one party or two parties acting together to judge whether a third or fourth party is inimical to the interests" of the state or nation, the statement says:

"No particular member of the Socialist party is singled out for expulsion. Our entire group in the Assembly is unseated because of the political opinions.

"Has the Democratic party ever submitted its platform to the Republican party for approval? Now these two arrogant parties insist that unless the Socialist party platform meets with their approval regularly elected Socialists shall not take their seats in the Legislature. Has there ever been a more outrageous assault upon the cardinal principles of a representative form of government?"

Declaring that no official or member of the Socialist party in New York ever received instructions in violation of Federal or State laws, the statement challenges the Assembly to produce the "slightest evidence of such action."

"In the face of the facts," it concludes, "we assert that the dishonest motives of our opponents are apparent to all decent, intelligent and fair-minded citizens. We protest against this unparalleled outrage and we are entitled to the hearty active and unreserved support of all persons, groups, associations and organizations that believe in decency, fair play, constitutional representative government and the sacredness of the ballot box. If Socialists can be disfranchised in this way, then peaceful and rational solution of the great questions of our time is not possible in the United States."

Acid-Stomach Destroys Health, Vitality and Strength

Good health is your heritage. So don't let an acid-stomach deprive you of your health. Don't let it hold you back.

Some people think an acid-stomach merely causes indigestion, dyspepsia, bloat, heartburn, etc. That is a grave mistake. You simply have no idea of the long train of physical ills and awful human suffering that are directly traceable to acid-stomach. Rheumatism, Gout, Sciatica, Cirrhosis of the Liver, Biliousness, Anemia, Autointoxication, Intestinal Congestion, Severe Headache, Insomnia, Nervousness, Mental Depression, Melancholia, Dizziness, Heart Trouble—yes, even Catarrh, Ulcer and Cancer of the Stomach—all of these disorders can find their original source in that one condition—acid-stomach.

Most people do not realize this. Yet it is not at all surprising. Any number of people have acid-mouth without knowing it, because the acid is absolutely tasteless, yet powerful enough to eat through the harder-than-bone enamel of the teeth, causing them to decay. Therefore you can easily imagine that acid-stomach is far reaching in its effects, causing the above named ailments.

Get rid of acid-stomach by simply using EATONIC tablets that you eat like a bit of candy, and the results are truly wonderful.

EATONIC quickly banishes the immediate effects of acid-stomach—such as bloat, heartburn, belching, food-repeating, indigestion, etc. It improves the general health, aids digestion and thus helps the entire body to get full nourishment from the food eaten.

There are more than 500,000 people in the United States who, in the past few months, have tested EATONIC and who today are prepared to testify to the fact that it rid them of acid-stomach. All have used it under the clean-cut guarantee that if they did not find EATONIC satisfactory in every way it wouldn't cost them a penny. The results from using EATONIC, as shown by letters received from many of them, are so amazing as to be almost beyond belief.

Twenty-five thousand drug stores dispense EATONIC. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not satisfied.

Union Electric Has 3,500 Customer-Partners, 911 of Them Buyers of 4,100 Shares of the 3d $1,000,000 Issue of 7 Per Cent Preferred Stock Now on Sale at $100 a Share for Cash, $102 on a Ten-Payment Plan.

Between November 17 and January 6—34 business days—911 St. Louis district men and women, Union Electric customers and members of their families, bought $410,000 of Union Electric's third $1,000,000 issue of 7 per cent preferred stock.

The average purchase was $450; average daily sales over $12,000.

By the time this advertisement gets into print the number of buyers of third issue shares will have passed the 1000 mark, giving Union Electric over 3600 customer-partners. Sale of the rest of the issue, in average lots of $450, will give Union Electric over 4500 customer-partners.

This stock is not a speculation. It is a thoroughly safe home income investment, paying $7 a year in quarterly cash dividends on each $100 share. This great business, growing rapidly, is as solid and permanent as St. Louis.

Nearly 200 of the 911 are buying one or more shares each on the ten-payment plan. They pay $10.20 down and $10.20 a month for nine months, with their electric bills, for each $100 share. They draw 5 per cent interest, payable quarterly, on their installment payments. They can withdraw all payments, WITH INTEREST, any time before the final installment is paid. THESE INVESTORS ARE SAVING MONEY AND BUYING INCOME WITH IT.

If your savings available for investment are earning less than 7 per cent, you can't do better than to buy shares of Union Electric preferred. We don't want you to buy with savings which you know you will need presently for other uses. We want permanent partners. In case of need, you can always offer your shares for resale through our Securities Department, without cost.

This stock is sold only in Room 201, Union Electric Building, 12th and Locust Streets, St. Louis, and in Union Electric's offices in Franklin, Jefferson, Perry, St. Charles and St. Louis Counties.

How You Can Have "Naturally Curly" Hair

If you will forswear the curling iron and follow the simple plan here suggested, you will be surprised beyond words to see not only the beautiful curl, but the soft fluffiness and lively lustre your hair will acquire. The plan—to apply to the hair before retiring a little pure silmerine (in liquid form), using a clean toothbrush for the purpose. The most effective way is to divide the hair into strands, moistening each of them separately from root to tip.

The delightful wavy effect in evidence in the morning will suggest to any stranger that your hair is "naturally curly." The effect will last a considerable time, and if you'll get a few ounces of liquid silmerine from your druggist you will have a supply for months. This, by the way, will leave no sticky or greasy trace and cannot harm hair or scalp in any way. The hair will be quite manageable at all times, no matter how you do it up.

Doctors Stand Amazed at Power of Bon-Opto to Make Weak Eyes Strong—According to Dr. Lewis

Guaranteed to Strengthen Eyesight 50% In One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Victims of eye strain and other eye weaknesses, and those who wear glasses, will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope and help for them. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored by this remarkable prescription and many who once wore glasses say they have thrown them away. One man says, after using it: "I was almost blind. Could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without my glasses and my eyes do not hurt any more. At night they would pain dreadfully. Now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for 15 days everything seems clear. I can read even fine print without glasses." Another who used it says: "I was bothered with eye strain caused by overworked, tired eyes which induced fierce headaches. I have worn glasses for several years both for distance and work, and without them I could not read my own name on an envelope or the typewriting on the machine before me. I can do both now and have discarded my long distance glasses altogether. I can count the fluttering leaves on the trees across the street now, which for several years have looked like a dim green blur to me. I cannot express my joy at what it has done for me."

It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by the use of this prescription. Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and let it dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two or four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation and redness will quickly disappear. If your eyes bother you even a little it is your duty to take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have saved their sight if they had cared for their eyes in time.

NOTE: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Yes, the Bon-Opto prescription is truly a wonderful eye remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. I have used it very successfully in my own practice on patients whose eyes were strained through overwork or misfit glasses. I can highly recommend it in case of weak, watery, aching, smarting, itching, burning eyes, red lids, blurred vision or for eyes inflamed from exposure to smoke, sun, dust or wind. It is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." Bon-Opto, referred to above, is not a patent medicine or a secret remedy. It is an ethical preparation, the formula being printed on the package. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is sold in this city by the leading druggists, including the Enderle, Johnson Bros., Pauley, Judge & Dolph and Wolff-Wilson stores.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Ttablets Are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c.

RACHMANINOFF PLAYS HERE TUESDAY NIGHT

Rosita Renard, Chilean Pianist, Will Be Symphony Orchestra Soloist.

Sergei Rachmaninoff, a man of powerful genius both as composer and pianist, will give his second St. Louis recital Tuesday night at the Odeon. Second in interest to this event will be the first local appearance of Senorita Rosita Renard, Chilean pianist, with the Symphony Orchestra on Friday afternoon and Saturday night.

Rachmaninoff's program is announced as follows:

Sonata, Op. 31	Beethoven
Rondo Capriccioso	Mendelssohn
Ballade in F minor	Chopin
Valse	Chopin
Scherzo, Op. 31	Chopin
Valse, Op. 10	Rachmaninoff
Etude, Tableau	Rachmaninoff
Valse, Faust	Liszt-Gounod

Senorita Renard was born at Santiago, Chile, 24 years ago. At an early age her talent attracted the attention of the President of the republic, with the result that there was awarded to her a scholarship providing for five years' study with the best European masters at the expense of the Chilean Government. Her American debut occurred last year in New York, whereupon she received many encomiums for brilliant virtuosity and was compared to Teresa Carreno. Her St. Louis offering will be Brahms' second piano concerto, in B-flat, Op. 83.

New Dukas Overture.

For a novelty, the orchestra will present at this week's regular concerts Dukas' overture to the drama "Polyeucte," by Corneille. The complete program is thus announced:

Dukas—Overture to the drama, Polyeucte, by Corneille.
(First time.)
Brahms—Concerto for Piano No. 2, B-flat, Op. 83.
1. Allegro non troppo.
2. Allegro appassionata.
3. Andante.
4. Allegretto grazioso.

Debussy—Prelude, L'Apres-Midi d'une Faune.
Liszt—Symphonic Poem No. 3 Les Preludes.

The soloist at today's popular concert at the Odeon will be Rose Goldsmith Mortimer, St. Louis soprano. Her chief number will be the aria, "Depuis le jour," from "Louise." The complete program is as follows:

Overture, If I Were King	Adam
La Nuit et l'Amour, from Pro Ludus Patria (First time.)	Holmes
Aria, Depuis le jour, from Louise	Charpentier
Suite, Scenes Pittoresques	Massenet
Songs with piano:
(a) The Star	Rogers
(b) I Arise from Dreams of Thee	Huhn
(c) Like the Rosebud	Henschje
(d) The Danza	Chadwick
Invitation to the Dance	Weber-Berlioz

Request Program Next Sunday.

Next Sunday's popular program will be the annual "request" one, and all suggestions as to favorite compositions to be played must be at the symphony orchestra office, University Club Building, by tomorrow morning. At next week's regular concerts Julia Claussen will be the soloist, and the featured number will be Rubin Goldmark's new "Requiem," for orchestra, suggested by Lincoln's Gettysburg address.

TUESDAY TO BE CLUB NIGHT

Organizations of Community Service Center Will Meet.

Tuesday night has been made club night at the Community Service Center, and hereafter the various girls' clubs of the organization will meet in the different club rooms of one center for their activities on that night. Next Tuesday The More The Merrier Club will have a rehearsal of a play to be given soon at the center under the direction of a student of the Morse School of Expression. A class in esthetic dancing will be opened by the Bluebird Club, which will be taught by Miss Marie Seybert. The Bevillmo, Jonquil and Risa clubs will have a "sewing bee" also on Tuesday night, when curtains and rag rugs for the center will be made from materials donated by women interested in the Community Service.

Classes and clubs at the center are open to all girls of the city who wish to join, but admission cards must be obtained at headquarters, 116 North Fourth street, previous to the classes. Next Thursday night there will be a supper club for business girls, and on Friday night a remodeling class when girls will be taught to make over clothes and hats.

ECONOMY SCHOOL TO OPEN TERM

New Course on Americanization Added to Curriculum.

The new term of the Missouri School of Social Economy, 2221 Locust street, will open Jan. 26. A new course on Americanization will be given by Miss Letitia Fyffe of the International Institute. Other courses on social service will be given by Dr. George B. Mangold, director of the school, Mrs. C. M. Hubbard and Miss Jeanette McClenahan. There will be an evening course Mondays during the term on settlement and neighborhood work by Miss McClenehan. Another evening course, Tuesdays, will be in charge of Dr. Mangold, on "The State, Church and School as Social Agencies and Their Possibilities."

The Missouri School of Social Economy trains workers for important positions in many philanthropic, welfare, civic betterment and relief organizations, and has graduates all over the world in successful work. Handbooks of the course will be sent on application.

Master Minds and Supermen of Every Age Have Been Men of Blood and Iron

THE KIND NUXATED IRON HELPS TO MAKE

Physician Explains Secret of Steady Nerves, Keen, Active Brains and Great Physical Energy—Tells

HOW TO TEST YOUR OWN STRENGTH AND ENDURANCE

And Find Out if Your Blood Is Starving for Want of Iron

Do You Know What Gave These Men Their Strength and Power?

Nuxated Iron Puts Renewed Vim and Energy Into the Weak, Nervous and Rundown and Helps Give Them the Force and Stamina to Win.

Every keen, active, successful man and woman of today recognizes that a sound, strong body is the basis of all real achievement, and they leave no stone unturned to safeguard their health, while thousands of others are not living up to their possibilities simply because of depleted nerve force, physical and mental depression, and a general run-down condition brought on by lack of iron in the blood.

If you lack self-reliance and courage, are fearful of failure and not winning the best prizes of life, you owe it to yourself to find out why physicians below prescribe organic iron—Nuxated Iron—to help build rich, red blood and thereby produce greater physical and mental power and that dominant energy so necessary to success and happiness.

Commenting upon this, Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, says: "The strong, vigorous, successful men of all times have been men of blood and iron. Lack of iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued, but it utterly robs him of that virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life. Men like Hercules, Napoleon, Alexander the Great, Garibaldi and the leading figures in the World War and the great Captains of Industry of today have all been noted as men of blood and iron. To help make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans, there is nothing in my experience which I have found so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron."

Dr. John J. Van Horne, formerly Medical Inspector and Clinical Physician on the Board of Health of New York City, says: "I believe that physicians should, at every opportunity, prescribe organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for in my experience it is one of the best tonic and red blood builders known to medical science."

Jack Dempsey, Heavyweight Champion of the world, the foremost figure in the realm of sport, and Superman of the Age, and many others in every walk of life have used and endorsed Nuxated Iron. If such a man as Dempsey, whose calling demands the possession of super-endurance, should consider it advisable to keep his blood filled with health-giving and strength-building iron by taking Nuxated Iron, how much more important it is to the average man and woman to see that there is no lack of iron in their blood.

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day, after meals, for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

The greatest fighters of their day have all been men of blood and iron—Napoleon, Emperor of France; Garibaldi, Savior of Italy; Alexander the Great, who sought more worlds to conquer, and our own "Jack" (William Harrison) Dempsey, who conquered the Mighty Willard after his rigorous training in which he says Nuxated Iron played an important part.

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE—Nuxated Iron, which is recommended above, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, and does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Welfert Drug Co., Pauley's Drug Store, Enderle Drug Co., Johnson Bros.' Drug Co., Merker's 3 Stores, East St. Louis, and all other druggists.

DITRICHSTEIN STRUTS IT AS FRENCH BRAVO

Is Daredevil Hero of "The Purple Mask"—Three Other Broadway Novelties.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—By way of starting the theatrical New Year auspiciously, the current week has beheld the return of Leo Ditrichstein to Broadway in a melodrama of the Napoleonic era, "The Purple Mask;" the production of "The Light of the World," a curious mixture of the Passion Play, sanctimony and Broadway hokum; a bright new musical comedy, "Always You," and another A. H. Woods farce, "No More Blondes," which was formerly called "Ready to Occupy."

"The Purple Mask," which opened Monday night at the Booth Theater, is an adaptation from the French melodrama, "Le Chevalier au Masque," by Paul Armant and Jean Manoussi. It is quite a quarter of a century since so brazenly theatrical a piece has ventured to show itself in New York, and yet it would be perjury to deny that it is widly exciting. There is an Arsene Lupin plot, made brave and gay with the fine manners, the long pistols, the mantling cloaks and the mouth-filling verbiage of the early nineteenth century. It deals with the hair-raising exploits of a masked Chevalier, turned loose on the France of Citizen Bonaparte in the service of the French monarchy. It is one of those old plays of adventure wherein someone is always escaping in the cloak and hat of someone else, and still another personage may be expected any minute to whip off his wig and whiskers and say, "Gentlemen, I am the Duc d'Orleans," whereupon all hands go down on one knee apiece and murmur "Monseigneur" in chorus.

Ditrichstein has a flair for this sort of thing, and plays the reckless Chevalier of the Purple Mask with just the right mixture of swagger and insouciant serenity. Lily Cahill, very pleasing to behold, was helpful as the winsome royalist maid, Laurette de Chateaubriand. But the contribution to the entertainment which set most tongues a-wagging was the capital performance of Brandon Tynan, who, introduced in the first act as the dread agent of Fouche, moves unrecognized through the second and third acts. The disguise is considerably more than a mere matter of makeup; it involves as well a mastery of the voice not too common in the theater.

Oberammergau Now Swiss.

"The Light of the World" had its first public performance at the Lyric Tuesday night, after having been privately presented before an invited congregation of clergymen in the same theater on the preceding evening.

This paraphrase of Biblical history in the form of a play is in its details a re-enactment of the experiences of the Savior applied to a story of the present time, in which the characters are symbolical transcripts of Biblical personages, the whole being projected against a background showing the preparations for giving the "Passion Play" at Oberammergau, Bavaria. But lest patriotism be offended and the interests of the box office be jeopardized by representing Teutonic characters on the stage, some blundering hand attempted to transfer the scenes to "a small village in Switzerland near the French border," making the characters either French or Swiss.

There were in the dialogue—which the adaptors quite overlooked—at least 20 allusions which clearly indicated the original location of the work. In fact, one of the scenes presented a facsimile of the inner stage of the "Passion Play" theater in the Bavarian town. Therefore, this whole structure of a religious play was reared upon the cornerstone of a falsehood—the only bit of real humor by the way, that contrived to creep into it.

According to the story, the villager who has just been elected to enact the character of Christus in the "Passion Play," suffers, by his fearless application of the teachings of Christ, the same persecution which in Palestine was meted out to the Savior. A young girl who has been betrayed and is hated by the villagers—the symbolism of the Magdalene is here evident—is given shelter in his house by the new Christus. He thereupon falls under suspicion of the villagers, who are jealous of the honor that he has received, and, in company with the sinful woman whom he has befriended, he is set upon and reviled. Standing beneath the cross to be used in the "Passion Play" and in a disguise imitative of the appearance of the Savior, he utters the Bibical injunction, "He that is without sin among you, let him cast the first stone."

Yankee Reporter on Hand.

This, the most impressive scene in the play at the Lyric, was the climax of the second act. But it was preceded and followed by stretches of slow-paced and very ordinary melodrama, into which had been written the character of an American newspaper correspondent that had very evidently been created for the edification of Broadway. The triangular conflict around which the play revolved was the most ancient of melodramatic complications, and the moralizing over it, though true, was woefully trite for purposes of drama.

Better acting might have enhanced the dignity of the piece. There were two notable exceptions in the cases of Pedro de Cordoba as Anton Rendell, who becomes Christus, and Fuller Mellish, as a persecuted Jew. Percy Haswell, as the mother of Anton, and Clara Joel, as the sinful girl, acquitted themselves satisfactorily, but most of the others of the large company could not hide their deficiencies.

Oscar Hammerstein II, son of William and grandson of Oscar I, marks his debut as an author with "Always You," a musical comedy for which he supplied the book and lyrics, and which was produced Monday night at the Century Theater. The scene is laid in Trouville, France, and concerns a pretty French Red Cross nurse, who murmurs to an A. E. F. Captain: "Is eet zat eet will alway be me, Monsieur?" The Captain returns to the poor little butterfly engaged to another girl, but finally decided, by the way of pretty melodies and many side lines, that it will be "always you." Helen Ford took delightfully the part of the French ingenue. Among the well chosen cast, Russell Mack, Ralph Herz and Anna Seymour deserved and got much applause. The music by Herbert P. Stothert is catchy, and a chorus of pretty girls helps put ginger in it. The lyrics were cleverer

Old Herbal Remedy Used For 40 Years in Relieving Diabetes

The most satisfactory results have been obtained in combating diabetes by observing certain dietary rules and the judicious use of Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy, an herbal preparation used with marked success for more than 40 years.

Following is a letter from a grateful user:

"This letter is the best proof that I am still alive. Your medicine is a miracle to me. My weight was reduced from 157 to 114 pounds when I left the hospital. I left there Aug. 6 in despair. Hundreds of people that knew me said I would never live to return to my studio. After leaving the hospital I saw your "ad" in the paper. I began its use and at once commenced to improve, and now everybody is saying to me that I look better than ever before. I tip the scales at 132 pounds and I am back working again, to the astonishment of all. I feel splendid and people say I am looking better every day. I must tell you that every word I have written is true, and I can prove it by hundreds that knew of my condition. Jules Friquet, 511 West First st., Los Angeles, Cal."

Warner's Safe Diabetes Remedy is made from herbs and other beneficial ingredients and has been on the market 40 years, a true indication of its value. Get a bottle today.

Sold by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and all leading druggists. Sample sent on receipt of 10 cents. Warner's Safe Remedies Co., Dept. 245, Rochester, N. Y.

Waffles–Um-m-m!

A Chicago teacher of Domestic Science writes: "There is more ease in the preparation of waffles made from because the batter is of better consistency and does not adhere to the iron, as do the others."

Whether it's for pancakes, muffins or waffles, it will pay you to say "VIRGINIA SWEET" instead of "Pancake flour" to your grocer.

TRY THIS RECIPE—Beat the yolks of two eggs, add one cup milk, three tablespoons melted butter and one cup VIRGINIA SWEET PANCAKE FLOUR; mix thoroughly. Bake on hot, well-oiled waffle iron.

All good grocers sell VIRGINIA SWEET PANCAKE FLOUR. Say plainly to yours: "VIRGINIA SWEET—no other, please."

MARSHFIELD MAN SEEKS G. O. P. NOMINATION FOR CONGRESSMAN

S. A. Shelton, Nominee in 1918, Announces His Candidacy in Sixteenth Missouri District.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MARSHFIELD, Mo., Jan. 10.—S. A. Shelton, an attorney, of Marshfield, who was the Republican nominee for Congress from the Sixteenth District in 1918, has announced that he will again be a candidate, in response to a resolution of the Republican Central Committee of Webster County indorsing him and urging him to make the race. No other Republicans have indicated their intention to enter the race. In 1918 he came within less than 200 votes of winning, though the normal Democratic majority is more than 3000.

In a public statement setting forth some of the most important principles for which he stands, Shelton said:

"I believe in strictly economical administration of the affairs of the Government. Congress should provide suitable reward for all our soldiers who took part in the great war. An adequate Government loan for the purpose of purchasing a farm or a home probably would be of greatest benefit to all. If conducted economically, our Government will not need to impose the many Federal taxes that the people now pay, which have helped to increase the cost of living.

"To encourage patriotism, every child should be taught at the fireside, in the public schools and through the press all over the country, the glorious history of the United States as a free nation. Laws should be made to punish or deport all who advocate violence against the United States."

159,032 IN 8TH DISTRICT JOINED THRIFT SOCIETIES IN 1919

2024 Clubs Formed in Missouri, and 1253 in St. Louis, With Membership of 28,354.

A total of 159,032 persons in the Eighth Federal Reserve District joined thrift and savings societies in 1919, according to the report made by L. A. Wilson, director of the Savings Division, United States Treasury Department. There were 6099 societies organized in the three states of the district. St. Louis has 1253 with a membership of 28,354. The 94 counties of Missouri included in this district, have 2024 societies of 59,642 members, Kentucky has 2296 societies with a membership of 53,218, and Arkansas has 526, including 17,818 persons. Most of the thrift societies were organized after Sept. 1.

Wilson has received a letter of congratulation on the 1919 success from William Mather Lewis, national director of the Savings Division, who wrote: "I wish to express to you my deep appreciation of the splendid work done in the Eighth Federal Reserve District by you and your associates. My visits to St. Louis and other parts of the district have given me much admiration for your vision and ability in making the savings movement a real power in your territory."

than those of the average musical comedy success.

The Bedroom Hallmark.

It may have been a part of the strategy of Otto Harbach, who wrote "No More Blondes" on the basis of a story by Edgar Franklin, to conduct his audience, Wednesday night at Maxine Elliott's Theater, by easy degrees into the hilarities he had prepared. At any rate, the banality of the first scene and the labored suggestiveness of another that followed it in the opening act led, in the second act, to a series of situations that were harmless and genuinely funny, swift in their changes, ingeniously worked out and altogether worthy of the laughter they provoked. Possibly the less satisfactory preamble was only for the purpose of stamping A. H. Woods' familiar bedroom trade mark on a piece that would have been much better without it.

By the time "No More Blondes" struck its real gait a timorous up-State bridegroom, who had quarreled with his wife on their honeymoon, had been lodged alone for the night by his city friend, a real estate agent, as caretaker of an unoccupied mansion which, with a full equipment of servants, he was superintending. To the house unexpectedly came the wife of the real owner, followed first by the penitent bride of the temporary lodger and then by sundry others, including the real estate agent and the western brother of the owner's wife.

These fell successively into the hands of a blackmailing butler, and their efforts to escape giving tribute to this servant were the sources of the laughter. Credit for really good performances must be given equally to Ernest Truex as the timid and unwilling intruder, who assumed an outward bravado that he could not live up, and Dallas Welford, as the butler who had made blackmail an exact science. Others who aided the play were Leo Donnelly, Nancy Fair, Eliza Wilson and Edwin Walter.

CATARRH MAYR'S PINE NEEDLE BALM

A Comfort and A Corrective

THE first cool days of autumn and early winter have a tremendous effect on Catarrh indications. Flu and other infectious germs abound. They find a harbor in the nasal passages affected with Catarrh. Mayr's Pine Needle Balm opens and clears these passages, keeping them in a clean, wholesome condition. Healthy nasal passages do not harbor germs. Catching a cold in the head, nose or throat means that a germ has been taken in and will develop unless the inflammatory condition is at once corrected. Do not neglect colds, they very often lead to chronic Catarrh, which is embarrassing and sometimes offensive to others. Prolonged Catarrhal affection often causes foul breath. Mayr's Pine Needle Balm promotes natural breathing by opening up the nasal passages. It is a pure natural product. Soothing and pleasant to use. When Catarrh, colds of the head, nose and throat have made you feel disagreeable, Mayr's Pine Needle Balm will prove a comfort and corrective. Excellent for children as well as adults. Sold in two sizes, 25c and 50c.

Hygienic Note—To those susceptible to frequent colds the following advice is extended: Avoid "coddling" habits and overheated rooms, encourage fresh air habits, take a cold water bath, spray or sponge each morning, followed by a brisk rubbing of the body with a coarse bath towel. One who can safely resist the shock of a cold plunge or even of sponging may with confidence expect to resist ordinary drafts and exposure.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

ST. LOUIS TO HAVE TWO MOTOR-CAR SHOWS WEEK OF FEB. 16-21

Passenger Cars to Be Shown at Southern Hotel—Trucks to Show at Coliseum.

An ambitious automobile show program was decided upon by the Show Committee of the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers' & Dealers' Association at a meeting Friday. There will be two automobile shows held this year during the week of Feb. 16 to 21 inclusive—a passenger car and accessory show, and a truck show with one admission price admitting spectators to both shows.

The passenger car and accessory show, which has been in vogue for the past two years, will be held at the Southern Hotel building at Broadway and Walnut streets. The truck show which is to comprise every type of commercial car will be held at the Coliseum, Jefferson and Washington avenue.

The Show Committee in charge of the two events is composed of Joseph A. Schlecht, chairman; G. W. D. Donnelly, L. H. Amrine, Robert E. Lee, and P. H. Brockman, ex-officio. Robert E. Lee will be general manager of both shows. He has engaged George Schattgen as assistant manager in charge of the truck show.

The Show Committee has decided to eliminate flags and national colors from the decorative scheme, and to use the adopted colors of the St. Louis Show—purple and yellow—with an elaboration never before attempted. The committee will spend more than $10,000 for the decoration of the two buildings with this color scheme.

The plan of admission to the two shows is novel. The admission ticket which will be sold for 50 cents at either the passenger car show or the truck show, will carry a coupon which will admit the bearer to the other show at any time.

Invitations are being prepared to be mailed to about 12,000 automobile dealers in the St. Louis territory who sell cars through St. Louis distributors.

The management of the show has a vast amount of work ahead to get the Southern Hotel building into condition. An elevator of large size must be built and the wash room and other facilities of the hotel must be practically remodeled. A force of carpenters to do this work will begin Monday. Plats and application blanks will be mailed to prospective exhibitors Thursday.

TIRE DEALERS AGREE TO INSTALL CREDIT BUREAU

The dealers in automobile tires at the meeting of the St. Louis Tire Dealers' Association, Thursday night at the Marquette Hotel, decided to at once install a credit bureau which would put on file in the office of the association's secretary, Robert E Lee, a list comprising every "dead beat," every "slow pay" and every "unreasonable" customer who buys tires in St. Louis. The association will also keep a watch on customers who give bad checks, and the bad check giver will be prosecuted criminally in the name of the association. The association also endorsed the plan of formation of the Automotive Industries Association, which is to be a parent body for all of the local automobile trade bodies.

N. Y. AUTO SHOW CLOSES WITH BEST RECORD IN HISTORY

84 Makes of Passenger Cars and 69 Kinds of Trucks Exhibited.

The twentieth national automobile show closed in New York last night, having broken all previous records for number of exhibitors, variety of products shown and space allotted.

The passenger car division was held on the four lower floors of Grand Central Palace. Motor trucks were exhibited at the Eighth Coast Artillery Armory.

At the Grand Central Palace there were 84 exhibitors of different makes of passenger cars and 227 exhibits of parts and accessories.

The highest priced passenger car displayed was a Packard with a custom-built body, the complete car being sold for $11,000. The lowest priced passenger car exhibited sold for $715.

In the truck division there were 69 different makes of trucks on display. There were also 69 exhibits of truck accessories, parts and sundries, including trailers and bodies.

The prices of trucks ranged from $935 up.

The members of the Show Committee of the passenger car division were: John N. Willys, chairman, Willys-Overland Co.; H. G. Root, Westcott Motor Car Co.; Harry M. Jewett, Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co. The Truck Division Show Committee was composed of M. L. Pulcher, chairman, Federal Motor Truck Co.; A. J. Whipple, Diamond T. Motor Car Co.; David Ludlum, Autocar Co.

The Chicago National Automobile Show, at which passenger cars and trucks will also be shown simultaneously, will be held from Jan. 24 to 31.

CHEVROLET BODY PLANT PURCHASED

Commercial Auto Body Co. Takes Over Buildings and Machinery.

A further step in the progress of St. Louis as a center of automotive industries came during the past week with the announcement of H. F. Cartwright, president of the Commercial Auto Body Co., Sixteenth and Pine streets, that that company had purchased the buildings and equipment of the plant of the St. Louis Manufacturing Corporation, at 5401 Bulwer avenue, for the production of both passenger and commercial car bodies. The plant covers an area of approximately four acres, and has a daily average capacity of 550 passenger car bodies at present. Cartwright said it is his plan to build 300 commercial car and 200 passenger car bodies—daily at this plant, starting April 1.

The St. Louis Manufacturing Corporation, which is a subsidiary of the General Motors Corporation, will continue to build bodies for Chevrolet cars at this plant until production starts at the new plant at Union avenue and Natural Bridge road, which is expected to be March 1 or sooner. The first lot of lumber was cut by the woodworking machines in the new body plant during the past week.

J. S. Hunt, president of the St. Louis Manufacturing Corporation and representative of the General Motors Corporation in St. Louis, represented that corporation in the deal which is said to have involved more than $200,000.

Cartwright said the taking over of the plant will give employment to approximately 350 mill hands, mechanics, wood working machine operators, draftsmen, pattern makers and several mechanical and electrical engineers. He said he would maintain his own machine shop for repairing tools and saws, a pattern department and body painting plant.

The Commercial Auto Body Co., which is the only exclusively wholesale manufacturer of truck bodies in St. Louis, was organized in 1915 and during the last year did a business aggregating $300,000.

Previous to his entry in the automobile body business Cartwright was vice president of the Banner Buggy Co., which built the bodies for its buggies at the plant where he will start the production of truck and passenger car bodies on April 1. Bodies have been built at this plant for the last three years for those cars assembled by the Chevrolet Motor Co. plant at Main and Rutger streets. In addition the wood work for as high as 600 cars has been shipped daily to other Chevrolet assembling plants throughout the country.

The present plant of the Commercial Auto Body Co., which produced 4000 light delivery and truck bodies of various types, 5000 drivers' cabs and 6000 truck windshields during 1919, will continue production as heretofore. Cartwright said the taking over of the St. Louis Manufacturing Corporation is an addition to the business which will make this company one of the largest of its kind in the country.

He said the company would be reincorporated within the next few weeks under the laws of Missouri with an increased capitalization of $200,000.

The officers of the Commercial Auto Body Co. are H. F. Cartwright, president; former Senator X. P. Wilfley, vice president, and M. E. Cartwright, secretary.

AUTO SUPPLY COMPANY MOVES TO MOTOR ROW

The Fred Campbell Auto Supply Co. has moved from 1109 Locust street to larger quarters on Motor Row. The company now occupies the two-story fireproof building at 2806-12 Locust street formerly occupied by the McQuay-Norris Manufacturing Co.

In the retail sales department, which occupies the front portion of the first floor and extends the full width of the building, there is a sales counter nearly 100 feet long. The rear portion of the first floor is used for stockroom and shipping purposes. In the stockroom there are more than 2000 metal bins where supplies of all kinds are stored. Special metal racks are provided for the storing of metal rims for wheels. Skid chains in all sizes are stored in stalls built especially for the purpose in heavy wire.

In the basement there is a washroom, with shower baths, for employes, and additional storage space.

The second floor has been rearranged to house the general offices of the company and private offices of officials.

The officers are Fred Campbell, president; W. R. Comstock, treasurer; W. L. Ferrier, secretary, and J. F. Quan, sales manager.

The building has been remodeled and redecorated throughout.

ST. LOUIS DEALERS TO ATTEND N. A. D. A. FROLIC

It is expected that about 50 of the St. Louis automobile dealers will attend the big frolic of the National Automobile Dealers' Association at the La Salle Hotel in Chicago Monday night, Jan. 26, during the week of the Chicago Automobile Show. This banquet and frolic is to be one of the most striking and unusual ever given in the automobile trade Up to Saturday 35 of the dealers had paid for their reservation at $5 a plate to Secretary Robert E. Lee of the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers' and Dealers' Association.

LIGHTFOOT RESIGNS TO JOIN GARDNER DISTRIBUTOR HERE

Becomes Secretary and Sales Manager of Schlecht Motor Car Co.

C. E. Lightfoot, who for the last two years has been manager of the St. Louis branch of the General Motors Truck Co., has been appointed secretary and general sales manager of the Schlecht Motor Car Co., distributors of the Gardner car in the St. Louis territory, it has been announced by Joseph A. Schlecht, president.

Lightfoot was one of the organizers and served as the first chairman of the Commercial Car Bureau of the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers and Dealers' Association. He is also a member of the Federal Highway Council and a director of the Mississippi River Scenic Highway Association.

His resignation has been tendered, Lightfoot said, to the General Motors Truck Co., to take effect at the earliest date. He said he expected to be relieved during the coming week.

The three-story fireproof building built by the Overland Automobile Co. at 2309-11 Locust street, has been leased by the Schlecht Motor Car Co. as the distributing headquarters for the Gardner car.

The show windows have been frosted while the building is being redecorated. Schlecht said when the frosting is removed, which will be about Jan. 25, the decorating will have been completed, the Gardner car will be on display and the organization completed ready to do business.

Lightfoot came to St. Louis from Chicago, where he was connected with the Burroughs Adding Machine Co. three years ago, and for the first year was connected with the passenger car and truck departments of the Packard Motor Car Co.

MAIBOHM CO. BUILDING ADDITION TO PLANT

Rapid progress is being made on the new unit of the Maibohm Motors Co. plant at Sandusky, O. This new addition is 620 feet long and 120 feet wide, and includes all the latest engineering improvements for the production of high-class work. There will be a loading platform which will permit the loading of 15 cars at one time. The capacity of the new unit is reported to be 50 cars a day.

ARMY USED CAR SALES TOTAL NEAR $1,000,000

According to figures compiled by the Motor Transport Corps, the Government had derived $981,553.60 from the sale by public auction of unserviceable motor equipment up to Dec. 15 last. From the time the army began its sale of unserviceable motor equipment up to Dec. 15 the figures show 3021 vehicles had been disposed of. Trucks, of which there were 1924 sold, brought an average price of $411.79, while touring cars averaged $210.77 in price. Motor cycles and side cars, of which there were 250 sold, brought an average price of $42.86.

The Chief of the Motor Transport Corps has announced that aproximately 5000 more vehicles which have been declared unserviceable are to be sold at public auction at military posts in various parts of the country within the next few weeks. One of the largest sales held so far was at San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 5 and 6, when 44 trucks and 70 motor cycles were sold at public auction.

BODY LUSTRE RETAINED BY CAUTION IN WASHING

In winter weather motorists have been known to use hot water in washing their cars as a matter of comfort. This is bad practice as hot water is injurious to the body finish. Cold water is also injurious in certain instances.

During the winter a car should not be washed with cold water immediately upon the return from a drive of any great distance, as the cold water on a hot hood will damage the finish. In such cases the car should be permitted to stand until the hood has cooled.

Tepid water, just at that degree where the chill has been removed, should be used for washing the automobile body whenever possible during the winter months.

RECOMMENDS WORKHOUSE FOR CARELESS MOTORISTS

Workhouse sentences, in addition to fines, for careless automobile driving was one of several recommendations made by Prosecuting Attorney Howard Sidener in his report for the period between July 1 and Jan. 1 filed with Gov. Gardner at Jefferson City last Wednesday.

That Bump—The New Triplex Springs Take Away Its Jar
THE wonderful three-point suspension Triplex Springs of the new Overland 4 Four-Door Sedan mark the greatest riding improvement since the introduction of pneumatic tires.
These springs are diagonally attached at the extreme ends of a 130-inch Springbase. They give Overland 4 with 100-inch wheelbase the steadiness and smoothness of riding which long wheelbase and heavy weight give the large car
They smooth out road roughness. They take up the jolts and rebounds.
Overland 4's light weight and efficiency make it surprisingly economical of fuel and oil.
In completeness and quality of equipment, including Auto-Lite starting and lighting, this greater-comfort car ranks with higher-priced cars.
Come and see for yourself how it rides on rough roads.
It weighs only 200 pounds more than the Touring Car

PAIGE
The Most Beautiful Car in America
The Newest and Finest of All Light Sixes
In these days of advanced engineering it is a very simple matter to design a six-cylinder motor that is both powerful and speedy. The complications arise, however, when to these qualities, must be added new standards of dependability and economy of operation.
There, in one paragraph, you have an explanation of the three years of experiment and testing behind our new five-passenger "Glenbrook" model.
A few months would have sufficed to produce the "average" power plant and chassis—but we have never been interested in "average" achievements.
So we worked for three long years, patiently meeting and solving every problem that confronted us.
Then came the final tests—the merciless trials of power, speed and endurance—and the proud realization that our car was indeed the finest of all light sixes.
The rest of the story you probably know, for the public has rendered its verdict in no uncertain terms.
The "Glenbrook" stands unchallenged as the greatest dollar-for-dollar value in the field of five-passenger motor cars.
We predict that it will maintain this position for several seasons to come.

NEW $150,000 ST. LOUIS HOME FOR NASH CARS

The Southwest Nash Motor Co. closed a deal last week whereby they will build a new two-story fireproof building to be erected at a cost of $150,000 at the southwest corner of Garrison avenue and Locust street. A row of several brick houses which stood upon this property have been razed and the excavation for the basement of the new building which will house both the Southwest Nash Motor Co. and Nash St. Louis Motor Co, wholesale and retail dealers respectively is to start immediately.

The present location at 3205 Locust street has become inadequate to meet the needs of growing business of the Nash St. Louis Motor Co., handling retail sales, it was announced by S. W. Ramsey, general manager.

The new building designed by Preston J. Bradshaw, architect, promises to be one of the most attractive on Motor Row. The construction will be of reinforced concrete and brick with a white terra cotta front. There will be a frontage of 100 feet on Locust street and the building will be 138 feet deep. A showroom 100 by 40 feet will occupy the front part of the first floor. Behind this will be the offices of the retail sales company of which Wilkins Jones is manager, and John J. Lescher service manager.

An entrance on Garrison avenue will permit motorists to drive into the service department which will occupy the rear of the first floor and is to be modernly equipped throughout.

The Southwest Nash Motor Co. of which Ramsey is general manager and F. M. Webb assistant manager, will have its offices extending across the entire front of the second floor. This company handles the wholesale distribution of Nash passenger cars and trucks in five states including parts of Missouri, Illinois, Arkansas, Kentucky and Texas. The balance of the second floor will be utilized as a machine shop and stock room for the storage of accessories and parts.

Exhaust fans equipped with electric motors are to be installed in the service department to eject the gas expelled by the motor cars while being tested, as a safeguard against the health of employes. Shower baths and lockers are also to be part of the equipment. Retail Manager Jones said it is the plan of the two companies to remain at their present location until the new building is ready for occupancy which is expected to be during the latter part of spring.

LeGrand Jones of the Paul Jones Realty Co. handled the realty end of the deal.

PROLONG SHOWING OF CLOSED CARS

The closed car show of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co. which was to have closed last night will continue for another week it was announced yesterday by R. C. Frampton, president.

The showroom of the Hudson-Frampton company has been artistically decorated for the occasion. The color scheme is very attractively carried out.

The waxed granitoid floor which was recently built to replace a hard wood floor, and which is of deep reddish tint, is adorned with four rugs of plush texture in two tones of tan. Along each sidewall have been placed tall pedestals on which are large palms in decorated pots.

Each of the pedestals as well as showroom have been decorated in varying hues of oak leaves. Two large flower boxes containing living plants have been placed in each of the two show windows.

A temporary porte-co-chere has been erected at the entrance for use during the inclement weather. Frampton said a Hudson four-passenger touring limousine in Valentine blue body and black trimmings was expected to arrive from the factory tomorrow. With this model on display there will be a complete exhibit of all closed cars made by both the Hudson and Essex factories, he said.

KARDELL CO. DEALERS MEET HERE THIS WEEK

The annual convention of dealers of the Kardell Motor Car Co. of St. Louis, distributor of Reo and Dort lines, will be held Thursday. The dealers will assemble at the salesrooms of the company, 3143-45 Locust street, Thursday morning, where they will meet officials of the company, and F. A. Akers, sales manager of the Reo Motor Car Co., and District Manager Gee and John D. Mansfield, general sales manager, and F. A. Petrie, assistant sales manager of the Dort Motor Car Co. In the evening there will be a banquet for the visiting dealers and officials, at the American Annex, with an elaborate cabaret program. Addresses will be made by the factory representatives. Robert E. Lee will be toastmaster.

SKELTON ROADSTER TO BE EXHIBITED SOON

Before the last of this month Skelton cars will be seen on the streets of St. Louis driven by their owners, according to John Rogers, vice president and general manager of the Meissner-Skelton Motor Car Co., 3150 Locust street, who said yesterday that 12 Skelton cars in the five-passenger touring car model are to be delivered during this month. The Skelton car is being built by the St. Louis Car Co., 8000 North Broadway.

Within the next two weeks the first Skelton roadster will have been completed Rogers said. It will be built on the standard Skelton chassis and will have the same straight-line design as the touring car. It will be built for two passengers. One of the first roadsters to be completed will be placed on display in the showroom of the Meissner-Skelton Motor Car Co.

Accessory Trade Meeting.

A meeting of the Motor Accessory Trade Association of St. Louis will be held at the City Club Tuesday night, January 13, following a dinner at 6:30 p. m. President W. L. Ferrier announces that several matters of importance are to be discussed and there will be a distribution of the revised directory of the association's membership.

CHANDLER SIX
Famous For Its Marvelous Motor

Chandler Strides into Full Leadership

IF there has ever been any question as to Chandler leadership of the medium-priced fine car field, it is answered now. The great Chandler Six is sweeping its market. It displaces less efficient cars. It steps in to serve those who previously have chosen only high-priced cars. And it pleases everywhere.

From two thousand to three thousand discriminating Americans bought Chandler cars—open and closed—every month this Fall. And at no time has the demand been fully met. Thousands have waited months for their new Chandlers, and have felt repaid for waiting.

Nothing could more clearly show the regard in which America holds the Chandler Six, than the patience with which these thousands have waited for weeks and months for their Chandlers. They waited because they knew what they were waiting for—because they knew it was worth waiting for.

AUTO NOTES and GOSSIP.

J. D. Scheuerman, sales manager of the Commercial Auto Body Co., returned from the New York Automobile Show last Friday, where he completed arrangements for export business.

Walter Daehn, formerly connected with the Southern Motor Car Co., and G. P. Liedeman, formerly connected with the Wilson Motor Car Co., have joined the sales force of the United Motor Car Co., Westcott distributer.

C. F. Vincent, general service representative of the Westcott factory, visited the local distributer, the United Motor Car Co., during the past week and gave members of the service department a discourse on proper and improper service.

R. L. Butler, assistant division manager of the West Central division of the Willys-Overland Inc., was in St. Louis last week visiting H. R. Henry, local wholesale sales manager.

While Butler was here plans and procedure for the distribution of Overland cars during the year were outlined. The St. Louis territory is first in the country in volume of territory and contracts let.

R. C. Garland, territory representative of the Overland Automobile Co., is in charge of a driveway of 57 Overland cars for distribution in St. Louis territory which left the factory at Toledo, O., for the trip overland during the past week.

During 1919 the number of Overland dealers in the St. Louis territory was increased from 202 to 452 and the entire contract of more than 5000 cars was disposed of, according to a report compiled by R. H. Patterson of the Overland Automobile Co.

Wilbur W. Wood, formerly a member of the sport staff of the St. Louis Republic, has joined the advertising department of the Traffic Motor Truck Corporation. He will edit "Horse Sense," a monthly dealers' publication, and the "Weekly Wallop," a house organ for employes of the factory. While in the naval aviation service in France Wood edited the Pauillac Pilot, a weekly published for members of that branch of the service.

K. F. Love, who formerly was connected with the sales force of the Traffic Motor Truck Corporation, has been appointed representative of the Trailomobile Co. of Cincinnati for the St. Louis territory. Arrangements are under way to open a showroom at some suitable location.

Stephen Parnell, one of the early automobile men of St. Louis, who for the last six years has been connected with the Police Department, has resigned his position to become a representative of the Lowell Motor Car Co., 3800 North Broadway, according to John A. Hoffman, president.

Felix Garnier, who was formerly connected with the Chattanooga Wagon Co. of Chattanooga, Tenn., has been appointed a traveling representative of the Kardell Truck and Tractor Co.

Chairman L. H. Amrine of the Commercial Car Bureau of the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers' and Dealers' Association has called a meeting of the bureau to follow a dinner at the City Club, Tuesday at 6:30 p. m. One of the important features of the meeting will be the discussion of the plans for the commercial car show at the Coliseum.

F. B. Tuttle has come to St. Louis from the factory to take charge of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. Ship-by-Truck Bureau in the St. Louis territory. He succeeds Roy S. Rauschkolb, who has been made truck tire sales manager.

CADILLAC SALES FORCE LEAVES FOR N. Y. SHOW

The only St. Louis automobile concern to take its entire force to the New York Automobile Show was the Cadillac Automobile Co. of St. Louis.

This is how it was done:

As the result of a sales contest conducted by the Cadillac Automobile Co. of St. Louis, the sales force in body accompanied J. James MacGregor, president, when he left for the National Automobile Show in New York.

The contest started on Sept. 15 and ended Dec. 31.—For each member of the sales force who sold a minimum of 10 cars in that period and provided the total sales were more than 80 cars, the company agreed to pay all expenses to the New York show. To add interest and keep members in touch with the progress of the contest, MacGregor had a water color painting made representing a railroad track running between Union Station at St. Louis and the Grand Central Station, New York. On this railroad was painted a moving train which was moved forward 20 miles every time a new car was sold. Semaphores distanced 60 miles apart were placed along the side of the railroad, and every time a used car was sold, of which 20 had to be sold in the contest, a red flag was moved 60 miles ahead.

KARDELL TRACTOR WINS BLUE RIBBON AWARD

The blue ribbon prize awarded the Kardell tractor at the National Farmers' Exposition and Livestock Conference held from Dec. 4 to 12 at Toledo, O., was received last week by Given Moore, general sales manager of the Kardell Truck and Motor Co., 6900 South Broadway.

Moore said the Kardell tractor was awarded the highest honors for design and general utility in a field of 50 different makes.

PERSHING DENIES LIVES WERE WASTED ARMISTICE DAY

GENERAL SAYS HE ACTED TO PREVENT MORE ATTACKS AS SOON AS POSSIBLE

Letter From Him Replying to Charges Made Before House Investigating Committee Is Made Public by Representative Fuller of Massachusetts.

WAS ACTING UNDER FOCH'S INSTRUCTIONS

"I Had No Knowledge Before 6 A. M., Nov. 11, That the Armistice Had Been Signed and That Firing Was to Cease at 11 A. M."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Charges made before a House war investigating committee that lives of American soldiers were wasted in needless attacks on armistice day are denied in a letter from Gen. Pershing, made public today by Representative Fuller, Republican, of Massachusetts.

Gen. Pershing said the American forces were acting under general instructions issued by Marshal Foch to all allied commanders on Nov. 9, 1918, and that orders for attacks were withdrawn as soon as possible after he was advised of the signing of the armistice. He also said statements that American troops were ordered to the attack while French divisions remained stationary were "wholly erroneous."

The General's letter is dated Nov. 21, 1919, and is in reply to charges contained in a letter to Fuller from Capt. George K. Livermore of Winchester, Mass., formerly operations officer of the 167th Field Artillery Brigade of the Ninety-second (negro) Division.

Fuller explained that he made the letter public in view of statements recently made before the Investigating Committee by Brigadier-General Sherburne, commanding the artillery brigade of the Ninety-second Division, about which much of the controversy regarding armistice day losses has centered.

The letter follows:

I had no knowledge before 6 a. m. Nov. 11, that the armistice had been signed and that firing was to cease at 11 a. m. Nov. 11.

The armistice, effective at 11 a. m., Nov. 11, was not signed until 5 a. m., Nov. 11, hence the information which Capt. Livermore states he received about midnight of Nov. 10 was only a rumor although that rumor proved to be correct.

For several days prior to Nov. 11 false rumors of the signing of an armistice were prevalent in all the armies. You may recall that at least one of these rumors even reached the United States and that Nov. 7, I think, was made a day of celebration on account of a false report.

All armies took steps to correct these rumors, and at 8:45 p. m., Nov. 9, the following telegram was received by me from Marshal Foch:

"The enemy, disorganized by our repeated attacks, is withdrawing along the whole front. It is important to maintain and hasten our action. I appeal to the energy and initiative of the commanders in chief and their armies to secure decisive results."

All of the allied commanders received similar telegrams from Marshal Foch.

Neither British nor French headquarters ordered firing to cease prior to the going into effect of the armistice, that is, at 11 a. m., Nov. 11, and in general firing by all the allies and by the enemy continued on the whole front from Switzerland to the sea until that hour. In places the firing died away prior to 11 a. m., and in a few places firing continued until after that hour.

The Ninety-second Division, astride the Moselle, attacked at 7 a. m., Nov. 10, and at 5 a. m., Nov.

TEACHERS AT LEBANON, ILL., GIVE NOTICE OF A STRIKE

Declare They Cannot Live on Their Present Salaries—Expected to Go Out Tomorrow.

A strike of public school teachers at Lebanon, Ill., is in prospect for tomorrow morning. There is one school building, occupied by all the grades and the high school classes.

A member of the faculty said last night the teachers had served notice on the Board of Education that they would not again meet their classes unless their salaries should be increased enough to meet the cost of living. Dr. Philip Griesbaum, a member of the board, said the only thing that prevented the increase was a lack of funds, and that he saw no way of overcoming that obstacle.

The teachers are paid $65 a month and upward, the principal receiving $150 a month. They say they cannot live on such salaries.

OWNER OF LOST EARRING SAYS CURSE HAS BEEN PUT UPON IT

Time of Loss Definitely Stated in Advertisement, But Indefiniteness as to Place is Marked.

She knows she lost her earring at 2:36 a. m. Dec. 26, but she isn't certain whether it was on Olive street, Chippewa street, Iowa avenue, an Olive car or a Jefferson car. However, she wants it returned, even if it does bear a curse which would make its possession undesirable, so this advertisement was sent to the "Lost" columns of the Post-Dispatch last night:

"Lost: Diamond earring, about ½ karat, with screw attached, on Olive street, Olive car, Jefferson car or on Chippewa and Iowa avenue, Dec. 26 at 2:36 a. m. Party finding it will not have any luck, as there has been a curse placed upon it by many persons. If finder can return same we can come to some agreement as to a reward, and no trouble or questions asked; 2716 Chippewa street."

A reporter called at that address to learn why the owner was so definite about the time and so indefinite about the place, but found nobody home.

PALMER QUOTED AS SAYING FRIEDNS SAY WILSON WON'T RUN

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10.—Attorney-General A. Mitchell Palmer was quoted here tonight by newspaper interviewers to the effect that persons in close touch with President Wilson are certain that he will not seek re-election.

"The President," Palmer is quoted as saying, "realizes that there is a certain sentiment throughout the country against a Chief Executive running for a third time, and, while he has not made any definite declaration that he will not be a candidate this year, his personal friends know he will not even consider it."

MORRIS EMPLOYES GET $225,000

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Morris & Co., meat packers, today distributed $225,000 among 2991 employes who have entered its profit-sharing plan. The net earnings for 1919 were not sufficient to pay the 10 per cent guaranteed the participants, so the company used some of its surplus.

Diminished earnings during the year are ascribed by officials to the Government's agitation against the packers and to the reduced prices of inventory products.

GOVERNOR JOINS IN INQUIRY OF POISON CASE IN WISCONSIN

Asks About Delay in Issuing Warrant for Doctor Accused of Causing Death of Wife's Mother.

PROSECUTOR SAYS HE 'HAS HIS OWN PLANS'

Body of Man May Be Exhumed in Investigation Into Five Deaths in Family During Last Five Years.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 10.—Gov. Phillip opened a personal investigation today to determine why a warrant has not been issued for the arrest of Dr. J. A. Freudenberg, accused by a Coroner's jury at Markesan Friday of causing the death of Mrs. Nettie Duffies, his mother-in-law. Mrs. Duffies left an estate estimated at between $250,000 and $500,000, to which Dr. Freudenberg's wife is sole heir.

"If the Coroner's jury charged the doctor with responsibility for the death a warrant should have been issued immediately," the Governor said. "I will make an investigation and if I find that the District Attorney has been lax I will get after him. It may be that he has a good and legitimate reason for the delay."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MARKESAN, Wis., Jan. 10.—When informed of the Governor's statement as to the Duffies case, District Attorney Paul said he has his own plans to work out and proposes to carry them out: "regardless of what action the Governor or anyone else may take."

This staid little rural community finds itself divided into opposing camps, one of which stanchly champions the cause of the accused man, the other just as vehemently upholding the correctness of the Cororner's jury finding.

The younger members of the community are arrayed against the young physician, while the older residents stand by him.

Bodies May Be Disinterred.

It is reported that District Attorney Paul plans to have disinterred the body of Alfred Duffies, husband of Mrs. Duffies who died two years ago, since suggestions have been made that his death might not have been due to natural causes.

In a little more than five years five deaths take place in the family.

With the last death suspicion that has been expressed only in undertones and whispers, concerning one of the previous deaths, has taken the form of legal action. County officers were called in and after an investigation extending over 10 weeks, the formal charge was made that the fifth death was caused by Dr. Freudenberg.

It was on Jan. 25, 1919, when Mrs. Duffies, last survivor of the group, became ill, her ailment being diagnosed by Dr. Freudenberg as kidney and bladder trouble. While attending her for this trouble a few days later it is said, the doctor gave her injections in the bladder upon which the verdict of the coroner's jury is based. She was removed to Fond Du Lac a few days later and placed in a hospital.

Taken Home on Cot.

She was taken back to her home on a cot April 1, 1919, and spent most of her time in a wheel-chair, requiring assistance when she tried to walk. She also suffered severe pain much of the time until she died, Nov. 1, last. The body was not prepared for burial for two days. On the second day her brother telephoned to District Attorney Paul and asked him to take action.

Paul immediately sent a request to the Justice, Alex McDonald, of Markeson to take charge of the body, which the latter did, and upon Mr. Paul's arrival in Markeson the next day, an inquest was begun. Dr. C. H. Bunting, professor of pathology at the University of Wisconsin, in the presence of outside physicians performed an autopsy and removed affected organism for laboratory investigation. The inquest was adjourned to await results of the analysis.

IDENTITY OF DONOR OF 11 MILLION TO SCHOOL REVEALED

George Eastman of Kodak Fame Is the Mysterious "Smith," Benefactor of Boston Tech.

FIRST GIFT IN 1912 WAS $2,500,000

Requested That It Be Made Anonymously as He "Didn't Want to Hear People Talk About It."

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Jan. 10.—George Eastman of Rochester, N. Y., is the "mysterious Mr. Smith," who has given or pledged $11,000,000 to Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The secret of more than seven years' standing, was revealed tonight by President Richard C. MacLaurin of the institute, in a statement made prior to a jubilee dinner of the alumi.

President McLaurin, in a review of "Mr. Smith's" benefactions to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said that in 1912, after the institute had secured options to its present 50-acre site, he visited "Mr. Smith's" principal plant and later spent an evening with "Mr. Smith" in New York, where he explained the institute's plans and problems.

Sought Good Beginning.

"Before I left him," said MacLarin, "he stated that to enable us to make a good beginning, he would contribute $2,500,000 to the building project. He asked that his gift be an anonymous one, his object being to see a good thing done and not to hear people talk about it."

During the progress of the building construction, "Mr. Smith" gave another $1,000,000. In 1916, after the dedication of the new buildings, he furnished the equipment of several laboratories, and in the same year he offered to give $5 for every three that others would give for endowment up to a limit of $2,500,000 on his part. Conditions necessary to obtain this maximum were met by the end of 1916.

Last Offer, $4,000,000.

His latest benefaction, which resulted in the disclosing of his identity tonight, was his offer in June, 1919, to give $4,000,000 for endowment if an equal amount was secured within a reasonable time and if $3,000,000 were pledged before Jan. 1, 1920. The dinner tonight celebrated the completion of the campaign for this large addition to the endowment fund.

President MacLaurin commented upon the "great guessing competition" as to "Mr. Smith's" identity, started by the announcement of his first gift in 1912.

"The public favorites," he said "seemed to be Carnegie, Frick, Du Pont, Vail and Edison. Later the theory grew in some people's minds that 'Smith' was a syndicate.

"The publicity given to the campaign to meet the conditions of his gift in 1916 lead to a revival of interest in his identity. Suspicion centered on two New York millionaires, each of whom strongly suspected the other. In another center, a man, not 'Mr. Smith,' claimed to be he and in still another, a woman made it known to her friends that she was certain 'Mr. Smith' was her husband, although here she was in error."

Eastman Gifts of $16,739,000 to Public Previously Announced.

By the Associated Press.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 10.—Public benefactions of George Eastman, which had been announced before the gift to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology today total $16,739,000. They were made mainly to institutions in Rochester, his home city.

Send Demands for Treaty Action to Wilson, Not Senate, Urges Lodge

Senator Tartly Tells Some of His Massachusetts Constituents to Put Pressure on White House.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Jan. 10.—Senator Lodge in a personal letter made public today by the Massachusetts Joint Committee for a league of free nations, advises those who are anxious for prompt action on the treaty, to direct some of these suggestions to the President.

The letter from Senator Lodge says:

"The incessant demand that is made in certain quarters for further concessions by the Senate is not helpful to the cause of agreement because the President has not only failed at every point to consult the Senate in any way but he still stands immovable in his demand that we ratify the league of nations without any change at all, which the Senate has refused to do. It seems to me it would be well for those who are anxious for the immediate action to direct some of their suggestions to the President and his followers whom he called upon to reject the reservations which are offered and which I believe to be absolutely sound in principle."

RESUMPTION OF MAIL TUBE SERVICE PROPOSED IN BILL

Measure Introduced in Congress, Affecting St. Louis, Would Have Government Buy Systems.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Resumption of the pneumatic mail tube service in New York, Brooklyn, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and St. Louis, with Government purchase of the systems to be made on a valuation to be fixed by the Interstate Commerce Commission, was proposed in bills introduced today by Representative Vare, Republican, of Pennsylvania.

The machinery of the St. Louis pneumatic system was removed shortly after July 1, 1918, when its use was ordered stopped by the department. Nothing remains but "a hole in the ground," about nine inches in diameter, it was said, running between the main office, Eighteenth and Walnut streets, and Bridge Station, Third street and Washington avenue, with a relay at Central Station, Ninth and Olive streets.

The present condition of the tunnel and the time necessary to restore it to service could not be stated.

GOVERNMENT MOVES SLOWLY IN BEER SALE PROSECUTIONS

Five Informations Issued, Latest One Against Grand Avenue Saloonkeeper.

The issuance of informations charging violation of the wartime prohibition enforcement act, especially as to the sale of beer, is proceeding slowly because of the Government's policy of making analyses of all drinks the sale of which has been made the basis of arrests by Internal Revenue Agents and enforcement officers.

Thus far five informations have been issued. The latest, issued yesterday, was that against Joseph M. Cody, a saloonkeeper at Grand and Easton avenues, who is charged with having sold a glass of beer to a revenue agent last Wednesday.

An analysis of a sample of this beer show that it contained 2.3 per cent alcohol, or less than the 2.75 per cent which all recently made beer was supposed to contain. The enforcement law forbids the sale of any beverage containing as much as one-half of one per cent alcohol.

Move for Restoration of Province by Nipponese Government Reported in Cablegram From Tokio.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 10.—Japan and China have started negotiations on the question of the restoration of Shantung to China, according to a cablegram received today by the New World, a Japanese newspaper here, from Tokio.

DYER WOULD ADVANCE WOOD

Introduces Bill to Make Army Officer a Lieutenant-General.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Promotion of Major-General Leonard Wood to the rank of Lieutenant-General because of his "meritorious services to the Government in wars in which the United States has been a belligerent," was proposed in a bill introduced today by Representative Dyer, Republican, of Missouri.

MEASURE BARS FROM MAILS ANY SABOTAGE PLEAS

Severe Penalties for Acts or Propaganda Advocating Overthrow of Government by Force or Violence.

MAXIMUM PENALTY $5000 AND 5 YEARS

Measure, Drawn by Sterling, Now Goes to House; Substitute for Action Palmer Asked For.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—An anti-sedition bill prescribing severe penalties for acts or propaganda advocating overthrow of the Government by force or violence, was passed by the Senate today without a record vote. The measure now goes to the House.

Maximum penalties fixed in the bill are a fine of $5000 and five years imprisonment, applying to all acts or circulation of literature in furtherance of forcible overthrow of the Government. The bill also bars from the mails any matter advocating force or sabotage.

Principal attack on the bill was aimed at the mail exclusion section, which opponents declared would confer press censorship power on the Postmaster-General. Advocates of the measure denied that the bill would limit constitutional rights of free speech or assemblage. Under an amendment by Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, accepted by the Senate, persons against whom this clause is invoked can appeal to Federal courts.

Promisions of the Bill.

The bill prohibits persons from advocating or advising by speech, writing or printing, the forcible overthrow of the United States or all Government, or by physical injury to person or property. It also would penalize attempts or acts hindering execution of laws or Federal agents in their duties.

Another section prohibits display of flags, banners or emblems intended to symbolize advocacy of force against the Government.

Aliens violating the act would be subject to deportation and permanent exclusion after undergoing imprisonment.

The bill, drawn by Senator Sterling, Republican, South Dakota, has been heralded as a measure against "reds" and their propaganda.

It goes to the House for consideration in connection with sedition legislation now being prepared by the House Judiciary Committee, and in a measure is a substitute for legislation recommended by Attorney-General Palmer.

Criticism of the Measure.

Senator Sterling told the Senate today that the bill did not penalize peaceful agitation looking to changes in the Government. This was characterized by Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, as an alleged weakness. The Tennessee Senator declared the bill would not reach dangerous Anarchists and other radicals who preach insidious propaganda against the Government, suggesting violence, while disclaiming advocacy of force. He offered an amendment designed to extend the bill's penalties to peaceful efforts to overthrow the Government, but it was rejected without a record vote. The McKellar amendment also proposed a penal colony for "reds" at Guam.

The Senate also rejected an amendment by Senator Pomerene, Democrat, Ohio, proposing that the bill apply to attempts against state as well as the Federal Government.

KING VOICES HOPE THAT BRITAIN MAY FOREVER LIVE AT PEACE

Telegraphs Reply to Loyal Message From People of London on Ratification of Peace.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, JAN. 10.—Replying to a loyal message from the citizens of London on the ratification of peace, the king has telegraphed the Lord Mayor of London as follows:

"With all my heart I reciprocate their hopes and fervently pray, that, please God, this day may be the dawn of a new era, in which the people of the British Empire may forever live at peace with itself and with all men."

LEAGUE OF NATIONS TO COME FORMALLY INTO BEING ON NEXT FRIDAY

Germany Notified That Armistice Still Governs Relations With U. S.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.

FORMAL notice has been served on Germany by the United States in connection with the deposit at Paris today of ratifications putting into effect the treaty of Versailles, that conditions of the armistice still govern relations between the United States and Germany.

Announcement of this action was made tonight by the State Department in a statement showing that official notification of the exchange had been received. Outlining the situation due to the fact that the United States had not ratified the treaty, it said:

"It is the position of this Government that the armistice continues in full force and effect between the United States and Germany, and accordingly the provisions of the armistice agreement of Nov. 11, 1918, as well as the provisions of the extensions of that agreement, remain binding on these two nations.

"Notice of this was given to the German Government by the United States."

LERSNER REGRETS STATE OF WAR WITH U. S.

German Delegate Happy, However, That Peace With Allies Is Now Effective.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 10.—"I am naturally happy that peace has finally become effective," Baron von Lersner, head of the German mission, said today after peace became effective. "My great regret is that the United States is the only country with which Germany is still in a state of war. I hope, however, that this situation will soon be changed.

"Execution of the treaty of Versailles imposes upon Germany the heaviest sacrifices ever borne by a nation in modern times. We lost in the west and in the east territories that belonged to Prussia for many centuries. We have assumed enormous economic obligations. Nevertheless, I am glad that peace is at last re-established, because it will give back to Germany her beloved sons still prisoners abroad."

Asked as to the execution of the terms of the treaty, Baron von Lersner said that Germany was ready and determined to do her utmost. He continued:

"We have already, even without being obliged by the terms of the treaty, delivered a considerable quantity of products, including two and one-half million tons of coal to France, and I can say that Germany will go to the utmost limit of possibility in fulfilling all the obligations she has incurred. It will mean hard times for Germany, but with the recovery of our ardor for labor and production we hope to meet every emergency.

"The recovery of our economic prosperity is as much to the interest of the Entente as it is to us, on account of the great economic difficulties that threaten all Europe. It is obvious, speaking chiefly of France, that her economic prosperity depends upon the economic recovery of Germany."

Baron von Lersner said he had had several very satisfactory conferences with Louis Loucheur, French Minister of Reconstruction, regarding the resumption of trade relations between Germany and France, and added that he hoped the European nations, working together, would solve the great economic problems. The most thorny remaining problem appeared to Von Lersner to be the question of the Ratifications Are Exchanged in the Old Clock Hall at French Foreign Ministry in Paris.

CLEMENCEAU SHAKES HANDS WITH GERMANS

Baron von Lersner, Head of the German Mission, Had Previously Signed the Scapa Flow Protocol.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 10.—Ratification of the treaty of Versailles were exchanged, and peace between Germany, France, Great Britain and the other allied and associated Powers, with the exception of the United States, became effective at 4:16 o'clock this afternoon (10:16 a. m. St. Louis time).

The ceremony was in the Clock Hall at the French Foreign Ministry.

The league of nations will now be put into being formally on next Friday.

The outstanding comments tonight on the treaty ratification ceremony is that it leaves the United States the only Power which was actively at war with Germany not now on a peace basis. That was the note sounded by Baron Kurt von Lersner, head of the German peace delegation, in a statement to the Associated Press immediately after the ceremony.

Previously Baron von Lersner had signed the protocol of Nov. 1, providing for reparation for the sinking of the German warships at Scapa Flow and to insure the carrying out of the armistice terms. The signing of this document occurred in the office of the Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Baron von Lersner and Herr von Simson, the other German representative were among the last of those to arrive at the Foreign Ministry for the day's ceremonies. They passed into the foreign office shortly after Premier Clemenceau, who as usual was given an ovation as he stepped out of his car.

The delegates assembled in the private office of the Minister of Foreign Affairs, where at a secret session the protocol was signed at 4:09 o'clock.

Germans First to Sign.

Led by Premier Clemenceau, the delegation then filed into the famous Clock Room, where were held the plenary sessions of the peace conference that fixed the terms of the treaty. Baron von Lersner and Herr von Simson were the last to enter the room and the first to sign the minutes recording the exchange of ratifications.

The proceedings began without any ceremony. Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain following the German delegates at the signing table. He was succeeded by Premier Clemenceau, who on returning to his seat after signing, stopped in front of Baron von Lersner and Herr von Simson. The German representatives arose and bowed to M. Clemenceau, who said a few words which were inaudible to the spectators.

This incident was watched with the most intense interest in a dead silence. It was noticed that Baron von Lersner made a movement as if to put out his hand but seemed to check himself as he saw that M. Clemenceau kept his gray gloved hands at his sides.

(Clemenceau had previously shaken hands with Van Lersner and Von Simson.)

Premier Nitti of Italy, Baron Matsui, the Japanese representative, and Paul Hymans, the Belgian Foreign Minister, followed Premier Clemenceau in the order named.

"The Treaty Is in Full Effect."

Then the delegates of the other ratifying nations signed in alphabetical sequence. The entire ceremony was over at 4:16 o'clock when M. Clemenceau rose and said:

"The protocol having been signed, as well as the minutes recording the exchange of ratifications, I have the honor to declare that the treaty of Versailles is in full effect and that its terms will be executed integrally."

The ceremony was characterized by formal politeness to the exclusion of all cordiality, excepting between the allied delegates. M. Clemenceau and Mr. Lloyd George, sitting at the head of the table chatted smilingly with Capt. Andre Tardieu, Louis Klotz and Georges Leygues, of the French delegation, throughout the proceedings. Baron von Lersner was pale and grave and exchanged remarks in a serious tone with Herr von Simson.

At the end of M. Clemenceau's remarks all the delegates arose and the Germans, after slight hesitation, led the way out without either saluting or exchanging words with any of the other delegates.

The absence of American representatives was particularly remarked. Up to the last hour Hugh C. Wallace, the American Ambassador, was in doubt as to whether he would receive instructions to attend the ceremony. Finally, hearing nothing from Washington, he returned to the secretary of the peace conference the invitations that had been sent him.

After the ceremony it was learned that Premier Clemenceau's remark to the German representatives was to the effect that he would this evening give orders for the repatriation of the German war prisoners.

In the secret session, immediately after the signing of the protocol, M. Clemenceau shook hands with Baron von Lersner and Herr von Simson, it also became known.

The adoption of the alphabetical sequence for the affixing of signatures to the minutes recording the exchange of ratifications, led to the lesser Powers, after Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan and Belgium, signing as follows:

Bolivia, Brazil, Guatemala, Panama, Peru, Poland, Siam, Czecho-Slavakia (Tzecho-Slovakia) and Uruguay.

The principal Powers and the representatives of Poland, after signing the ratification minutes, also signed the minutes of ratification of the treaty for the protection of racial minorities.

Premier Clemenceau, Lloyd George and Nitti did not leave the Foreign Ministry with the other allied representatives, but remained for a conference in private.

After the exchange of ratifications of the treaty Premier Clemenceau handed to Baron von Lersner the following letter:

"PARIS, Jan. 10.—Now that the protocol provided for by the note of Nov. 2 has been signed by qualified representatives of the German Government and in consequence the ratification of the treaty of Versailles have been deposited, the allied and associated Powers wish to renew to the German Government their assurance that while necessary reparations for the sinking of the German fleet in Scapa Flow will be exacted, they do not intend to injure the vital economic interest of Germany. On this point, by this letter, they confirm the declarations which the general secretary of the peace conference was charged with making orally to the president of the German delegation on Dec. 23."

Prepared to Reduce Demands.

"If the investigation to which the interallied commission on control will proceed shall show that there has really been an error, the allied and associated Powers will be prepared to reduce their demands proportionally in a manner to lower them to 300,000 tons in round numbers, and even below that if the necessity of such a reduction shall be demonstrated by convincing arguments. But most complete facilities should be accorded to authorized allied and associated representatives to enable them to make all necessary inquiries with a view to verifying the German assertions before any reduction from the original demands of the protocol can be definitely admitted by the allied and associated Powers.

"3. The allied and associated Governments, with reference to the last paragraph of the letter which contains their reply, do not consider that the sole act of sinking the German ships at Scapa Flow constitutes a crime of war for which individual punishment will be exacted in conformity with article 228 of the peace treaty.

Economic Interests Considered.

"On the other hand, the allied and associated powers wish to point out that, without losing sight of the vital economic interests of Germany, they have presented a demand for 400,000 tons on the inventory established by them. German experts have furnished details which we will verify and which give a smaller figure. Consequently, there will eventually be deducted from the 400,000 tons of floating docks, cranes, tugs and dredges claimed by the Allies, a tonnage of floating docks, which, after verification we will recognize as having been included on the inter-Allied inventory by mistake and which consequently does not exist. Nevertheless, such deduction shall not exceed 125,000 tons.

"The Allied and Associated Powers add that the 192,000 tons proposed by the German government, of which a list was handed over during the deliberations of the technical commissions, must be delivered immediately. For the balance of the tonnage, as shall be determined by the Commission on Reparation, a delay will be allowed the German Government which cannot exceed thirty months for delivery of the total amount."

(Signed),
"CLEMENCEAU."

Eight preliminary documents concerning the details of the enforcement of the treaty already had been signed. Five of these are between the Entente and the Germans and concern Galicia and other territories affected. The other three, between the Poles and the Germans, settle the details of the relations of these countries in the enforcement of the treaty.

The putting of the league of nations into being, which will be one of the immediate consequences of the exchange of ratifications of the treaty of Versailliers, will occur in Paris at 10:30 o'clock in the morning of Friday, Jan. 16, the Supreme Council decided today.

Ambassador Wallace cabled this decision of the council to President Wilson so that the President might issue the formal notice of the meeting of the council of the league to be held on the date named.

The first meeting of the council will be called to order and presided over by Leon Bourgeois, the representative of France in the council. He will deliver a brief address. Earl Curzon, the British Foreign Secretary, who will represent Great Britain at the meeting, will also speak.

Effect of Signing of Treaty; History of Negotiations

Peace Pact and League Now Begin to Function for Germany and Allies Which Have Ratified Pact.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Peaceful relations between Germany and the greater number of the nations engaged in the great war with her are established by the action taken at Paris today. The peace treaty now goes into effect as between Germany and those Powers that have finally ratified it—Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, Guatemala, Panama, Peru, Poland, Siam, Czecho-Slovakia and Uruguay.

Great Britain was the first of the five great Powers represented in the Supreme Council of the peace conference to take such action, being followed in succession by France, Italy and Japan. The United States alone of the "Big Five" has not ratified the treaty. As the list shows, formal ratifications have been given by most of the smaller Powers signatory to the treaty. China did not sign the document because of her objections to the Shantung provisions, but proclaimed a state of peace with Germany.

The all-important ratification by Germany was given on July 9, 1919, the day following which President Wilson presented the treaty to the United States Senate.

The making of the peace which now becomes effective was begun shortly after the conclusion of the armistice of Nov. 11, 1918, which ended the great war. The treaty of Versailles, as it has become known, was signed in the historic Versailles palace on June 28, 1919.

Long Work of Conference.

The long interval between the assembling of the peace conference at Versailles on Jan. 18, 1919 and the signing of the treaty, was occupied with almost daily conferences on its provisions between the representatives of the nations which had been at war with Germany or had broken relations with her, the principal parts being taken by delegates of France, Great Britain, Italy, Japan and the United States. The first important work completed was the drawing up of the covenant of the league of nations, which was finished on Feb. 14. The German representatives were invited to Versailles during April, after the draft of the terms of peace had been completed. They received the treaty on May 7.

The treaty not only defines the terms of peace with Germany, but contains the league of nations covenant and the provisions of the international labor organization. The document comprises 15 parts with numerous annexes. It provided that as soon as it had been ratified by Germany and three of the principal allied and associated Powers a process verbal of the deposit of ratifications should be drawn up, from the date of which the treaty would come into force as between the Powers which had ratified it. The treaty will enter into force for each other Power at the date of the deposit of its ratification.

Scapa Flow Caused Delay.

In October last, a sufficient number of Powers had ratified the treaty to comply with the requirements for its effectiveness. Because of the sinking of the interned German warships by their officers and crews at Scapa Flow, however, and the failure of the Germans to live up to some of the armistice terms the allies on Nov. 1 demanded that before the treaty was put into effect Germany should sign a protocol providing for reparation for the destruction of the warships and guaranteeing the carrying out of the armistice terms.

Since that time the question of the protocol and particularly the reparation provisions in it have been under negotiation between the allied Supreme Council and the German Government. It was only within the past fortnight that the situation began to clear, an adjustment of the tonnage demands upon Germany being reached.

With the taking effect of the treaty a number of commissions created by it spring into existence, the league of nations will begin to function by the calling of the first meeting of its council, and preparations will be hastened for the taking of plebiscites in the areas where the population is to have the opportunity of determining whether their territories shall separate from Germany and take on another allegiance.

Of the commissions now beginning their work, probably the most important is the reparation commission, which will do a great amount of labor incident to the execution of the treaty, its special duty being to regulate Germany's payment of indemnification during the next 30 years.

Important also will be the commissions dealing with the Saar Valley, Rhenish territories, Upper Silesia, Teschen and Schleswig Boundary commissions which are to fix upon the spot new boundaries of Germany with Belgium, the Saar Basin, Poland and Czecho-Slovakia are to be appointed within 15 days

LONDON PAPERS REGRET AMERICA IS NOT A SIGNER

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—Regret over America's absention from participating in the ratification of the treaty of Versailles is again expressed in editorials printed in this morning's newspapers.

"America's absence," says the Telegraph, "clouds alike the prospect of the present and the future. It weakens profoundly the moral authority of the league of nations, and consequently the sense of security regarding the immediate future.

The Daily News contends: "A new world order from which America, or for that matter, Germany or Russia, or any considerable fraction of mankind is excluded is foredoomed to failure."

The newspapers urge that it is advisable to press on with the construction of the league, even in the event that America determines to remain outside because "there is reasonable hope that once the league is in being, this attitude will ultimately become impossible."

Referring, like other journals, to political conflicts in America regarding the league and the Versailles treaty, the Chronicle says:

"The position is not yet reassuring to Europeans who are living in a world shattered by war. While Americans continue to debate we may derive some crumbs of comfort from the fact that statesmen like William Jennings Bryan and Gilbert M. Hitchcock, Democratic leader in the United States Senate, have no illusions about the danger of delay for Europe and the effect it has had upon American prestige."

Mr. Wilson, as Treaty Provides, Will Call League of Nations Meeting.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—President Wilson is expected to sign the call for the first meeting of the League of Nations Council immediately after receiving notice from Ambassador Wallace that the first session has been fixed for next Friday. The United States, however, will not be represented at the meeting as the treaty has not yet been ratified by the Senate.

Provision for the President to issue the call for the initial meeting of the council is made in the peace treaty, and officials explain that in signing the call Mr. Wilson would not be acting in his capacity as President of the United States.

The coming into force of the treaty through exchange of ratification today between Great Britain, France, Italy, and Germany, will not affect the United States, officials said. While technically the state of war between this country and Germany still exists, trade between the countries was resumed some months ago and is steadily increasing, particularly the export movement from the United States.

The United States, however, will not be represented on any of the various commissions set up by the treaty for carrying out its terms, nor can this country send consular agents into Germany until the state of war is ended.

All German Prisoners Expected to Be Home by April 30.

BERLIN, Jan. 10.—Receiving camps for returning German prisoners will be established at Mannheim, Dusselford, Limburg, Worms, and Appenweiler, it is anounced. With the maintenance of a daily average of six thousand, it is expected that all the prisoners will have been returned by April 30.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—No confirmation reached Washington today of a Brussels report that the Ebert Government has been overthrown in Germany and that strikes have occurred all over the country.

TEA ROOM ON THE BOWERY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—A tearoom equipped with a regular bar and a shiny footrail rescued from a notorious saloon of bygone days was opened on the Bowery today by the Salvation Army. Every known brand of drink of no alcoholic content will be served. Attached to the tearoom is a cafeteria.

Sponsors of the enterprise, which made old-timers on the once wicked thoroughfare shake their heads sadly, sent wagonloads of floral pieces most of which bore the legend, "Good Luck."

ALBANY ASSEMBLY INVITING VIOLENCE, SENATE IS TOLD

Unseating of Socialist Representatives Attacked by Borah, Republican, and Thomas, Democrat.

MANNER OF EXCLUSION TERMED "DANGEROUS"

C. E. Hughes in Letter Also Declares Action in Legislature Is Encouragement to Use of Force.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Refusal of the New York State Assembly to seat five Socialist representatives drew fire today in the Senate. Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, declared such action invited lawlessness and disorder, while Senator Thomas, Democrat, Colorado, said it would drive the Socialists to "revolutionary methods."

Declaring the incident one of the most remarkable in the history of politics in this country, Senator Borah said if members of a legislative body could be expelled for their political views, Republicans or Democrats in Congress could exclude each other from representation.

Senator Thomas expressed the hope that "common sense" would operate on the majority in the New York Assembly and lead to the seating of the Socialists.

Arraigns Assembly's Procedure.

When the five Socialists were excluded from taking the oath, Senator Borah said, "they were not called before the Speaker's chair, but without any previous charge or any previous notification of incapacity to serve as legislators of that State, they were told as follows:

"'You are seeking seats in this body. You have been elected on a platform that is absolutely inimical to the interests of the State of New York and of the United States.'

"The Republicans," Senator Borah continued, "could exclude every Democrat, and Democrats could exclude every Republican at every opening of Congress upon any such proposition if the Vice President should call before him a man who had been elected and say to him: 'Your views are inimical to what I consider the best interests of the United States and the state from which you come.' The Vice President would have just as much right to say that to that man as the Speaker of the Legislature of New York had the right to say it to those Socialists. If you deny men the right to effectuate their purposes and their plans through the ballot box, you invite them to violence and lawlessness in order to effectuate their plans."

Senator Sterling interrupted to say that exclusion of the Socialists from the New York Legislature did not meet with his approval.

"It could not meet with the approval of any man who had any regard for law and order," said Senator Borah. "For the most lawless is the man who, having taken his oath to support the laws and the Constitution of the country, violates them. Ignorant men walking upon the streets may with some excuse entertain the idea of lawlessness and take the law into their own hands. But there should be nothing but the utmost contempt for men who have risen to positions of responsibility and then take the law into their own hands and deny the people the right to effectuate their desires through the ballot box.

"The men are called for judgment before any charges are made against them, or any reason assigned to the men themselves. They are excluded from the privileges and rights of the assembly to which they have been elected until men shall judge whether or not they are qualified.

No Political Incapacity Urged.

"Not a single objection known to the Constitution of the State of New York is stated; not a political incapacity to serve as a legislator, but only the opinions of the majority who excluded them. In my humble judgment that forces lawlessness and revolution in this country. It is the most dangerous thing imaginable to fly in the face of the fundamental principle of representative government and to exclude men from representation in legislative bodies because of political opinions. Here are five Socialists in a body of 150 or perhaps 200 members, and they are excluded from that body upon what possible theory I do not know, except that their views would be dangerous. I think it a remarkable expression of wisdom that President Wilson once stated that when a man held erroneous views upon politics or religion, the thing to do was not to crush him, but to rent him a public hall and let him discuss those views and the American people would take care of the matter.

"I am not a believer in Socialism. I think if it were adopted in this country the men who are urging it would be just as quick to dread its effects as those who are now opposed to it. But there is no way by which we can augment and spread the doctrine either of Socialism or of Sovietism so thoroughly and effectively as to convince the world that we have no faith in our own Government, that we are willing to trample upon the most fundamental rights of representative government and will do so in an effort to protect ourselves. The theory that you must violate the Constitution in order to preserve it and that you must do away with the guarantees of the Constitution in order to preserve our Government is not only folly, but it is a conspiracy against our form of government."

Socialists Were Suspended as Individuals, Declares Chairman Lusk.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The New York Assembly's suspension of its five Socialist members follows the recent practice of Congress, State Senator Clayton R. Lusk, chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee investigating seditious activities, declared in a statement issued here tonight.

The Assembly's action amounts to a challenge of the fitness to serve of the Socialists "as individuals," Senator Lusk said. The charges against them were based on evidence presented before the Joint Legislative Committee, he added, although the committee is not "the complainant nor a party to the hearings."

Affiliations as Evidence.

"The charge is that they as individuals, personally, stand for the overthrow of the established State and national Governments by force and violence," Senator Lusk said. "Their affiliations with the Socialist party, as now organized, and the Rand school, their attitude toward communism, and their activities are simply evidence having a bearing on the question of whether they individually are pledged to the violent and revolutionary overthrow of our Government.

"The same procedure would have followed if charges had suddenly been made against them of corrupt practices in their elections. Such charges, with sufficient evidence to make a prima facie case, would result in their having to submit to a hearing before being seated. In fact, if a charge of any serious crime were made against an official between the time of his election and the time of his taking his seat, the public would expect such charges to be cleared before he took office.

"This practice has recently been followed in Congress. These cases are identical in principle.

"These men have not been challenged merely because they are Socialists, and of course they will not be convicted and deprived of their seats merely because they are Socialists. The difference of opinion which has arisen over the challenge made by the Assembly of their right to take their seats is premature, because obviously any intelligent discussion must be based on the proofs in the case, and whatever proofs there are have not yet been put in evidence."

Claessens Speaks at New York Rally

The Socialist party held three rallies late today at 110th street and Fifth avenue, in the heart of the district which sent August Claessens, suspended Socialist member, to the Assembly. Claessens spoke to a crowd of more than a thousand persons, who cheered him repeatedly.

"What the outcome of all this will be, I don't know," Claessens said. "They are signing their own death warrant. They are bringing about their own finish. If a citizen has no right to cast a ballot, then there is no democracy. That is a state of anarchy. We can indict the Democratic and Republican parties as arch-criminals.

"I have no apology to make for our manifesto. I say here and now, 'long live the international social revolution!' Every socialist is in favor of that. We have said it again and again. Social revolution does not mean the use of bombs or guns, nor does it mean a march to Congress, or Albany, or city hall to overthrow the Government. We shall leave that for the Republicans to do."

Only when peaceful means have been exhausted will violence be resorted to, Claessens said.

Suspension of the five Socialist Assemblymen was characterized in resolution adopted by the Young Men's Republican Club here today "as a stupid and wanton denial of the fundamental principles of Republican Government."

The action of the State Assembly in suspending the five Socialist members was to determine whether the organization they represent "advocate methods, or employ tactics" to bring about the overthrow of the Government, Thaddeus C. Sweet, Speaker of the Assembly, declared in a letter to Charles E. Hughes, made public tonight. It was in reply to the former Governor's letter condemning the ousting of the Socialist Assemblymen.

Every patriotic citizen should withhold judgment, Speaker Sweet added, until evidence respecting the Socialist party of America and other organizations had been presented to the Judiciary Committee of the Assembly before which the suspended Socialists will be "impartially judged" as to their "rights and fitness" to take their seats.

Speaker Sweet declared that criticism of the Assembly's action "without full knowledge of the facts in the case, of necessity gives aid and comfort to those elements of our society which seek the destruction of our institutions."

Hughes' Letter to Sweet.

Former Gov. Hughes, in his open letter to Speaker Sweet, denounced the suspension of the five Socialists as "opposed to the fundamental precepts of our Government;" "an attempt to indict a political party," and an incentive to violence and revolution. The letter said:

"I deeply regret the action of the Assembly in suspending five members of the Socialist party who have been duly elected. I think that you will agree that the high prerogative of the Assembly to pass upon the qualifications of its own members should be exercised in accordance with the spirit of our institutions.

"It is not, as I view it, in accordance with the spirit of our institutions, but, on the contrary, it is absolutely opposed to the fundamental principles of our Government for a majority to undertake to deny representation to a minority through its representatives elected by ballots lawfully cast.

"If there was anything against these men as individuals, if they were deemed to be guilty of criminal offenses, they should have been charged accordingly. But I understand that the action is not directed against these five elected members as individuals, but that the proceeding is virtually an attempt to indict a political party and to deny it representation in the Legislature. That is not, in my judgment, American Government.

"I understand that it is said that the Socialists constitute a combination to overthrow the Government. The answer is plain. If public officers or private citizens have any evidence that any individuals, or group of individuals, are plotting revolution and seeking by violent measures to change our Government, let the evidence be laid before the proper authorities and swift action be taken for the protection of the community.

Serious Mistake Made, He Says.

"Let every resource of inquiry, of pursuit, of prosecution, be employed to ferret out and punish the guilty according to our laws. But I count it a most serious mistake to proceed not against individuals charged with violation of law, but against masses of our citizens combined for political action, by denying them the only resource of peaceful government—that is, action by the ballot box, and through duly elected representatives in legislative bodies.

"The issue to my mind is very clear. I speak as one utterly opposed to Socialism and in entire sympathy with every effort to put down violence and crime, but it is because I am solicitous to maintain the peaceful processes essential to democracy that I am anxious to see Socialists as well as Republicans and Democrats enjoy their political rights.

"Are Socialists, unconvicted of crime, to be denied the ballot? If Socialists are permitted to vote, are they not permitted to vote for their own candidates? If their candidates are elected and are men against whom, as individuals, charges of disqualifying offenses cannot be laid, are they not entitled to their seats?

"What, may I add, is it supposed these Socialists will do in the legislature. As members they may introduce bills, they may oppose bills, they may debate them. In all matters they are subject to the rules of the assembly. Why should these privileges be denied to representatives of the Socialist party? Is it not clear that the Government cannot be saved at the cost of its own principles?

"If the Socialists were denied recourse through their duly elected representatives to the orderly process of government, what resort is there left to them? It is proposed to drive the Socialistic revolution by denying them participation in the means we have provided for orderly discussion of proposed changes in our laws?

"Nothing, in my judgment, is a more serious mistake at this critical time than to deprive socialists or radicals of their opportunities for peaceful discussion and thus to convince them that the Reds are right and that violence and revolution are the only available means at their command.

Hopes for Reverse of Action.

"I appreciate deeply your high sense of responsibility and your anxiety faithfully to serve the people of the State. I am constrained to write in this way because of the seriousness of the issue. I sincerely hope that the Assembly will take swift action to avoid a permanent grievance on the part of those who are threatened with virtual disfranchisement.

"I have sufficient confidence in our institutions to believe that they will survive all the onslaughts of discussion and political controversy. But democracy cannot be preserved if representation is denied. Apart from the matter of principle, the procedure is futile. To shut out the duly elected representatives of the Socialists is merely to multiply Socialists by the thousand.

"Instead of protecting us from revolution, it will do more to encourage the spirit of revolution and to strengthen the advocates of violence than any conceivable propaganda could accomplish."

Gov. Smith's Position.

The suspended Socialist Assemblymen should have been permitted to retain their seats in the Assembly until charges against them were presented, and they were "tried by orderly processes," Gov. Smith declared in a statement here tonight. He warned the Assembly to "exercise with care and discretion" its "arbitrary power" in determining the qualifications of its membership.

"Although I am unalterably opposed to the fundamental principles of the Socialist party," said Gov. Smith, "it is inconceivable that a minority party, duly constituted and legally organized, should be derived of its rights of expression so long as it has honestly, by lawful methods of education and propaganda, succeeded in securing representation, unless the chosen representatives are unfit as individuals.

MISS MARLOWE GIVES A 'PARTY'

Navy Commander and Wife Guests of Actress at Theater.

Commander and Mrs. E. A. Wolleson and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Wolleson of Belleville, yesterday afternoon were guests at the Schubert-Jefferson Theater of E. H. Sothern and Miss Julia Marlowe at their performance of "The Taming of the Shrew." The usual order was reversed and the flowers, in this case, came from the stage to the box instead of from the box to the stage.

Mrs. Wolleson, who was Miss Daisy Beech, a London actress, was associated with Miss Marlowe in stage entertainments given for navy men stationed at London. It was at one of these affairs that she met Wolleson, who was on duty with the mine laying forces. Miss Marlowe's "party" yesterday resulted from her desire to renew the association made overseas. After the performance the party was taken behind the scenes and introduced to members of the company.

PERSHING DENIES LIVES WHERE WASTED ON ARMISTICE DAY

11, advanced a short distance, but the troops had retired to cover in the face of reported heavy fire when the commander of the attacking brigade received information at 7:18 a. m. that an armistice would be effective at 11 a. m. The Brigade Commander reports that he ordered all firing stopped by 10:45 a. m. and that the firing was so stopped. The casualty records show that on Nov. 11 the Ninety-second Division lost 17 killed and 286 wounded, of whom 99 were gassed. The casualty records of the marines show that their losses on Nov. 11 were nine killed and 172 wounded.

The attack of the Ninety-second Division on the 9th of November continued at 5 a. m. on the morning of the 11th, was not a preliminary to the proposed attack on Nov. 14th.

Capt. Livermore stated: "Another point of interest in this matter is the fact that the Ninety-second Division was operating under orders to advance along the Moselle, while the French on its right flank were ordered to mark time until the 14th—the French well knowing that the chances strongly favored a termination of hostilities before that date. If the French worked on that basis why couldn't the American command have done as much?"

From July 15 to the armistice, the allies attacked in accordance with a general plan. This plan contemplated attacks from just east of the Moselle to the sea. From a point just east of the Moselle to Switzerland the allies were unable, prior to the armistice, to concentrate the necessary means for the attack. Thus the French troops holding the lines east of the Moselle took no part in the reduction of the St. Mihiel salient or the subsequent operations of the second army.

Early in November the allied commander-in-chief decided that the allies were in a position to concentrate sufficient troops for an attack east of the Moselle. These plans called for the employment of approximately 20 French divisions supported on the left by six American divisions. On Nov. 11 the necessary movements of concentration of both French and American troops were under way but none of them were in position.

Captain Livermore appears to be under the impression that on November 11 General Mangin was in command of the French troops on the right of the 92nd Division, and that that division was scheduled to attack on the immediate left of the French on November 14th. Both these impressions are wrong.

General Mangin would have commanded the French attack of the 14th, but on the 11th none of his troops were in the line and General Gerard commanded the army on the right of the 92nd Division. The plans for the attack of the 14th contemplated placing two American divisions, the 3d and 29th, in first line on the right of the 92nd Division and did not contemplate an attack by the 92nd Division except in the way of following up to keep in touch with the advance of the left of the 3d and 29th American divisions.

On November 11th parts of the French, British and Belgian lines, as well as parts of the American line, attacked and advanced. The implication that the Americans were the only troops which advanced on the November 11 is wholly erroneous.

With reference to your position as to "whether it was true that the French were as regardless of the wastage of men with the armistice in sight as we were," I must say that I think the language used appears to contain implications which are unwarranted.

Neither the French nor the Americans were regardless of the wastage of men on November 11, nor at any other time were 'American lives needlessly wasted because some of our officers were not as considerate of their men as the French were;' nor were American lives needlessly wasted for any other cause, unless it be that we had not adequately prepared for war in time of peace.

In 1918 the French had been exhausted by four years of war, and it is true that nearly all of our divisions attacked with more dash, enthusiasm and courage than any but a very few of the best French divisions. But this superiority of practically all of our divisions was not due to lack of consideration of his men by any American officer.

I believe the above, together with the statement made during my hearing, covers the points raised in your letter and its enclosure.

Letter Correctly Quoted Says Gen. Conner.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 10.—Gen. Pershing's letter to Representative Fuller of Massachusetts relative to the events of armistice morning was correctly quoted, Brigadier-General Fox Conner, Gen Pershing's chief of staff said tonight. Gen. Conner was Gen. Pershing's chief of operations in France.

"The armistice was signed at 5 a. m. Nov. 11, on Marshal Foch's train at Chantilly," Gen. Conner said, "and word of the signing reached Gen. Pershing at Chaumont at 6 a. m. The message was taken by Col. Boyd, now dead, who telephoned it to the different army headquarters.

"The idea of fixing 11 o'clock as the time to cease hostilities was that that fixed the minimum time in which all, including the advanced detachments, could quit. In some places the word was received earlier than in others, and firing consequently died down sooner.

"The facts about the Ninety-second (negro) division are these: The Ninety-second had been ordered to attack at 5 o'clock the morning of Nov. 11, and did so. The attack was repulsed. Word of the signing of the armistice was received by the Ninety-second at 7:18 a. m. and the attack was not renewed."

DR. LERSNER REGRETS U. S. IS ONLY COUNTRY STILL AT WAR

extradition of German officers, officials and soldiers to be tried for crimes alleged to have been committed during the war.

In conformity with the peace treaty and the annex of the league of nations covenant, Premier Clemenceau has telegraphed Argentina, Chila, Colombia, Denmark, Spain, Norway, Paraguay, Holland, Salvador, Sweden, Switzerland and Venezuela that the treaty is now effective and inviting them to membership in the league of nations.

As to Extradition.

"I do not want to give up all hope," continued Von Lersner, "that among the allies the conviction will finally prevail that, by availing themselves strictly of rights conceded in the treaty for the extradition of those accused, they may cause the greatest consequences, not only for Germany, but for quiet and order in Europe generally. We pointed out two months ago very frankly to the allies the harmful consequences that might ensue if their right to demand extradition should be executed literally. At the same time we submitted written suggestions for the solution of the delicate problem.

"The principal features of this proposition were that Germany would undertake to arraign before the Supreme Court of Germany all persons accused by the Entente; would except all such from the law of amnesty, and would consent to the presence of representatives of the Entente at the trial as public prosecutors, with fullest rights of control. Germany, in the meantime, has enacted laws to this end.

"The entente did not accept our proposals before peace became effective, but that does not preclude serious examination of the problem after the establishment of peace. Your conviction must be the same as mine, that the desire of the entente is by no means to satisfy revenge but to punish the guilty with equity and justice.

"Exceeds Austrian Demand."

"The entente proposal for obtaining this object, however, far exceeds the demands made by Austria upon Serbia for the punishment of the assassins of the Archduke, plans which were rejected by Serbia with the approval of the entente. I cannot believe that our former adversaries have any interest in compromising the re-establishment of normal life in Germany by insisting in this question of extradition upon availing themselves unsparingly of rights, the real end of which might be attained otherwise."

After the settlement of a few details connected with the arrangement for the execution of the treaty, Baron Von Lersner will leave for Berlin for a short rest.

BERGER, AGAIN DENIED HIS SEAT, IS RENOMINATED

Milwaukee Socialist Rejected by the House by Vote of 328 to 6 Soon After He Presents Himself.

MANN OF ILLINOIS SUPPORTS BERGER

Speaks for Milwaukee Man Re-elected to Congress and Votes for Him; Republican Wants Place.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Victor Berger, Milwaukee Socialist, re-elected from the Fifth Wisconsin Congressional District, after he had been refused membership in the House, "because he gave aid and comfort to the enemy," was denied his seat again today by a vote of 228 to 6.

The House acted in a little more than an hour after Berger presented himself to be sworn in.

Chairman Dallinger of the Election Committee which held Berger ineligible the first time, presented a resolution barring Berger and reviewed the reasons why Berger was excluded at the special session. Representative Mann, Republican, Illinois; Voigt, Republican, Wisconsin, and Sherwood, Democrat, Ohio, supported Berger's right to a seat.

Argument by Mann.

"This is a representative form of Government," Mann said, "and this we must maintain inviolate if the people desire it. Berger was elected by the people of Wisconsin; they have a right to be represented."

Speaking to his resolution, Chairman Dallinger said Berger was excluded the first time "not because of his so-called radical views, not because he is a Socialist, but because he is ineligible to membership under provisions of the Constitution."

"This will disqualify him permanently," he declared. "The people of Wisconsin may re-elect him and there are some who contend that if the people want him in Congress he is entitled to a seat, but a man excluded as Berger has been can never be eligible for membership."

"This is not an enviable task," Representative Mann said. "I do not share Berger's views. But Berger believes there should be fundamental changes in the Government. His people, his constituents, desire him. It is our duty to accept him. When we propose to meet arguments by force we are losing strength."

Objection to Berger Speaking.

Chairman Dallinger asked unanimous consent to permit Berger to speak for 10 minutes, but a score of members objected. Berger was denied a personal hearing.

Those voting to seat him were: Mann, Harreld, Republican, Oklahoma; Griffin, Democrat, New York; Sherwood; Sisson, Democrat, Mississippi, and Voigt. Representative Sabath, Democrat, Illinois, voted present.

Berger declared in a statement after the vote that the House action "was one of the worst attacks on the representative form of government ever witnessed in this country."

"It is really a denial of the right of people to elect the citizen of their choice," he said.

Representative Voigt, who was the only member to vote to seat Berger the first time, spoke in favor of seating him today.

"I am more firmly convinced than ever," he said, "that Berger is entitled to a seat. If he is a traitor, then there are 25,000 traitors in the Fifth Wisconsin District."

"There are," a score of members shouted.

"Then there are traitors in your district," Voigt retorted.

"Not at all," came from various members.

News From Milwaukee.

Members of the House showed little interest in news from Milwaukee that the Socialist Executive Committee had voted to renominate Berger.

Request for a hearing on Henry H. Bodenstad's right to the seat denied Berger has been made before Chairman Dallinger. Bodenstad, a Republican, was defeated by Berger by a majority of 4806 votes in the special election. The committee previously held Joseph P. Carney, Berger's opponent in the first election, to be ineligible.

Chairman Dallinger said today that at the time of his first election Berger was only under indictment under the espionage act, but that he had been convicted before the second election took place. This, he added, would strengthen Bodenstad's case.

Berger Is Immediately Renominated by His District Committee.

By the Associated Press.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 10.—The Socialist Committee of the Fifth Wisconsin Congressional District within a half hour after receiving the news that Victor L. Berger had been excluded from Congress, a second time, renominated him. The statement was made that he would be the candidate for the party at a special election to be demanded from the Governor.

"We will keep on nominating Berger until Hades freezes over if that un-American aggregation called Congress continues to exclude him," declared a statement issued by the committee.

"We want every person in this country to understand that the voters of the Fifth Wisconsin District know exactly whom they want as their Representative in Congress and we do not propose to let Gillette and his bunch of Wall Street fawners dictate to us on the subject.

"Berger is our Congressman and the action of Congress in unseating him a second time only starts the real fight that will not end until every one of the reactionaries who voted in today's disgraceful proceedings have been retired by the ballot to the oblivion they so richly deserve."

Gov. Phillip said he would not call another special election, as he did not believe that the citizens should again be put to that expense. The office will remain unrepresented until the regular election next fall. Local political leaders want another special election in connection with the municipal election in the spring. They are confident that a candidate can be uncovered who can defeat Berger.

Coasting Scenes in Forest Park

Snapshots Made Yesterday by a Post-Dispatch Photographer

HITCHING ON ...
THE HARD PART OF COASTING.
STARTING A SKI JUMP...
A SPILL ...
"OUT OF THE WAY !"

COASTING on Art Hill and Bird Cage drive, in Forest Park, will continue as long as the snow remains, and in the case of Art Hill, as long as the ice on the lagoon is also safe. There is no skating. Last night was the third night of park coasting, and hundreds of coasters, with sleds of varying lengths, joined in the sport, the opportunities for which come rarely here. Large bob-sleds, with steering wheels, have the right of way at times, and at other times flocks of small craft, mostly bearing schoolboys in horizontal position, are permitted to go down. The Art Hill slide is illuminated by special gasoline lamps at night

PUBLIC'S MAN HEADS COAL COMMISSION

H. A. Robinson President of Strike Settlement Body—First Session Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Henry N. Robinson, representing the public on the coal strike settlement commission, was today elected president of that body, it was announced after an informal session of the commissioners. Decision to establish permanent headquarters in the building formerly occupied by the Fuel Administration instead of the labor department also was reached and the first formal session will be held Monday morning. Representatives of operators and miners of the central competitive field have been invited to attend.

The commission worked all day on plans of procedure, and reviewed a considerable number of complaints presented by locals of the miners' union. Some of these alleged that operators had not complied fully with the Government's settlement plan, and had refused to reinstate union men coming back from the strike.

The Central Scale Committee of the central field operators was also in session today. It was pointed out that the operators had not yet formally accepted the Government's settlement plan, and had not agreed to be bound by the commission's action and decision, but it was also said that no decision to abstain from participation in the commission's procedure had been arrived at.

Miners' representatives, including John L. Lewis, acting president of the mine workers' union, have signified their intention to respond to the commission's call for hearings Monday.

GIRL SUES "TIPPING TRUST"

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Miss Hannah Stires, for two years a check girl in restaurants here, in a suit filed in the Superior Court asks for $25,425 from the "Chicago Tipping Trust." She alleged she received that amount in two years, and was compelled to give it to the "trust." Three men are named as defendants.

"These men have acquired the checking concessions in most hotels and cafes," said Miss Stires. "They pay girls $9 to $15 a week and compel them to drop tips in a small iron bank, which is camouflaged with paper.

Few Interpreters Needed for Census in St. Louis

Less Trouble Experienced by Enumerators in Districts Inhabited by Foreign-Born Than in Sections Where Wealthy Reside.

Sections of St. Louis inhabitated by persons speaking foreign languages are less troublesome to census enumerators than districts in which people of more or less wealth live, according to John A. Burke, supervisor of the census in St. Louis.

"There are several evidences of this," Burke said. "One is that we have very few calls for interpreters—fewer than we expected. A woman who does not understand seeks her neighbor for assistance.

"One enumerator took 118 names in one tenement yard, inhabited by Jews and Italians, without the aid of an interpreter. He did have valuable assistance from a 17-year-old school girl, however.

"Another enumerator took 184 names among 23 families in two tenement yards inhabited by Poles. He spoke German to them and completed his work with dispatch without any aid. St. Louis should be proud of the quality of her citizenship of foreign origin."

However, enumerators in the West End have no such cheery tale. The place of greatest difficulty so far in the enumeration is a hotel in the vicinity of Forest Park. A large number of its permanent guests have been discourteous to the woman enumerator assigned to it. Some have refused any information in a snobbish fashion. Still others have said that they preferred to be listed as from "New Yawk." Most of the few who have answered have compelled the enumerator to stand in the hall, writing with her book spread upon the floor or held against the wall.

Two business men in identical lines of business in downtown St. Louis showed a contrasting spirit. One refused to aid the enumerator in listing his servants. "Get a policeman to help you, if you like," he said.

The other yesterday called up the census headquarters, saying that a servant in his house had been overlooked and offering the needed information. A full count of population is presumed to be especially valuable to business.

In a beautiful home on Westminster place near Walton avenue, a woman was found who obtained much wholesome enjoyment out of the questioning. The family has two maids and when the questioning of one of these was concluded, the woman said to the enumerator, "Now we will have a bit of fun. The other maid is the one I call 'Stupid.' She thinks that is a pet name."

When the maid appeared—looking for all the world like a character on the stage—the woman said, "Now, Stupid, you must tell the enumerator whether or not you are engaged."

The girl poked her finger in one corner of her mouth and blushingly said, "Oh, yes ma'am, I beeen engaged, two times already and once again now."

Then the woman said, "Now, I am going to call in my conscientious daughter and have you ask her if she ever told a falsehood."

When the question was put to the girl, about 12 years old, she answered, same-facedly, "Yes'm, two of them that I remember of." The enumerator then asked, "Do you study hard?" Weighing her words carefully, the girl replied. "Well, when it is necessary to do so, but not very often.

When the enumerator left the woman said, "Come again, it's loads of fun taking the census."

"Married, single or divorced?" asked the enumerator of a negro janitor. "Yes, ma'am," he replied. The astonished enumerator asked him to explain and he answered.

"I am single, I has been married and is divorced."

One woman was obliged to telephone to her husband to ask how old he was and where he was born.

As she turned from the telephone she said: "I really never thought to ask those questions of John before. I met him, two years ago at a dance in St. Joe and he looked so good to me that I did not ask for references or a pedigree."

In a home on Westminster place, near Taylor avenue, there are four women, the entire "family," the youngest of whom is 55, and the eldest 80 years old.

They are not related to one another. The "head of the family" is a physician, one of the first women physicians to practice in St. Louis. She is 77 years old and as active as a woman of half that age. Although she no longer makes professional calls she has many old time friends who consult her. She is Scotch and the living room of her home is liberally sprinkled with etchings and paintings typifying scenes and historical incidents of Scotland.

One of the other women, who is 80 years old, was until four years ago a teacher. For many years she taught in the public schools of St. Louis, then she engaged in teaching a private class of pupils and built up a reputation throughout the city for the thoroughness of her work. Only a touch of deafness finally made it imperative for her to retire. She, too, is active and in perfect health.

And the two other women are maids, strangely reminiscent of certain fiction in which there usually is a character such as these—some faithful old retainer perhaps or a servant who had for years been with a family and called the heads of the family by their first names. One of the maids is 61, the other, 55 years old. The younger scouts the idea of her 61-year-old co-worker answering the door bell for she says that is work for a young girl and she attends to it herself. Both maids have the same given name—Alvina.

Rechecking their districts for familes not at home on first calls will take as much time as making the original canvas, West End enumerators are learning. One finished his district yesterday, and estimates that he must move fast to get all the names within the two-week limit, Friday.

Miss Madeline Nenaugh of 114 South Second street, an enumerator in that neighborhood, found a family of French descent on South Fourth street, whose 6-months-old baby had not yet been baptized, and for whom no name had been chosen. The mother asked Miss Nenaugh to be godmother for the child as soon as she completes the census, and Miss Nenaugh accepted. Meanwhile, she chose the name of Bibiana for the infant, with which its parents seemed delighted. The name is Italian and its original bearer was a martyr in the catcombs.

An old woman accosted a downtown enumerator the day after her family had been listed. She was in tears and said that she had forgotten to name her son, and when he learned of this she said he had "raised the devil."

"Are there maids who sleep here?" was asked of a matronly woman in an apartment on Westminster place.

"Oh, yes, two of them," she replied. Of course, they don't stay here nights, but I seldom hunt for one but what I find her sleeping somewhere."

In many cases where persons are not at home and blanks have been left to be filled out and mailed, the blanks have not been received by the enumerators. One enumerator in the West End has found it necessary to leave 25 of these blanks and has received in return only two. Since no postage and only a moment's effort are required, it is expected that the average person will return the blanks the day following that on which they are left.

ITALIAN STEAMER REPORTED SUNK WITH LOSS OF 700

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Genoa today says the Italian steamer Principessa Mafalda is reported to have struck a mine and sunk with the loss of 700 lives. The owners of the steamer have no confirmation of this report and it is discredited by Lloyds Shipping Agency here.

The Principessa Mafalda has not been reported since she left Buenos Aires, Dec. 31, for the Mediterranean. She is not due to pass Gibraltar for several days yet, however, the average time for the run from Buenos Aires to Gibraltar being 20 days.

The Principessa Mafalda is a steamer of 19,210 tons gross.

Clubwomen in All-Day Meeting.

A good fellowship meeting will be held by the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs of the Twenty-second district at an all-day session, Feb. 5, in the Y. W. C. A. rooms in East St. Louis. A luncheon will be served at noon, and N. C. McLean has been appointed to list reservations.

KOLCHAK REPORTED ARRESTED AT IRKUTSK

Man Said to Have Taken Over Control Is His Premier; Red Gain in Siberia.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—Admiral Kolchak, head of the all-Russian Government in Siberia, has been arrested at Irkutsk by Col. Pepeliayev, according to a Moscow wireless dispatch dated Friday. Col. Pepeliayev ordered his prisoner to hand over control of all affairs, it is added.

The Col. Pepeliayev mentioned in the foregoing may be Victor Pepeliayev, the Premier of the all-Russian Government, which removed its headquarters to Irkutsk after the capture of Omsk. Irkutsk was reported to have been seized recently by insurgent forces. Admiral Kolchak was reported early this month to be a considerable distance west of Irkutsk, a dispatch, Jan. 2, reporting him atAchinsk, 220 miles east of Tomsk.

Reds Reported to Have Entered Outskirts of Rostoff-on-the-Don.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—The Red forces have taken the town of Nakhitchevan, in the territory of the Don Cossacks, and entered the outskirts of Rostoff-on-the-Don, according to a Moscow wireless message. In the advance on Rostoff, says the dispatch, the Reds took 11,000 prisoners, seven tanks, 33 guns and 170 machine guns.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—The town of Krasnoyarsk, Eastern Siberia, has been captured by the Bolsheviki, according to a Moscow wireless dispatch.

"The remnants of the first, second and third enemy armies have surrendered, and 60,000 prisoners already have been counted," says the dispatch.

Krasnoyarask is situated on the Trans-Siberian Railway about 300 miles east of Tomsk. Lying on the plain, and open to the play of the bitter winds, traffic with the town by caravans is almost impossible in the winter. The town is situated on the left bank of the Yenisei River.

Bolsheviki Reported to Have Occupied Irkutsk.

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, T. H., Jan. 10.—The Nippu Jiji, a Japanese language newspaper here, publishes a Tokio cable reporting that the Bolsheviki had captured Irkutsk and that the allied diplomats had gone to Chita.

London advices have reported 9000 anti-Kolchak insurgents in control of Irkutsk and Gen. Semenoff, the Cossack leader, as slightly east of Chita.

Plot to Poison Water in Spain.

BILBAO, Spain, Jan. 10.—The police today announced the discovery of a plot to poison the water tank of a local factory. An anarchist, carrying incriminating documents, has been arrested in connection with the plot.

COMMUNIST GROUP AT STAUNTON, ILL., TEAR UP RED CARDS

Five Department of Justice Operatives From St. Louis Find Roundup Journey There Was Needless.

DEPORTATIONS SET MEN TO THINKING

Never Very Strong for Teaching, Anyhow, Secretary of Band Organized by Agitator Tells Officials.

Five operatives of the St. Louis office of the Department of Justice last evening went to Staunton, Ill., 39 miles northeast of St. Louis, to round up alien members of the Communist party.

They found nobody to round up. There were a few Communists in Staunton recently, but they all declared that they had turn up their red cards, and were through with communistic teachings.

Mike Radich, who was secretary of the Communist local at Staunton, was the first man visited by the operatives.

"The deportation of the 'reds' set us to thinking," Radich said to the operatives. "We are doing pretty well here, and we want to stay and be Americans. We were never very strong for the Communist teachings, anyway, and we concluded that we had made a mistake in going into the movement at all. Communism is un-American, as we see it now."

Radich said Steve Zinich, a Communist organizer, visited Staunton a few weeks ago, and that he, Radich, helped him in the work of organization. There were never more than 15 holders of red cards, he said, and attempts to spread the teachings did not meet with success, perhaps because the members were not very thoroughly convinced themselves.

A charter was issued to the Staunton local, Radich said, but it has been thrown away.

The operatives questioned other recent Communists, and found them even more anxious to set themselves right than Radich had been. Some of the men were unnaturalized aliens. Radich, being naturalized, would not himself have been liable to deportation.

Some of the men who were visited turned over to the operatives copies of the Communist Manifesto, declaring warfare on the "bourgeois parliamentary" government, the Communist term for representative forms of government, including that of the United States.

The operatives returned to St. Louis without making arrests.

Staunton is in Macoupin County, and is a coal mining town. The men questioned were mostly coal miners.

MANUFACTURERS' RAILWAY WOULD BUILD GRADE CROSSING

Asks for Permission to Cross Missouri Pacific Tracks at Second and La Salle.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 10.—A petition was filed with the Public Service Commission yesterday by the Manufacturers' Railway Co., of St. Louis, for authority to construct a grade crossing with the Missouri Pacific Railway track at the intersection of La Salle and Second streets in St. Louis.

The application says that a franchise has been granted for an extension of the Manufacturers' Railway north to Poplar street by the city and a permit for the crossing has been issued by the St. Louis Board of Public Works. Only terminal and industrial switching is to be done on the extension and the territory to be served by the extension, it is stated, is now without these facilities.

It is impossible to separate the grades it is stated in the application, and the crossing, which will cost $6000, will be properly safeguarded by a flagman and the movement of trains over it will be restricted to five miles an hour. The commission has taken no action on the application.

MOTHER FINDS BODY OF DENTIST, MURDERED WITH A HATCHET

Convict Sought Who Served Term for Assault Upon Relative of Slain Man.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The body of J. D. Hannania, 24 years old, a dentist, who had been murdered with a hatchet, was found in his office today by his mother upon her return from religious services. None of his money or jewels was missing.

The police later sent out a general alarm for a man recently released from Sing Sing prison on parole after serving a term for a murderous assault on a member of the dentist's family. They learned that a man aswering the description of the convict was seen climbing down a fire escape of the building a short time before the body was found.

Policemen said they found near the body an incomplete note which read:

"I have known Isaac Isaacowitz for a number of years and highly recommend."

'RICE KING' PLEADS GUILTY OF FORGERY AND GETS 10 YEARS

Seven Similar Charges Against Man Who Obtained $250,000 by Fictitious Securities, Dismissed

ST. LOUIS BANKS HEAVY SUFFERERS

Creditors Decide Not to Sell His Southeast Missouri Farms as Wife Has Dower Interest in Them.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

POPLAR BLUFF, Jan. 10.—George Begley Jr., member of the City Council and former leader in civic affairs of Poplar Bluff, known as the "Rice King of Missouri," who admitted a month ago, after filing a petition in bankruptcy, that in the last seven years he had obtained approximately $250,000 with fictitious securities and forged notes, was sentenced today to serve 10 years in the penitentiary after he had pleaded guilty in the Circuit Court here to a charge of forgery. Seven other similar charges against him were dropped.

At a meeting of Begley's credtors at Cape Girardeau, when his financial affairs were being discussed, Begley's attorney, W. H. Meredith, admitted that Begley had obtained $133,050 with worthless paper from St. Louis banks and individuals. The charge to which Begley pleaded guilty was one preferred by E. E. Kimmel of Hot Springs, Ark., who had loaned Begley $5000 on forged notes and a bogus deed of trust on Poplar Bluff property.

Agreement Interests Judge.

Before accepting Begley's plea Judge Ing asked Attorney Meredith to explain how it was that St. Louis newspapers had published that an agreement existed between Begley's counsel and Prosecuting Attorney Hill whereby Begley was to receive a sentence of 10 years. Meredith said there had been no agreement, but that Hill had suggested that there would not be much chance for Begley to receive leniency unless he entered a plea of guilty.

Begley appeared cheerful when he entered the courtroom and shook hands with several friends. He apparently had fully recovered from the effects of the bichloride of mercury he swallowed Dec. 3 in an effort to end his life following his arrest on the forgery charges.

After the plea of guilty had been entered the Judge asked Prosecutor Hill if he had any recommendation to make and the latter said that in view of the fact that Begley was still a young man he believed 10 years would be sufficient. Begley is 32 years old.

Creditors Question Begley.

Creditors of Begley met at the home of his father Friday and questioned the bankrupt about what he had done with $409,000 since he started his rice farms in 1912. By a vote of the creditors it was agreed not to reveal what was said at the meeting. The creditors decided not to sell the farms as Mrs. Begley has a dower interest in them.

As was told exclusively in the Post-Dispatch of Dec. 10, Begley's career as a financier—one of the most spectacular in the history of Southeast Missouri—had a dramatic climax in the disclosure that his great display of wealth, which had dazzled his friends and business associates, had been made possible by forgery.

In 1912 he began experimenting as a rice planter. The idea that rice could be grown in the "hard pan" in Stoddard and Butler counties, between Crowley's Ridge and the foothills of the Ozarks, was entirely original with him, and, when in the six years following his initial venture, he had 3000 acres of land under cultivation the farmers of Southeast Missouri began to realize the wisdom of his experiment and followed his example. His friends, after his downfall, pointed to the fact that Begley rendered Southeast Missouri a valuable service in making productive what otherwise might have remained waste land.

POLICE SEARCH FOR MAN WHO WON 2 BRIDES IN 5 DAYS

Two Winners in Beauty Contests Admit They Are in No Contest for Their Husband.

MIXED "NOTHINGS" WITH TALE OF WEALTH

Both Say E. C. Butler Gave Impression of Owning More Than Dress Suit He Wore at Dances.

Edward C. Butler, who established his reputation as a love-maker of sterling quality when he courted and captured two prize beauties in a total operating time of five days, is still at large, while one of his brides is enjoying her regained freedom and the other is urging on the police, who are seeking him.

The sentiments which he inspired in the respective bosoms of Miss Marie Corrigan and Miss Dolores Goodhart apparently took flight soon after the object of them did. Or at least, love, Butler and $2400 which the second bride entrusted to him have all disappeared.

Miss Corrigan, who recently took a prize in a beauty contest conducted by a local newspaper, met Butler Nov. 15, while he was using his real name. The courtship was short, sweet and successful, for he married her the following day.

Married as "G. E. Martin."

He was "George Everett Martin," however, when he asked and obtained an introduction to "the little vampire," as he called Miss Goodhart, during the New Year's eve celebration at the Statler Hotel. This suit occupied a slightly longer time; he married Miss Goodhart on the evening of Jan. 3.

When she heard yesterday that her predecessor in Butler's matrimonial career was a prize-winner, she averred that she couldn't teach her anything, in view of the fact that she, Miss Goodhart, won a prize in a beauty contest in Chicago not so long ago, and she intimated that perhaps the competition there was somewhat keener.

No Contest Over Husband.

However, there was no contest between the two wives over who would get their husband. On the contrary, when they met Friday in a lawyer's office, just before Mrs. Corrigan-Butler was granted a divorce, their conversation concerning possession of him was brief, but succinct.

"You can have—take him away," said Mrs. Corrigan-Butler.

"Goodness knows, I don't want him; all I want is my money," said Mrs. Goodhart-Martin. That was all they had to say about the man whom they had described as the possessor of a 'fascinating personality" and as "a perfectly grand lover."

Stories told by the two brides indicated that Butler was not entirely a sentimentalist. The sweet nothings which he murmured in their respective ears were reinforced by a plausible story of the $2,000,000 which he was to inherit either from his father or his grandmother—he varied the tale slightly. He spoke familiarly of "the Drive—Riverside, y'know," and of his father's house on it, and he described himself as a diamond broker.

Impression of Affluence.

He gave the impression of owning considerably more than the dress suit in which he was attired when he met Miss Goodhart, or the studs that adorned the tasteful silk shirt he wore during the two days that he spent in winning Miss Corrigan. In short, he appeared affluent.

However, neither of the two brides is able to tell exactly how he did it, and it appears that a grand jury investigation will be instituted to go further into the matter, and to take protective measures in behalf of any remaining subjects that the champion wooer may have his eye upon.

Miss Corrigan, whose maiden name was restored when the divorce was granted, has removed from the Warwick Hotel, where she lived prior to her marriage, and during the few days that elapsed before her husband told her to earn her own living, and took himself out of her life. Mrs. Goodhart-Martin, pending a suit which she says she intends filing for divorce, is asking detectives to obtain a warrant charging him with bigamy. She formerly lived at 5611A Delmar boulevard, but has also moved, as she sold all her furnishings preparatory to departing for the home of "his folks." That was part of the money he took.

Butler's photograph in the rogues' gallery has been identified by both his brides. He served a term in the Workhouse in 1915 for his connection with a plot to extort money from Peter Ibsen, a candy merchant of 912 Olive street, also Danish Consul here. Police say he has acquired the dress suit and the polished manner since then.

SIX SAILORS FROZEN ON SHIP

By the Associated Press.

LAREDO, Tex., Jan. 10.—El Universal, a Mexico City newspaper, in its issue of Thursday, gives an account of the freezing to death of six sailors aboard the Spanish steamer Antonio Lopez which was swept by a terrific cold blast when 40 days out from Spain to Vera Cruz.

So intense was the cold, the paper says, that even wines aboard froze solid.

PLAN TO EAT FOR NOTHING COLLAPSES WITH $10 FINE

Zobiesky, Who Wears Clothes in Court on His Arm, Orders Two Meals at Once.

Waclaw Zobiesky,, one of the idle poor, Friday, conceived the novel idea of ordering and eating two meals in Thomas Miller's restaurant on Biddle street and not paying for either. Consequently, he appeared yesterday in Police Court.

Waclaw had his coat, hat, collar, tie, gloves and overshoes on, but he had them on his arm. His proletarian undershirt was a shining mark in the courtroom.

"What do you mean by entering court in this manner?" demanded Judge Mix. "Take him out; take him out," he shouted at the bailiff, who, having hurried Zobiesky into court without giving him time to dress, proceeded to hurry him out again. When he returned, the Judge fined him $10 and costs, and asked him if he liked this country.

"Sure, I like him," said Zobiesky, smiling cheerfully, but the Judge, who evidently had his mind made up, said: "Well, if you don't, you can leave it, you know."

THREE BURNED TO DEATH

Two Women and Child Perish When Boarding House Burns.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JOPLIN, Mo., Jan. 10.—Two women and a child two years old, were burned to death early this morning when a boarding house at Blue Mound, on the Kansas-Oklahoma State Line near Piper, Ok., burned.

Miners saw the house in flames and awakened many of the roomers who were in their night attire, but flames kept them from reaching the rooms of the two women, one of whom was the mother of the baby. Efforts to rescue the three was made, but failed, and their charred bodies were recovered from the ruins at noon today. The flames spread to neighboring homes, and were with difficulty checked.

COMMITTEE PLANS TO RAISE ARMENIAN FUND

$900,000 for Support of 5000 Armenian Orphans to Be Sought in Missouri.

Seventy delegates from St. Louis and the eastern counties of Missouri attended the first State conference of the American Committee for Relief in the Near East at the Hotel Statler yesterday to begin organization of the campaign for relief funds which is to begin Feb. 1. Missouri's quota of the national fund will be $900,000 or enough to support 5000 Armenian orphans for a year.

C. P. Burgess of New York, general field secretary of the organization, presided at the morning session James C. Arroll, also of New York who with another youth spent two years in the Caucasus and nine months in Armenia, spoke of experiences. They went to Russia with the Y. M. C. A. when America entered the war, were in Moscow during the revolution, and went from there to Armenia. When the Turks were closing in the two New Yorkers were ordered out of the country, but remained despite orders. When the country was ravaged, they organized an industry to manufacture clothing and with money furnished by the Near East Relief Committee provided food for the starving, staying in Armenia until the Turks were routed.

At luncheon Capt. George B. Hyde of the Palestine Commission of the Red Cross told of the destitute condition of Armenia. He said that the Armenian girls, who are Christians, are forced into Turkish harems. He said that at Urfa, Turks buy Christian wives for a sum equivalent to $15. He related an instance where Armenia girls, stripped, were driven through the vilage streets, while the people jeered, taunting them because their "Christian God" did not interfere. Conditions are such, he said, that thousands are starving and there are 250,000 children who are homeless. He found at one time 20 children, the oldest of whom was a girl 15 years old, living in a cave with no coverings and little food. They were taken to a refuge maintained there by the Red Cross. In some places wells are used as burial places for the dead and the water supply is practically exhausted.

Mrs. Florence S. Duryea of New York and Mrs. M. Hayward Post of St. Louis also spoke at the luncheon.

Plans for the drive have not yet been decided on, but there probably will be a canvass of the residential districts. The slogan will be "Adopt an Armenian Orphan." A family speding the winter in Bermuda has already contributed $750 to the fund. Headquarters are at 1423 Chemical Building.

ROCKEFELLER TELLS OF GROWTH OF STANDARD OIL

Founder's Story Goes Back to Organization When Refiners in Sixties Felt Pinch of Competition.

DIFFICULTY MET IN RAISING CAPITAL

10 Per Cent Interest Paid to Shareholders on All They Would Lend — Golden Jubilee Observed.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The story of how the Standard Oil Co. grew from humble beginnings until it became the greatest organization in the world, was related by the founder himself, John D. Rockefeller, in a letter which was read here tonight at a dinner held in celebration of the golden jubilee of the world-wide corporation. Absence in Florida prevented Rockefeller from joining the little group of multi-millionaires who assembled for the celebration.

In his letter, which was addressed to A. C. Bedford, chairman of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, Rockefeller said he believed that there were only two survivors of the original organization—his brother, William, and himself. He said that he had commenced his career as an oil refiner, preceding his brother in the business by four years.

Beginning of Standard Oil.

"The business of oil refining," Rockefeller wrote, "was very profitable in the early sixties, but in the late sixties it was overdone, and the competition was ruinous, so that probably 80, and possibly 90 per cent of all engaged in it were either barely holding their own or suffering actual loss."

Many efforts were made to remedy the demoralization in the industry, but without success, Rockefeller continued, until the Standard Oil Co. undertook to unite certain refining interests under a common ownership. The finding of the capital for the scheme was difficult in view of the poor credit conditions in the business, and Rockefeller could recall only two concerns—the Warden, Frew & Co. interests of Philadelphia and the Charles Pratt Co. of New York—who were willing to furnish cash in return for stock. As an illustration of the stringency in the money market, he said that the Standard Oil Co. borrowed from its shareholders all the money they would lend, and paid 10 per cent interest.

Stock Sold to Capitalists.

The money thus raised was still insufficient, but financial backing was obtained through the sale of stock to leading capitalists, and the business of other refiners was taken over by payments either in stock or cash. The ablest representatives of such concerns were enlisted in the administration of the joint undertaking.

"And here I may be pardoned for saying," Rockefeller wrote, "that the Standard Oil Co. made a record without precedent in the history of commercial enterprises in turning to its weaker and bankrupt competitors and offering them a chance to recoup their waning fortunes without any risk on their part except the putting in of their plants. Many of which were superannuated and ill equipped to cope with the more up-to-date refineries even of that time.

"I am happy that all who took stock prospered and did much better than they could have done under any other circumstances.

Tells of Antagonism.

"This, however, was not so surprising, after the trying years through which they had passed; and it must be remembered that this was a new and untried thing and that many people regarded the organization as a rope of sand. Not only was this true at its inception, but for some time efforts were made on every hand to discredit the company. Such opposition was to be expected, as the methods of economizing in every step from the putting down of the well to the delivery to the consumer of the manufactured product brought about an economic revolution, accompanied as such great movements always are, by more or less antagonism from those who preferred to continue the old and obsolete method."

"Although I have been for a quarter of a century out of active connection with the business, I have kept informed and been generally familiar with its current progress, and I take great pleasure in saying I am proud of the organization and what it has accomplished. I need not here give expression to my confidence in the administration since the discontinuance of my active relations with the company. You all well know you have shared this to the fullest extent, and it affords me great happiness to say that you are fully entitled to it.

Hopes for More Progress.

"I have believed in you and have trusted you implicitly from the first, and you have proven yourselves most worthy of that trust. In addition, I believe the company not only commands but deserves the confidence of the general public. In spite of all the controversy that has taken place, I cannot but believe that the public instinctively feels that no company could live, grow and prosper, as ours has done, over a period of 50 years, unless its business was based upon scrupulous regard for its obligations as a great servant of the public.

"I hope and believe that the next half century will continue to show progress, and that your life and the lives of your associates may be spared for long years to enjoy the happiness which your predecessors enjoyed in an association unparalleled in scope and service and strengthened by the ties of mutual confidence and high esteem. I have every faith that you will continue to acquit yourselves like men and be worthy of this high trust."

The history of the company also was reviewed by Bedford, who declared that in many respects it was the history of petroleum throughout the world. He asserted that in every country where oil production has been properly organized, it has been made so by emulating Standard Oil methods. Bedford eulogized Rockefeller, Henry M. Flagler, Charles Pratt and Henry H. Rogers, associates in the formation and development of the Standard Oil Corporation, as men who had not merely built up a tremendous enterprise, but who had made great contributions to this country in philanthropy, medicine, education and art.

FORECASTS IN 1919 WITH WEATHER BIRD 85 PER CENT CORRECT

St. Louisan, Who Clipped Bird Every Date, Says Scientists' Standard Is Accurate.

Predictions appearing with the Post-Dispatch Weather Bird for 1919 were 85 per cent correct, reaching the standard set by weather bureau experts at the recent scientists' convention, according to statistics arranged by A. J. Lake of 4161 Enright avenue, who has been clipping and pasting the bird since Jan. 2, last year.

Lake's favorite amusement is "riding" hobbies. Last year his hobby was the bird. He clipped it every day but four, when holidays prevented its appearance.

It appears that the bird is cutting down on tobacco, as he smoked only 136 of the 361 days he worked. He was guilty of sartorial extravagance in the extreme, however, as he appeared in 361 new suits of clothing, with the appropriate accessories, including clean paper collars, Lake says.

Erring almost humanly, Lake says, the bird mixed his dates on a number of publication days and several times forgot the date altogether.

Lake points out many of the bird's sagacious observations, including his cutting remarks on the United States Senate, Mayor Kiel, the United Railways, the Victory Loan, jobs for returned soldiers and hundreds of other public questions. His first remark for the year was "Uncle Sam's New Year Card Is an Ace," and he closed the file with the warning "Watch Your Step on Watch Night." The bird took part in every campaign of the year.

NEGRO WOMAN DISCHARGED ON CHARGE OF DISTURBING PEACE

Two Men Both From South Testify Regarding Commotion on Street Car.

Mrs. Anna Gale, colored, employed at 4155 Washington boulevard, was discharged yesterday in Police Court, where she was tried on a charge of disturbing the peace on an Olive street car Dec. 10, after two witnesses, both of whom were from the South, had testified against her.

George Utley, 1929 North Sarah street, who said he was from Birmingham, Ala., said that she boarded the car at Twenty-ninth and Olive streets and taking offense when he demanded her fare, and because a white woman with whom she seated herself laughed, began swearing, which she continued until she was put off at Vandeventer and Olive streets. H. T. Jones, a steamfitter, 4609 Washington boulevard, who said he was from Camden, Tenn., corroborated this testimony.

Mrs. Gale denied that she swore, but admitted that "a storm arose" when the conductor tried to eject her.

BAKER URGES SEATS IN CONGRESS FOR CABINET

Says Its Members Should Have Right to Answer Attacks on Their Departments.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Secretary of War Baker today declared himself for "some radical changes" in the administration of the Government, including the seating of Cabinet members either in the Senate or the House of Representatives. He was addressing a meeting of "mothers, wives and sisters" called by the New York League for Political Education."

"I believe there should be some radical changes in the relations between the executive and the legislative branches of our Government," Baker said. "I believe members of the Cabinet should have seats in one or the other house and should be present to defend the policies of their departments.

Would Defend Departments.

"They should have the right to answer questions asked of them. No head of a department should have questions fired at him and then his department scarified on the floor of either house without the head of that department being present to put in his defense.

"The writers of the Constitution tried to aim between the King of the olden days and the mob. They provided for both. They made the President responsible for the Government of the nation, but gave him little power. They conferred on Congress great powers, but no responsibility.

"I am not speaking now of President Wilson's administration only. The same thing has happened in every administration, even in that of President McKinley when the strong personal friendship between the President and Senator Hanna, leader of the Senate, made harmony as nearly possible as it ever has been in our Government.

Roosevelt Had Clash.

"In every administration, notably in that of Roosevelt, there has been a clash between the executive and legislative branches."

Baker entered his "indignant protest" against bitter partisanship in American life. "In popular government the people must learn to discuss political matters temperately," he said.

"America would fail of her opportunities," the secretary said in closing, "if she fails to reap to the fullest extent the fruits of her participation in the war. Let the people of this mighty nation learn to handle their home problems in moderation of speech and action, discuss them without abuse and vituperation and the nation will, as she should, lead the world in morality and dignified integrity."

SECRETARY DANIELS HAS PLAN TO CREATE BIG NAVAL RESERVE

He Will Propose to Congress the Establishment of Summer Training Courses for Students.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Plans for building up a great naval reserve force by the establishment of summer training courses for high school and college youths at the naval training stations will be laid before Congress by Secretary Daniels in the near future. Announcing the plan today, Secretary Daniels said it was proposed to put it into effect next summer.

Transportation and subsistence would be provided for those who take the training, the secretary said, and the tentative plan contemplates short cruises on naval training ships as part of the course, which probably will be fixed at two months.

Those completing the training would become members of the naval reserve force unless desiring to enter the active naval service.

MYSTERIOUS "PROF. X" IDENTIFIED BY HIS SON

He Is Doctor and Musician Who Has Been Missing 3 Years From Worcester, Mass.

By the Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10.—The mysterious amnesia sufferer, cared for by the Rev. J. T. Bentley in Lambertville, N. J., and known as "Professor X," was identified today as Dr. John L. Brand, 64 years old, of Worcester, Mass., who disappeared in March, 1917.

His son, Lieutenant-Commander Charles L. Brand, in charge of construction at the Philadelphia navy yard, walked into the front parlor while "Professor X" was posing for his photograph. In the uniform of a navy officer, Commander Brand threw open the door and stood for a second. He took a few halting steps into the room and said:

"Father, don't you recognize me? I am your son, Charles."

The man, hunching back in his chair, stared with wide open eyes. He was making a supreme mental effort. He became very pale, and panted from the attempt.

Fails to Recognize Son.

After a tense moment, he whispered, "no."

Then rising slowly from his chair, he walked to his son, putting his trembling hands on his shoulders. He stared for some time directly into his son's eyes, but he could not remember.

When he realized he had failed to recall the past, the broken old man gave a deep sob and sank to the floor. He had collapsed, and was virtually carried from the front parlor in the Bentley home, where the meeting took place, to his bedroom.

Commander Brand said he had read the account of "Professor X" in the newspapers, and the description was so accurate, he instantly recognized his father. Obtaining leave from the navy yard, he immediately went to Lambertville, arriving shortly before noon.

Dr. Brand was born and educated in England, the son said, and was a physician and a musician.

Shortly before his disappearance, Commander Brand said, his father had suffered from a minor attack of amnesia, but apparently had recovered. Mrs. Brand, who is still living in Worcester, was prostrated by his disappearance.

Found Destitute Last Month.

Dr. Brand was found destitute at Moore's station, three miles from Lambertville, on Dec. 22. His clothing, of good quality, was threadbare and his appearance disheveled. Since that time he has sat in the home of the Rev Mr. Bensley, amazing scientists with his profound knowledge.

He revealed an astonishing knowledge of the law, medicine, astronomy, architecture and kindred subjects.

"Professor X" was first thought to be a tramp and was placed in the jail at Lambertville, a few miles north of Trenton. His unusual qualities soon became evident and Dr. Bensley invited him to live in the rectory.

In discussing himself, Professor X" said recently.

"Try as I will, I cannot recall any of my antecedents. Sometimes I believe if I only dared concentrate my mind on the recollection I could remember, but any studied application seems to produce an unaccountable mental storm that leaves me excited and nervous."

Mrs. Brand Overjoyed at Word of Identification of Husband.

By the Associated Press.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Jan. 10.—When notified that the man known for three years as "Professor X," had been identified as her husband, John L. Brand, Mrs. Brand, who is visiting at the home of her daughter at Fort Leavenworth, was overjoyed at the news. She said she had not heard from her son, Lieutenant-Commander Charles L. Brand, who identified his father, but expected a telegram any time. When the description of "Professor X" was read to her, she said it described her husband.

COUNTY GRAND JURY CONDEMNS OFFICIALS' ABUSE OF AUTOISTS

Report Says Constables' Overbearing Conduct Is Largely Due to Fee System of Pay.

The St. Louis County grand jury, in a final report made yesterday, said that "numerous complaints have reached this body that Constables, Deputy Constables and some Deputy Sheriffs have been guilty of abusive and overbearing conduct in the enforcement of motor vehicle laws upon the county highways," and comments: "This is a practice which cannot be too vigorously condemned."

The evil is largely due, the report states, to the fact that county police officers are on the fee system, and it recommends that they be placed on regular salary. The present system is "antiquated," it states.

The grand jury, which has been in session since Sept. 15, did not touch the question of commercialized gambling in the county, although its existence is commonly known. The grand jury is virtually dependent upon the Prosecuting Attorney's office for information upon which to make inquiries. Prosecuting Attorney Ralph said nobody had come in to complain about gambling.

LIQUOR GRAFT IN CHICAGO SINCE JULY 1 PUT AT $200,000

Grand Jury Action Probable on Evidence Said to Implicate Federal Agents, Policemen, Politicians.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Illegal movement and sale of liquor in Chicago has netted Federal agents, policemen and politicians $200,000 or more since July 1, according to evidence which, it is reported, has been turned over to Daniel C. Roper, internal revenue commissioner in Washington.

It was intimated that grand jury action is an almost immediate prospect. Included in the rumored evidence are stories of fake robberies of wholesale liquor houses, removal of the liquor to "clearing houses" of a graft syndicate and payment of fixed sums for "protection" to police and Federal officials. Some of the larger city cafes are said to have been assessed $500 monthly and one vender of illicit drinks is said to have justified his price of $1.50 for a mixed drink by the large amount he was compelled to pay for "protection."

Eight Federal liquor agents have been relieved or taken leaves of absence since the investigation started. The new prohibition commissioner takes charge next week.

BAD TEETH CAUSE INSANITY

By the Associated Press.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 10.—Bad teeth were the cause of many cases of insanity coming under the observation of the physicians at the New Jersey State Hospital for the Insane last year, Dr. Henry A. Cotton, medical director of the institution, declared in his annual report today.

He expressed the opinion that dentists should remove infected teeth instead of trying to save them through mechanical dentistry.

PRAISE FOR 35TH DIVISION NOW GIVEN BY COL. PALMER

Noted Correspondent, Who Was on Pershing's Staff, Pays It High Tribute in His New Book.

WAS LUKEWARM IN MAGAZINE ARTICLE

But Fuller Investigation Has Convinced Him It Did Good Work, Though It May Not Have Been Well Handled.

By CLAIR KENAMORE.

The Post-Dispatch's Staff Correspondent With the Thirty-fifth Division in France.

Col. Frederick Palmer, who, Theodore Roosevelt said, has seen more war than any living American, has changed his mind about the Thirty-fifth Division. In a magazine article printed last spring he dismissed the division with scant courtesy and damned it with faint praise, but in his new book, "Our Greatest Battle," he pays the men the high tribute they deserve and does his best to make amends for his previous article.

Col. Palmer, who was a war correspondent up to the time that the United States entered the war, was attached to the general staff. When he wrote his first article he had not gone deeply into the details of the Thirty-fifth Division's part in the Meuse-Argonne battle. In preparation for the book, he has acquired deeper and more vital knowledge.

"Our Greatest Battle," which is published by Dodd, Mead & Co., is a thick volume of 630 pages, and is fully indexed. When the Thirty-fifth Division first enters Col. Palmer's story, he speaks very highly of Major-General William M. Wright and says that he was taken from the division to organize corps staffs.

"Major-General Peter E. Traub, a scholarly soldier, fully equipped in the theories of war, succeeded him in command of the Thirty-fifth," the book says, and continues:

"The physique and good humor of the men of the Thirty-fifth had been the admiration of everybody who had seen them after their arrival in the British area.

No finer-looking soldiers ever went into action. Their eagerness was in keeping with their vitality. Compared to the little men of the Seventy-seventh (New York City division), who were overburdened with heavy packs, they were giants of the type which carried packs of double the army weight over the Chilcoot Pass in the Klondike rush. Their inheritance gave them not only the strength but the incentive of pioneers. Whoever had the leading and shaping of such a body of American citizens had a responsibility which went with a glorious opportunity. The stronger the men of a division, the abler the officers they require to be worthy of their potentiality. Given the battle experience of the Seventy-seventh, under a Pershing, a Wood, a Bullard, a Summerall, or a Hines, and a group of officers as such a leader would have developed, the work of the Thirty-fifth would never have become a subject for discussion; but we shall come to this later on.

In telling of the battle, Col. Palmer comes to the Thirty-fifth after a paragraph in which he has been recounting the good work done by regular army officers hurriedly put in command of Twenty-eighth Division units. The text continues:

The same devoted offering of strong and willing men in the flush of aggressive manhood by the Kansans and Missourians of the Thirty-fifth, on the right of the Twenty-eighth, which had the heaviest casualty list of any division from Sept. 26 to Oct. 1, was not to have the good fortune of such understanding direction. Kansas and Missouri took all their pride as well as their natural courage and hardihood into this battle. Their left flank was from the first on the heights to the east of the Aire in full view of the Forest edge and its escarpments. On the right they were swinging toward the heights west of Montfaucon. The particularly dense fog hugging the ground on their front in the first hour of their advance made the liaison between the battalions difficult from the start. The two formidable heights of Vauquois hill and the Rossignol Wood were masked by troops sweeping speedily by them on either side in brilliant fashion, and left to the battalions detailed for the purpose, which cleaned them up with thoroughgoing alacrity. Meanwhile the frontal line drove ahead against machine-gun fire in front and flanking artillery fire from the right until it was in the vicinity of Cheppy.

As we already know, there had been trouble immediately in Varennes, where the Thirty-fifth was linked with the Twenty-eighth. The Thirty-fifth received both shells and machine-gun fire from the high ground of the town and from the heights wich were firing down on the Twenty-eighth. Both division reports speak of having taken Varennes, which is well spread on the river banks. There was room enough for the troops of both to operate, with plenty of work for both to do before their common efforts had cleared the ruins of their infestuous occupants. The tanks also had a part in this success. Wherever there was anythink like favorable ground in that irregular landscape, they did valuable service; and they tried to pass through woods and across ravines which only sublime audacity would have attempted—and sometimes they succeeded. Their visibility at short range to the numerous enemy batteries made any part in the battle by them seem suicidal.

The formation for the attack was by brigades in column; that is, one of the two brigades in reserve behind the other that took the lead. On that first day, when a regiment of the frontal brigade was stopped by casualties, another was sent through it. The plan was to crowd in the eager men. It was their first big fight. They had impatiently trained for this chance. The individualism of these stalwart high-strung Middle Westerners was allowed full rein. To them a fight meant that you did not give the enemy any time to think; you forced the issue with smashing rights and vicious uppercuts at the start, a robust constitution receiving cheerfully and stoically any punishment inflicted as you sought a knockout.

Therefore flanking fire was only a call to pressing the enemy harder and having the business the sooner finished. There was no waiting for guns to come up, as Cheppy on the right was taken soon after Varennes on the left. Losses, particularly of senior officers, were becoming serious by this time; units, though scattered and intermingled in the fog, only wanted direction to go on. Having been reorganized and being supported by fresh battalions, the advance continued. By night the Thirty-fifth's left was well north of Varennes, its right near Very, and the approaches to Charpentry had been gained. On that first day the Thirty-fifth, fighting against flanking and frontal artillery and machine-gun fire, had made four miles in mastering the east bank of the trough of the Aire; but it had paid a price which was a tragic if splendid tribute to the courageous initiative of its men. The artillerists were working hectically to bridge the little stream for their pieces; that one-way bridge which two divisions were trying to use through Varennes congested the other traffic. According to the division report, instead of proper rations for the troops, there was an issue of fresh meat and vegetables with no means for cooking.

The divisional artillery was expected to be up by 8 o'clock on the morning of the 27th to renew the attack, but higher authority could not wait on its support. In full realization of the strength of the enemy's artillery, corps orders to advance at 5 a. m. must be obeyed, with only one battalion of light guns to protect the men in an endeavor that must be far more costly than yesterday's. The Kansans and Missourians were of the stock that can fight to a finish; and they were expected to fight to a finish. The Seventieth Brigade, whose units had already been engaged and had been all day under more or less fire and advancing behind the Sixty-ninth, was put in front, with the Sixty-ninth in close reserve, ready to take up the battle when the Seventieth had suffered too heavily.

Overnight the enemy had reinforced the commanding position of Charpentry, which was the keypoint of his line of defense against the Thirty-fifth. It sent down gusts of machine-gun fire while the increased enemy artillery on both flanks played on the open fields of advance, where, after the attack slowed down, the men continued to spring up and charge, in the hope that they had found an opening, only to be met with machine-gun fire from unexpected quarters. Tanks having been brought up and reorganization effected, another general rush was made, which aroused such a torrent of fire that the infantry, without their shields for advance, could only seek what protection they could dig or find in gullies behind banks or in shell holes.

The artillery, which had worked ceaselessly all night and day to get forward, was now arriving, and with its support a new advance, which crowded in more troops, was undertaken at 5:30 in the afternoon. The artillery silenced some of the machine-gun nests, though it could not reach the enemy battery positions; but by the grace of their undaunted determination and energy the Kansans and Missourians took both Charpentry and the town of Baulny. In the darkness some daring units pressed through the Montrebeau Wood, while the main line dug in near Baulny to secure what protection it could from the shells whose flashes illumined vigorous spading, which had an incentive in the vicious singing of the fragments.

It had been another costly day, and the night that followed was ghastly for the wounded. They were gathered from the field under incessant bursts of machine-gun fire; and when they were brought in, the crowded roads made their evacuation horribly slow. The struggle to force ammunition and supplies forward over the main road did not relax in the area behind the troops, where all through the night the German artillery, which had the approaches to Charpentry and Baulny perfectly registered, kept up a fire shrewdly calculated to block a movement every time it started.

All the artillery was now up to support the troops being reformed for another attack at daybreak, which was preceded by a counter attack of the enemy which was promptly repulsed. More open spaces than yesterday must be crossed in full view of the enfilading batteries, particularly those firing from the west bank of the Aire. Ground was gained all along the front; ground important for the terrible day's work that was to follow. While the wounded, suffering from exposure, were walking back or being carried back across the shelled fields and along the shelled roads, the survivors must spend the night in leaving nothing undone to insure the success of the next morning's attack, which was to capitalize every atom of vitality remaining in this hard-driven division. Again the men were short of regular rations; and the fresh beef and vegetables which were again forced upon them could not be cooked. It was raw fighting, indeed, on raw meat and raw potatoes which was expected of the Thirty-fifth. Incidentally the divisional transport was short 1400 horses.

The loss of officers in their gallant exposure to keep up the liaison of the units had continued severe. For this reason alone, the Thirty-fifth, which was having its first battle experiencee, was unprepared for a far less onerous task than that now assigned it. With nerve strength in place of physical strength, with will in place of adequate organization, the division was sent into a veritable alley, which could be swept by artillery fire from the Forest edge across the Aire as well as from the other flank and in front. The instant the attack began, the enemy guns concentrated with a pitiless accuracy and a volume of fire completely surpassing that of the other days. In places the advance was literally blasted to a standstill.

The village of Exermont, which was the main goal, was mercilessly exposed in that ravine where the enemy shell fire had the play of a cataract through a gorge. Some men actually reached the village, but they could not remain there alive. Groups charging for what seemed cover only ran into more shell bursts. The dead and wounded lay in "bunches" under the continuing blasts which disrupted organization, while officers in trying to restore it sacrificed themselves. There was no want of courage; but the division was undertaking the impossible. Every spurt of initiative was as futile as thrusting a finger into a stove door. Confused orders were further confused in transmission.

When night of the 29th came, there was nothing to do but for the Thirty-fifth to withdraw, for lack of any means of supporting them, its exposed units from Montrebeau Wood and Exermont. The ravine could not be held until the guns commanding it were silenced and fresh troops in numbers were summoned. A willing horse had been driven to its death. The Thirty-fifth's units had been crowded into the front line until the only reserves it had were men too exhausted from fighting to move. On the 30th a defensive position was organized. A battalion of the Eighty-second Division, brought up with a view to renewing the attack, met a killing barrage which warned commanders that advancing one fresh battalion was only throwing more cannon-fodder into the ravine.

Throughout the 30th the men of the Thirty-fifth held their ground under continuous artillery fire, which could not keep many from falling asleep in their exhaustion; but they were awakened to retributive zeal by two German counter-attacks, their marksmanship being a warning to the enemy that though they had not the strength to advance they still knew how to shoot. On the night of the 30th the Thirty-fifth was relieved by the veteran First Division. Gaunt and staggering, shadows of the sturdy figures which had advanced on the 26th, the survivors plodded back to rest billets, to find that in some quarters the view was held that the division had done badly. No more inconsiderate reflection upon brave men was ever engendered in the impulses of battle emotion, with its hasty judgment.

In an advance of over six miles the Thirty-fifth had suffered 6812 casualties. Nearly half of its infantry was dead on the field or in hospital. The other half was in a coma from fatigue. Every rod gained had been won by fighting against fire as baffling as it was powerful. To say that the Thirty-fifth fought for five days as a division is hardly doing it justice. A division may be said to be fighting when only one brigade is in line while the other is resting. All the men of the Thirty-fifth were fighting. There were soldiers who did not have five hours' sleep in that period of unbroken battle strain in the midst of the dead and dying. Only the powerful physique of the men, with their store of reserve energy which they drew on to the last fraction, enabled them to bear it as long as they did. Their courage and endurance and dash performed a mighty service in a most critical sector. Instead of being the object of any ungenerous reflections by captious pedants or commanders who did not know how to command, after they had given their generous all they should have been welcomed with a warmth of praise in keeping with their proud and justifiable consciousness that they had done their red-blooded best.

The reference in the last paragraph of the text of the book given here is to the reports by inspectors who censured the men severely for failure to be neat and snappy when he saw them immediately after the battle.

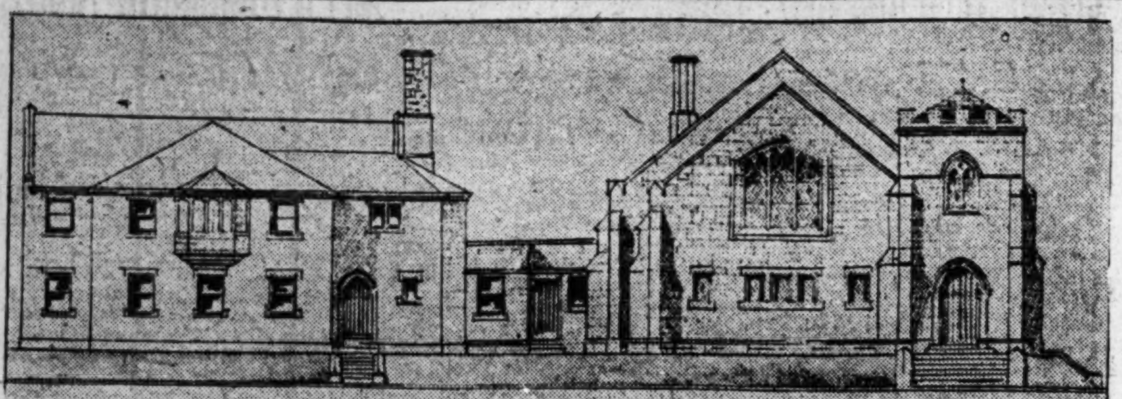
Architect's Drawing of New Evangelical Church to Be Built at Grand and Lee Avenues Next Spring



EVANGELICAL CHURCH PLANS ARE SELECTED

Church and Sunday School Building at Grand and Lee Avenues to Cost $75,000.

At the annual congregation meeting of St. John's Evangelical Church, Fourteenth street and Madison avenue, Monday evening, plans were accepted for a new church and Sunday school building, on the northeast corner of Grand and Lee avenue to be built next spring. They were submitted in competition by Frank Cann and Angelo Corrubia, architects, with offices in the De Menil Building, Seventh and Pine streets. The new building will cost approximately $75,000. A parsonage to cost $25,000 will be built later.

The exterior of the new building will be in native limestone of Gothic design. The interior will have an open timber roof and windows with stone traceries and leaded glass. A beautifully designed organ will be behind the pulpit.

The church auditorium and gallery will accommodate 600 persons, and the Sunday school hall and primary room 400. The Sunday school gallery will contain eight class rooms for 16 persons each.

The basement will have a large assembly room, a gymnasium, two bowling alleys and a kitchen.

The competition to decide what architect's plans should be used was under the rules of the American Institute of Architects. Last May F. C. Esselbruegge, F. E. Hannemann and A. H. Bahn were delegated by the congregation as a committee to select two architects as candidates. James P. Jamieson, an architect, was appointed architectural adviser of the congregation. Jamieson and two other architects, Louis Le Beaume and Walter Rathmann, with nine members of the congregation, were the jury of award.

COST OF LIVING FOR FAMILY OF FOUR FIGURED AT $1717

Mail Carriers Present Statistics Based on Actual Experiences to Congressional Commission.

St. Louis mail carriers, in preparing a brief for submission to the Congressional Commission on Postal Salaries, which sat in St. Louis Friday, supported their pleas for higher wages by a statement of the annual cost of living of a family of four, in this city, which, it was stated, was compiled from actual expenditures of carriers. Its items follow:

Rent	$ 250
Light and fuel	100
Ice	18
Food	630
Clothing	250
Shoes and rubbers	68
Household articles	50
Doctors' bills	75
Insurance	91
Time lost	28
Education	50
Recreation and amusement	15
Carfare	75
Incidentals	17
Total	$1717

The average wage of the St. Louis mail carrier is about $1400.

12TH STREET HEARING THIS WEEK

Arguments in behalf of a Blair avenue route for the northern extension of Twelfth street, in place of the Fifteenth street route proposed by the City Plan Commission, will be presented to the Street Committee of the Board of Aldermen at its meeting Wednesday night at the City Hall.

William Sessinghaus, one of the supporters of the Blair avenue route, said yesterday that he and others were not opposed to the plan of having a traffic artery, but they held that Fifteenth street, having a double-track car line and many small business establishments, should not be disturbed, and that Blair avenue should be widened and extended instead. This plan would require a change in the plan at the outset, immediately north of Washington avenue, by cutting off a part of the eight-story Ferguson-McKinney building, on the northwest corner, instead of arcading both the Ferguson-McKinney and Carleton buildings, as proposed.

GO TO PICK OPERA PRINCIPALS

Members of Special Committee Will Depart for New York Tonight.

A special committee, representing the Productions Committee of the Municipal Theater Association, will depart tonight for New York to select the principals for next summer's light opera performances in the Municipal Theater. The members of the special committee are D. E. Russell, George R. Robinson, Arthur Kocian and Walter S. Donaldson.

The Productions Committee refused to accept the resignation of Nelson Cunliff, retiring Park Commissioner, as chairman, and he will remain at the head of the committee. Fred W. Pape, who becomes Park Commissioner Feb. 1, was added to the committee.

SMITH ALUMNAE ORGANIZING

The St. Louis alumnae of Smith College, is organizing to raise its quota of the $4,000,000 additional endowment fund which the former students of that college expect to raise in their nation wide campaign, extending to Alaska and the Philippines, which will begin Jan. 17.

Former students of Smith feel that her professors must have at least 50 per cent increase in salaries, and that if this is not obtained the school will lose its best material. The standard of the past must not only not be lowered, but must be raised.

TOOK $5000 INSURANCE BEFORE ENDING LIFE

H. A. Wiegand Also Paid Overdue Premiums on $15,000 Before Shooting Self.

It became known yesterday that Harry A. Wiegand, 29 years old, of 5630 Pershing avenue, cashier and bookkeeper for Mark C. Steinberg & Co., stock and bond broker, took out a new $5000 life insurance policy and paid the premium on two life insurance policies totaling $15,000, less than 24 hours before he shot and killed himself in his automobile in Forest Park Friday afternoon.

Thursday was the last day of grace for payment of the premiums and he made the payment on the afternoon of that day, thus continuing the policies in force.

It was learned that Wiegand made insurance provision for his 2-year-old son by his first marriage, but that his second wife will be the principal beneficiary under his policies.

A verdict of suicide was returned at the inquest yesterday. No members of the family testified. The only testimony was as to the circumstances under which the body was found.

Accounts in Good Shape.

At the brokerage office where he was employed it was said his accounts were in good shape. He had not worked steadily for several weeks.

Wiegand's first wife, Mrs. Pauline Wiegand of 935 King's highway, southeast, obtained a divorce last September. Two weeks later he married Miss Linetta Schamel, who was named in the first wife's divorce petition. The son by the first marriage is in the custody of the first wife.

Mrs. Charles Hayden of 5853 Julian avenue and her daughter, while motoring through the park Friday afternoon, saw a machine standing near Government and Grand drives and noticed a stain on the snow. They called other automobiles and Wiegand's body was found in the machine. There was a bullet wound in his right temple and a pistol with one empty shell and three loaded cartridges was in his right hand.

In Wiegand's pockets were found $27 in cash and a check for $100 signed with his name and payable to his present wife.

Drove Wife to Her Sister's.

Mrs. Wiegand yesterday said Wiegand did not go to work Friday, but remained in bed until a telephone message from his office was received informing him that Steinberg wanted to see him. About 2 p. m., she said, he drove her to the home of her sister, Mrs. Arthur Volk, 5549 Cabanne avenue, and left her there. She supposed he was going to his office.

Wiegand's mother, Mrs. Annie L. Wiegand of 2336 Tower Grove avenue, said her son had had two nervous breakdowns and told of his having fainted in his office about two years ago. She said other relatives said they thought he had been working too hard.

Wiegand was a Mason and an Elk and a member of the Liederkranz and Century Boat clubs.

LEGION POST MEETING AT NOON

The first regular meeting of the Fred W. Stockman Post No. 245, American Legion, since the approval of application for a charter by the state headquarters, will be held at Statler Hotel, Thursday. This is the only post of the legion in St. Louis which will hold its meetings at noon.

The post is named after Fred W. Stockman, a St. Louisan, formerly a Sergeant attached to the Recruiting District of Missouri, U. S. Marine Corps, who was killed in France while serving with the Ninety-sixth Company, Sixth Regiment Marines. He was posthumously awarded the Croix de Guerre for "great courage and judgment, displayed during several attacks." He was a platoon leader.

DANDRUFF SOON RUINS THE HAIR

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

700 COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES TO VOTE ON LEAGUE

Statements of Lodge and Hitchcock to Be Placed Before the Students and Faculties Before the Ballot.

REFERENDUM TO BE HELD ON TUESDAY

Vote Will Be Made on Questions of For, Against or Compromise; Text of Statements.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 10.—Statements of their views on the treaty of peace and the league of nations have been contributed by Senators Lodge and Hitchcock to be placed before the students and faculties of 700 colleges and universities, who will express their opinions in a referendum vote to be taken next Tuesday. Two thousand members of Western Reserve University will vote.

Senator Lodge's statement says in part:

"The United States has asked nothing in the peace settlement and has received and desires nothing except the security and peace of the world. That peace, a majority of the Senate believes, cannot be achieved through the league of nations as agreed to at Versailles. We cannot amend the league as it applies to other nations, but we are determined that it shall be made safe for the United States. Surely we who ask no territory, who wish no spoils of war, are justified in saying under what conditions we shall enter into this world alliance."

Hitchcock's Statement.

Senator Hitchcock's statement says in part:

"The Lodge reservations are destructive because they go much farther and work a number of changes in the meaning of the league covenant. They specially repudiate the reciprocal obligation to join other nations in preserving the territorial integrity and political independence of members of the league against outside aggression. This obligation is specifically provided in article 10 and if agreed to by all nations affords a practical insurance against any war of conquest in the future. If repudiated by us now it is an invitation for Germany to renew attacks, because it leaves in doubt the question whether we must be taken into account."

The students will vote on six questions, for, against, and compromise, framed after consultation with leaders of both sides, in order to present the case fairly.

As soon as compiled, the result will be telegraphed to the intercollegiate treaty referendum committee at New York, who will record the results of the vote from all parts of the country.

W. U. Students to Vote Tuesday in Referendum on Treaty.

Students and faculty members at Washington University, without exception, will be privileged to vote Tuesday in the national collegiate treaty referendum, and efforts are being made to obtain unanimous response to the call for ballot on the proposition. The referendum will be conducted by the Men's Council Executive Committee.

At the instance of Senators Lodge and Hitchcock, Republican and Democratic leaders, respectively, in the upper branch of Congress, two additional propositions are to be submitted for vote, making six in all, the fifth one being by Lodge and the sixth by Hitchcock. The proposals follow:

1. I favor the ratification of the league and treaty without amendments or reservations.
2. I am opposed to the ratification of the league and the treaty in any form.
3. I am in favor of the ratification of the treaty and the league, but only with the specific reservations as voted by the majority of the Senate.
4. I favor any compromise on the reservation which will make possible immediate ratification of the treaty and the league.
5. I favor the Government proceeding to make peace with Germany at once and leaving the question of a league of nations to be settled afterwards.
6. I favor a compromise on the reservations of such a character as will avoid the danger of defeating ratification while still making clear that America can only be involved in war by a declaration of Congress, that domestic questions and the Monroe Doctrine are entirely outside of the jurisdiction of the league, that plural votes of any member are all disqualified in the event of a dispute wherein we are disqualified from voting, and that on deciding to withdraw we are to be the judge of whether our obligations have been met.

MEETING TOMORROW TO PRECEDE W. U. REFERENDUM ON LEAGUE

Freshmen in the pre-legal course at Washington University have entered upon a career of organized activity, under advisory direction of Dr. W. W. Hollingsworth, professor of political science. Under auspices of the club recently brought into existence the subject of the league of nations will be broadly considered at an open meeting in the old chapel on the campus at 1 p. m. tomorrow, preparatory to the referendum vote to be taken Tuesday among students and faculty members.

At the meeting tomorrow the subject will be discussed in its general aspect by Prof. Hollingsworth; in its relation to labor by Prof. G. W. Stevens; in its economic phase by Prof. George E. Putnam, and in its constitutional aspect by Prof. Tyrrel Williams, dean of the school of law.

The club has also booked a debate with the law students at St. Louis University, the subject and date yet to be chosen, the challenge having been issued by the Washington University organization, which has also challenged Missouri University students in a similar course to debate.

TRIES TO TAKE 'NUBBINS,' IS SHOT IN HIP AND FINED $100

Man Also Sentenced to Year in Jail by Jury in County and Faces Another Charge.

All that Robert Mains, 61 years old, did was to try to steal 75 cents worth of "nubbins" out of a cornfield in St. Louis County, and all he got, as a result of it, was a bullet wound in the hip that kept him in the hospital for 26 days, a $100 fine, a sentence of a year in jail, and the prospect of facing a charge of carrying concealed weapons, which, in this State, is a felony.

Constable Jack Miller says he saw Mains taking the corn, and that when he told him to drop it, Mains said something that wasn't nice, so the Constable fired. A jury of farmers at Florissant, where corn-stealing has caused some irritation lately, assessed the fine and jail sentence, and Miller, who found a revolver in the cornfield, preferred the weapon charge.

Mains, who at present is in jail at Clayton, wondering what will happen next, is said to feel that the punishment was somewhat out of proportion to the offense.

Dyspepsia and Home Life

What a Relief When All the Family Eat the Same Foods! Avoid Dyspepsia, Sour Risings, Gas—Indigestion From Breakfast Sausage to Dinner Mince Pie.

After mother has struggled two or three hours over a hot fire to do the cooking for a hungry family, it is real enjoyment when there isn't a dyspeptic jinx among them. Of course, a case of dyspepsia or daily indigestion must be looked after. But it is far more to the point to prevent as well as to treat sour stomach, belching, water brash, etc., by such a valuable means as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Coddling the stomach with soft food and pre-digested stuff merely invites sluggishness.

Eat your little pork sausages for breakfast without fears; have a plate of beans and a piece of pie with cheese for lunch, and end the day with a real dinner, instead of a bowl of bread and milk. Follow each meal with a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet and get right back to your natural self.

These tablets digest food and assist the stomach to prepare the content for assimilation in the intestinal tract. Thus you get the practical relief and help which induces a better appetite and a greater freedom in the selection of foods. You will find Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets on sale at any drug store in the United States and Canada, as they are considered one of the stand-bys by the druggist.

PALMER AND HOOVER LEAD AS POSSIBILITIES

Attorney-General Made the Hit of Jackson Day Feast; Other's Name Seriously Discussed.

By the Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—As matters political stand today, the names that lead all the rest of the Democratic presidential possibilities are those of Attorney-General A. Mitchell Palmer and Herbert Hoover. Palmer is an out-and-out candidate. Hoover, whatever may be his present personal inclinations, is a "drafted" candidate. More and more, one hears the prediction in political circles at Washington that the San Francisco convention, after canvassing the claims of numerous aspirants, will send the former food controller before the country as "The housewives' candidate."

Palmer is the candidate, generally speaking, of Democratic officialdom—the "machine" choice, so to speak. Joseph P. Tumulty, the President's secretary, is counted among his strong supporters. Officials of the Democratic National Committee, though careful in their public utterances to play no favorites, are understood to look with high favor on the Attorney-General.

Case of William G. McAdoo.

William G. McAdoo may yet come openly into the race, but the impression prevails here that he is out of it. McAdoo has been in a difficult position. On the authority of close political associates of the former Secretary of the Treasury, it is learned that the President has never intimated to McAdoo whether or not he desired him to be a candidate. To this fact is attributed McAdoo's holding back.

As the President's son-in-law and a former member of his official family, he did not desire to thrust himself forward in possible opposition to the President's wishes. As late as last week supporters of McAdoo were still praying that he would definitely make up his mind, so that, if he decided against running, they could throw their strength elsewhere. Whether he has come to a decision since then is not known, but by many his absence from the Jackson day dinner was construed as a tacit withdrawal of his name from consideration. The bulk of the support that McAdoo would have had among Washington officeholders will go to Palmer.

Palmer Made Hit of Feast.

While the applause that a man receives at a political gathering is no sure criterion of his standing as a candidate, it is noteworthy that Palmer made the biggest hit of all the prospective candidates at the Jackson day feast. Champ Clark was cordially received, but not more so than several other speakers. Mention of Baker, as "our great secretary of war," drew only faint applause, and of Daniels, as "our great secretary of the navy," drew none. Former Ambassador Gerard aroused no enthusiasm with a scatter-fire speech that left no distinct impression.

Palmer, however, had a well considered address, in which he took a stand for America's "manly participation in the responsibilities of the world," and scored the revolutionary activities of the "Reds" in this country. His effective manner of speaking "put across" the message where another might have failed.

Hoover Much Discussed.

One can only conjecture how Hoover would have been received. He was not there, and his name was mentioned but once. That was by Gerard, who commended Hoover as a candidate. Made without the fire of oratory, and and at a time in the early morning when the crowd was surfeited with speaking, the reference brought but little applause. In conversations among the Democrats before and after the dinner, however, the name of Hoover constantly bobbed up, and the opinion was often expressed that the selection of the Coast City as the place of the convention would work to his advantage.

Hoover is a factor in the campaign, even though nobody has been found who can state with certainty whether he has ever voted the Democratic ticket.

Johnson to Open Campaign in Brooklyn, Tuesday Night.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The campaign of Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California for the Republican nomination for the presidency will be opened in Brooklyn next Tuesday night. Progressive Americanism will be the keynote of his address.

FOR PUBLIC WORKS SECRETARY

C. E. Smith to Attend National Meeting to Launch Movement.

C. E. Smith, consulting engineer for the city, will depart today for Washington, to represent the St. Louis Society of Engineers at a meeting to be held there starting tomorrow, of representatives of architects and engineering societies from all sections of the country, for the purpose of inaugurating a movement to establish a national department of public works. Smith said it was the purpose of the conference to create sentiment for the establishment of a department of public works, the executive of which would be known as the secretary of public works, and be a member of the President's cabinet.

It is the idea that the construction of Federal buildings, development of rivers and harbors, reclamation of land and other national public improvements shall be under control of this department.

SENATE GETS INJURY CLAIM 37 YEARS OLD

St. Louisan Asks for $1200 for Accident at Arsenal in 1883—Aided by Spencer.

A claim for damages made by John H. Rheinlander of St. Louis for injuries suffered almost 37 years ago while he was employed at the Arsenal, was the subject of discussion in the United States Senate last week, when Senator Spencer presented a bill to appropriate $1200 to pay the claim. The bill was laid over after Senator Smoot of Utah had declared that it was a practice of claim agents to hang around Washington, digging up bits of news on which they induce persons to file claims.

The account of the proceedings, recorded in the Congressional Record, states that the claim was based on injuries suffered by Rheinlander when he fell on ice-covered steps, while carrying an order, and was permanently crippled. The accident occurred in February, 1883.

$5000 First Asked for.

A bill in Rheinlander's behalf was passed by the House in the Sixty-second Congress, which convened in 1911, and there was nothing to show that any claim had ever been presented before that time. The amount claimed then was $5000, which was pruned to $3000 in the House. The Senate Committee on Claims further cut it to the $1200 now claimed. Senator Smoot had this to say:

"There is nothing in the report to show when the claim was first presented to Congress. As stated by the Senator from Missouri, the claim is quite a novelty, and seems to be different from other claims. These claims generally come to the Senate in this way. We have a host of claim agents here in the District of Columbia, and when they cannot find, through the press or Government publications, some person who has a claim, directly or indirectly, against the United States, they take a vacation and go South, or West, or some other part of the country, and try to hunt up claims against the Government during their sojourn. Such claims are then brought here and presented to Congress.

"I doubt very much if in one out of a hundred instances such as this, when the claim arises out of an occurrence 30 or 40 years before, the claimant himself ever thought he had a claim against the Government of the United States until some claim agent told him of it, and offered to take the case and present it to Congress, and, if he gets it through Congress, takes about 60 or 70 per cent of the amount received, the claimant receiving the balance."

"Does the Senator from Utah indicate at all that any of that gruesome history is true of this case?" inquired Senator Spencer. Senator Smoot replied that he did not say so, but neither would he say it did not until he had made an investigation.

Inquiry Promised by Spencer.

Senator Walsh of Montana suggested that Senator Spencer make a more complete investigation of the circumstances before the matter should be carried any farther, and Senator Spencer replied that the case had come to him "upon information," and that he had no desire to press the bill until he should learn more of the facts. He would inquire, and report later, he said.

The only John H. Rhinelander whose name appears in the city directory is an insurance man, residing at 2636A Lafayette avenue. A reporter was unable to reach him to learn if he was the author of the claim.

NATIONAL PEOPLE'S LEAGUE BRANCH FORMED IN ST. LOUIS

Organization Will Be Addressed by Gov. Fraser of North Dakota of Nonpartisan League.

A Missouri branch of the National People's League, an organization working in conjunction with the Nonpartisan League along political lines, was formed Friday night at a meeting in the office of Sheridan Carlisle, an attorney, 713 Title Guaranty Building. Carlisle was elected State manager, a position similar to State chairman in the older political organizations, and Miss Hazel Choate, 5130 Cates avenue, was chosen State secretary.

Carlisle said that the Missouri branch had more than 150 members, many of whom were members of labor organizations, the Plumb Plan League, the Public Ownership League and other similar bodies. It is planned to begin the formation of city, town and county organizations at once. A mass meeting, to be addressed by Gov. Fraser, Nonpartisan executive of North Dakota, is planned. It will be held at the Odeon.

M. I. Thompson, national organizer for the Nonpartisan League, aided in forming the Missouri branch of the People's League. A platform advocating "restoration of free speech, free press and all rights guaranteed by the Constitution" and public ownership of public utilities and natural resources, a minimum wage law, equal political and civil rights for all and abolition of militarism and injunctions in labor disputes, was adopted by the Missouri branch.

SAFETY COUNCIL WILL MEET TOMORROW NIGHT

Body Working to Reduce Injuries in Industries Will Assemble at Dinner.

The annual meeting of the Safety Council of the Chamber of Commerce, which is the Mississippi Valley Division of the National Safety Council, will be held at a dinner at the Hotel Statler, at 6:30 o'clock tomorrow evening. The membership of the council consists of 175 industrial concerns of St. Louis and the East Side. The council works to reduce fatalities and injuries in industrial pursuits.

In 1917 the total accidental fatalities among industries of St. Louis were 110. In 1918, the first year in which the educational work of the council was conducted, the fatalities dropped to 46, and in 1919 there was a further reduction to 42. In 1918 the council educated 450 young men from different industries in systematic accident prevention by means of a school for safety supervisors, consisting of a course of 15 lectures.

Supplementing this course five meetings were held for the benefit of superintendents and foremen, at which lectures were given with a view of stimulating co-operation in accident prevention, which were attended by an average of 1500. Five meetings for executives and managers were also held.

The Executive Committee of the council realizing that a great many more accidents occur on the streets, in the homes and elsewhere than in the industries set to work systematically to teach accident prevention in the schools and homes.

A course of safety instruction, arranged by Dr. E. George Payne, principal of Harris Teachers' College, is being given in the schools.

The schools are directed by chairmen, as follows: Safety supervisors, Philip Stremmel; foremen and superintendents, J. C. Josse, general superintendent Continental Portland Cement Co.; public safety, Arthur T. Morey, general manager Commonwealth Steel Co.

By means of the Vigilance Committee the City Complaint Board seeks to convert to principles of safety offenders against rules of security and traffic ordinances.

FIRST MISSISSIPPI VALLEY EXPOSITION SET FOR MARCH

Fair to Be Held to Exploit Commerce and Industries and Natural Resources.

The first Mississippi Valley Exposition will be held March 1 to 13, at the Coliseum. The purpose of the exposition is to awaken the people of the Mississippi Valley to a realization of their possibilities in the readjustment of the world's affairs, to bring them together for the further advancement of their individual interests and the entire valley, and through exploiting the commerce and industries and natural resources in an annual exposition to attract the attention of the world.

It is proposed to have the exposition represent the industrial Mississippi Valley, including all lines of manufacture, commerce and natural resources. The co-operation of the United States Government and the State Governments' throughout the Mississippi Valley is assured. The State Department is sending out information to consuls of the foreign countries who are giving this information to importers.

Several States will have exhibits of their resources and those who are now preparing such exhibits are South Dakota, North Dakota, Minnesota, Tennessee and Louisiana.

Various cities will have exhibits showing the advantages and opportunities of their river-terminals and port and dock facilities. The project has received the hearty support of all of the Governors of the Mississippi Valley and there will be special days, such as Missouri day, Illinois day, when the Governors of the respective States will be present and a special program will be given, exploiting the respective States.

Superfluous Hair Roots Now Removed at Home

(Wonderful New Method)

Glorious news for women troubled with disfiguring hairy growths! By means of an entirely new and very simple method you can now remove not only the surface hair, but the roots as well! Just get a stick of phelactine from your druggist, follow the easy instructions—see the hair roots come out before your very eyes! Yes, you can hardly believe your eyes, the work is done so quickly, completely, harmlessly. Phelactine is non-irritating, non-odorous, non-poisonous—couldn't hurt a child to eat it.

The Vocalion

The Phonograph of Distinction

THE Vocalion takes its place alongside of the Aeolian Residential Pipe Organ and the Steinway Duo-Art Pianola. All are instruments of musical distinction.

So it is not surprising that musicians have found in the Vocalion a phonograph that measures up to the artistic requirements of a true musical instrument.

And you'll find greater pleasure in the possession of a Vocalion. It is the phonograph you never tire of. For it brings phonographic music at its best—plus the fascinating privilege of artistic tone control by means of the Graduola.

By means of the Universal Tone Arm the Vocalion plays all records—and without cumbersome adjustments.

Vocalion prices are reasonable. Conventional Styles—$60 to $350. Art Styles from $280 to $2000. Convenient payment terms. A booklet of startling phonograph facts free on request.

PERSHING, GIVEN GOLD SABER, WARNS OF UNREST DANGER

Tells Kansas City Throng, in Reception Speech, of "Spots Dangerous to Stability of Our Institutions."

"AMERICAN LEGION STEADYING FORCE"

Thousands Stand and Cheer and Myriads of Flags Waved in Convention Hall—Kisses Crippled Girl.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 10.—Hailed as the "victorious Missourian, fresh from the battlefields of France," Gen. John J. Pershing today was greeted by thousands of his "fellow Missourians," as he expressed it, and in turn bowed and smiled to the throngs which pressed about him wherever he appeared. The General led a parade through the city, was guest of honor at a luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce, spoke to two women's clubs and to the State convention of the Missouri Highway Engineers Association, and was presented with a gold sword. The sword presentation was made in Convention Hall late in the afternoon, where a crowd, estimated at 15,000 awaited his coming.

As the General neared the platform the crowd stood and cheered while myriads of flags were waved in greeting. The golden saber, purchased by popular subscription, was presented by Dr. Burris A. Jenkins of this city. In accepting it, Gen. Pershing said, "In the name of the gallant and courageous young manhood of Missouri whom I had the honor of commanding on the battlefields."

Legion a Steadying Force.

It was at this public reception that Gen. Pershing referred to the "days of unrest following the war." He asserted that here and there are to be found "spots dangerous to the stability of our institutions," adding that the country would find the American Legion a "steadying force, standing out against those who would destroy this great Government."

Referring to the nation as a country of laws, not "cliques or alien enemies," Gen. Pershing said "these days of law and order call for a continuation of the patriotism of war." He urged that the people carry this patriotism into their daily life. At another point in his address the General declared the creed adopted by the American Legion "includes everything that is fine in American citizenship."

After the speaking at Convention Hall the audience was invited to come forward and shake hands with the General. There were innumerable people who wanted to stop and hold a conversation, and had to be hurried along. At last a little lame girl, perhaps 12 years old, offered her hand timidly. Gen. Pershing stooped, put his left arm around her, tilted her face up to his and kissed her.

Presidency Hint Ignored.

In concluding his introduction of Gen. Pershing at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon, John T. Harding said:

"If the will of Kansas City were known, we would decorate your breast with the bright badge of the presidency." The General made no reference to this in his talk.

"When we entered the war we were in a hopeless state of unpreparedness," Gen. Pershing said. "When we enter another war it is not at all probable that we shall have allies to hold the line for us. The lesson of the war should be taken to heart by every thinking American, to the end that we may never again be in that condition. Besides military training for the young, industry should be prepared for the emergencies of war."

When Mayor Cowgill said, "Such a welcome as a President might receive, General," he received this reply: "I have no such ambition."

WOMAN REPORTS MANY THEFTS FROM HER ROOM IN HOTEL

Miss Louise Lawrence, a guest at the Maryland Hotel, reported to the police Friday night that many articles of value have been stolen from her room there since Dec. 28. The thefts occurred at various times when she was away from her room. The police yesterday questioned a woman employe of the hotel.

Articles which Miss Lawrence reported stolen were: Bottle perfume, $12; silk sweater, $47.50; two silk vests, $4; two silk undergarments, $27; a third silk undergarment, $10.50; pair lace hose, $6.50; pair silk hose, $5; another silk undergarment, $10; $35 cash and a beaded purse valued at $85 and containing $12.

She refrained from reporting the thefts to the police, she said, until the purse and money disappeared.

RENEWED EFFORT FOR COMPROMISE ON TREATY MADE

Republicans Favoring Ratification Draw Up Counter Proposal to Democrats' Plan and Submit It.

LODGE GIVES HIS TENTATIVE ASSENT

Mild Republicans and Democrats Declare Progress Is Being Made; Effort to Get Issue Out of Way.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Efforts to break the Senate peace treaty deadlock and keep the treaty out of the political campaign were advanced a step today when Republican Senators advocating ratification drew up a counter-proposal to the set of compromise reservations submitted to them early in the week by a group of Democrats.

The Republican proposal, to which its sponsors said Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the party leader, had given tentative assent, was understood to deal only with some of the collateral issues in the reservation controversy, leaving to future negotiation the troublesome questions of article 10 and equality of voting power in the league of nations.

Some of the Democratic suggestions were said to have been accepted, including a change in the Republican reservation program of last session, so that the Senate qualifications would not have to be accepted affirmatively by the other Powers.

Progress Declared Made.

Both the mild group and the Democrats declared progress had been made, and were hopeful that at least the controversy might soon be stripped of its minor features and narrowed to two or three subjects.

Submission of the counter-proposal to the Democrats came after the Senate adjourned at the end of a day which had kept the chamber and cloakroom alive with treaty talk.

Among these conferences was a talk between Senator Lodge and Senator Underwood of Alabama, a Democrat who has taken a prominent part in urging a speedy compromise. Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, the acting Democratic leader, conferred with several of the mild reservation Republicans.

Although the details of these conversations were not revealed, there was evidence that both Democrats and Republicans intended to continue their compromise efforts. Reassurances on this subject were asked of the Democrats, however, the Republicans requesting that they be informed exactly how many Democrats would agree to the Republican counter-proposal. They were told by Senators McKellar, Tennessee, and Kendrick, Wyoming, who framed the compromise reservations, that more than 40 Democrats wanted to compromise.

It was to Senators McKellar and Kendrick that the new plan of the Republicans was presented, and they announced that they would take a canvass of Democratic opinion early next week.

After their talk with Senator Lodge, the three mild reservationists who presented the counter proposal also appeared satisfied with the result. Senators McNary of Oregon, and Golt of Rhode Island, declared the situation was improving constantly and said they were very hopeful of ratification.

Folk at the Capital.

Former Gov. Folk of Missouri, a close friend of William J. Bryan, and who entertained him at a recent banquet here, was at the Capitol today conferring with a number of Democratic Senators. Gov. Folk declared that a great movement is on foot among Democratic Senators to virtually accep the Lodge Reservations and ratify the treaty. He explained that many of the minority Senators are campaigning for reelection and will face defeat unless the treaty is out of the way soon.

The optimism of Folk was somewhat demonstrated when Senator Kendrick went to the mild reservation Republicans and urged them to hasten a counter proposition on the plan submitted for their examination. It was following this request from Kendrick that the Republicans became busy, discussed the Kendrick-McKellar substitute and went to Lodge. As a result the answer already is in the hands of Democrats and they will have an opportunity to mill over it tomorrow and be in position for rapid fire negotiations Monday.

"The prospects are much brighter for a compromise," said Senator Colt after Kendrick's call. "The Democrats are strong for reservations."

"A compromise is coming around," said Senator McNary. "Nearly all the Democrats will join the Republicans in action on reservations."

A dash of ice water was thrown on the situation by Senator Moses. "Cold mathematics have not been applied to the situation," he said. "Fifteen irreconcilables remain firm in opposition to the treaty. There are 25 other Senators who will join with them if they do not get the Lodge Reservations as now drawn.

"I believe that when this mathematical fact soaks in there will be a rush to adopt the Knox resolution or some similar proposition."

Lodge was in a most amiable and conciliatory mood. He expressed a desire to meet the Democrats half way. He agreed with his visitors that concessions of minor consequence should be offered on four or five points. But Lodge insisted that he be shown where 64 votes can be obtained. He desired to be absolutely certain that this number is in hand before arranging to revitalize the treaty and bring it to another test of strength.

No Split in Democratic Party, Bryan Says in Speech at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—William Jennings Bryan advocated "free and open discussion, where concessions may be asked and given," in the U. S. Senate, in an effort to reach a compromise on the peace treaty, in an address at the Iroquois Club today.

Then, "if no compromise can be reached, we must acquiesce, for the present, with the Republican majority," he said. He proposed that in that case enough Democratic votes be withdrawn to permit the Republicans a constitutional two-thirds vote by which the treaty and league of nations covenant would be ratified with reservations, and allow "the people to pass judgment" at the polls.

Bryan said that there has been no "split" in the Democratic party, and that such a conclusion should not be drawn from the addresses of himself and President Wilson at the Jackson day banquet. "The President and I differ in method and not in purpose," he said.

"The President's letter, read at Washington," continued Bryan, "contains words open to construction that indicate to me that compromise is possible. The President did well at Paris. He did more there than we could expect any man to do."

In his speech Bryan presented his plan for immediate ratification of the treaty. The steps he proposes follows:

1. Direct invitation—presumably from the President or from responsible Democratic Senators—to the Republican Senators to sit in at a conference, open to the press, where concessions could be considered from both sides and a system of reservations agreed to whereby the treaty could secure a substantially unanimous vote in the Senate.

2. Failing in securing a compromise, the Democrats to serve notice that the Republicans must proceed with their programs of reservations already adopted by the Foreign Affairs Committee; that the Democrats would withdraw sufficient number of votes from the Senate so that the existing Republican majority now committed to ratification would be converted in the constitutional two-thirds majority required for ratification; peace thereby would be established, and ratification thereby would not become the paramount issue of the 1920 campaign, nor would peace be delayed for 14 months.

Bryan has made peace with Roger C. Sullivan. He came from Washington with Sullivan.

Palmer Predicts Ratification With "Interpretations" or "Reservations."

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10.—The peace treaty will be ratified with reasonable interpretations or reservations, said Attorney-General A. Mitchel Palmer, who attended a dinner of a Greek letter fraternity of Swarthmore College here tonight.

"Call them what you will, they will not nullify the treaty and the document will be satisfactory, I personally believe to President Wilson," he said.

PICKETING CHARGED IN SUIT IN U. S. COURT FOR INJUNCTION

The American Musicians' Union, incorporated, with headquarters in Chicago, yesterday filed suit in the United States District Court here for a restraining order to prevent interference with its operations by the Musicians' Mutual Benefit Association and Local No. 2 of the American Federation of Musicians.

Officers of the Federation named as defendants are Frank Gecks, president; Henry J. Falkenhainer, secretary, and Stephen Butler Sr., business agent. Stephen Butler Jr., Frank Tobe and Marion Henderson also are named as employes of the Federation.

Judge Faris issued an order for the defendants to show cause Jan. 19 why a restraining order should not be issued.

The petition alleges that on Nov. 13 last the local union of the American Federation of Musicians notified A. V. Bernhardt, proprietor of a dancing academy at 4916A Delmar boulevard, that he must get rid of members of the American Musicians' Union who are playing there. He refused, the petition says, and since then the place has been picketed and efforts have been made to intimidate and molest the musicians employed there.

'Y' WORK AMONG BOYS WIDENED

High School and Employed Boys' Clubs Organized.

The work of the Y. M. C. A. among the boys of the city has in the last few years assumed large proportions. Two community "Y" centers have been established, one at Carondelet and one at Maplewood, besides which Hi-Y Clubs have been organized in each high school. Employed boys' brotherhoods have been organized at the Central and North Side departments. The Y. M. C. A. also maintains a summer camp at Bourbon, Mo., where the boys of the city can enjoy a summer's outing at a minimum expense.

J. A. Wolf, is the executive secretary of this work, with R. M. Frehse who specializes in high school boys' activities and H. S. Kelter, who has charge of the work among employed boys.

REPORT OPPOSES FORMATION OF CHARITIES FEDERATION NOW

Chamber of Commerce Subcommittee Recommends Wide Study of Question Before Action Is Taken.

The Charities Committee of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday received a report from a special subcommittee of three, to which the question of the organiaztion of a Federation of Charities had been submitted. The report was to the effect that such a federation should not be formed until an exhaustive study of the question has been made.

The subcommittee which reached this conclusion consisted of Dr. Hanau W. Loeb, chairman; Charles P. Pettus, Dr. A. S. Barnes Jr. and Scotot R. DeKins, secretary.

The subcommittee pointed out that it would be unwise to attempt to form a federation in St. Louis until the views of donors to charities, and the charities themselves, have been ascertained. Furthermore, that a careful analysis of the budgets of local charitable and philanthropic organizations should be had, showing the amount of income received from endowment funds, amount received from inmates, members or beneficiaries, and the amount of income which has to be solicited through campaigns or special drives from the general public.

It was also stated that a thorough study of the problem, as it has been worked out in other cities, should be made, and that such a study might necessitate the members of the subcommittee, or the secretary, visiting such cities, so that personal interviews might be had with not only the federation officers, but also with those in charge of the organizations belonging to the federation.

CONGRESS ASKED FOR $150,000,000 TO FEED EUROPE

Needed to Prevent "General Disintegration" in Western Part of Continent, Says Secretary Glass.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Loans totaling $150,000,000 for food and relief in Austria, Poland and other European countries and Armenia, to prevent "a general disintegration of political cohesion in Western Europe," were proposed to Congress today by Secretary of the Treasury Glass, who said it might be necessary to increase this amount to $200,000,000 after the full situation in Europe had been assessed.

The Secretary reviewed at length conditions in the suffering countries, particularly Austria and Poland, and said Great Britain, France and Italy were assisting in relieving distress in Austria through a $48,000,000 loan, and that Great Britain would continue to lend aid by furnishing ships for transporting American food and such supplies as possible from the United Kingdom.

Reviewing the situation in Austria, Glass said suffering was so great that the Chancellor, Dr. Renner, had declares a complete breakdown must occur by the end of January unless assistance were given from the outside.

"What the effect of a general social breakdown in Austria would be of course only can be conjectured," wrote Glass. "That it would be confined to Austria, however, seems highly improbable, and if it spread to Germany, Poland, and possibly all Europe, the result would be no less than a general disintegration of political cohesion in Western Europe. Such an event would be fraught with the most serious consequences for the United States and would certainly leave in its wake severe suffering and thousands of deaths among the poorer class."

Referring to Poland, Glass said the failure of the Government there properly to ration its adult population already had caused demonstrations by the "Reds" in Warsaw.

Propose Division of Money.

Under the Treasury Department plan the loans would be advanced by the grain corporation out of the billion dollar wheat guaranty fund and would be used to establish credits in this country on the basis of $70,000,000 for Austria, $50,000,000 for Poland, $25,000,000 for other European countries and $1,000,000 for Armenia.

Some form of securities would be obtained from the foreign countries before the loans would be made. Assistant Secretary Davis, who presented Secretary Glass' statement to the House Ways and Means Committee, explained that the countries interested now were considering such security from Austria, including her national forests, tobacco monopoly and water power sites.

"It also has been proposed that the countries take charge of Austria's customs duties, but we oppose this as unadvisable," he added.

Loans by the United States would be for five or ten years, the witness explained, adding that "these new loans would be as good as some we have got." Davis asked that Congress act immediately so as "to let Europe know what to expect."

Chairman Fordney said the committee would act next week after hearing Herbert Hoover on Monday.

Secretary Glass' letter said 300,000 tons of grain would be the minimum requirement to feed Poland until the next harvest, about Oct. 1. Partial failure of the wheat crop, lack of fuel for threshing and 50 per cent destruction of the potato crop by frosts were blamed for the present situation.

"The food situation in Poland is so serious," continued the letter, "that the European children's relief fund has been felt obliged to loan Poland small quantities of flour from the stocks intended for child feeding. This assistance is claimed by its administrators there to have been a powerful means of averting revolutions up to this time."

ONE NEGRO KILLS ANOTHER ON CROWDED CORNER AT 3:30 P. M.

George James, 60 years old, a negro laborer, 4018 Papin street, at 3:30 p. m. yesterday shot and killed Emmett Lee, also a negro laborer, 1833 Biddle street, on the sidewalk at the corner of Thirteenth and Biddle streets. The shooting was witnessed by nearly 100 persons.

James fired four shots into Lee's head, the last three being fired as Lee lay on the sidewalk. He then walked down Biddle street with Myrtle James, a negress, 35 years old, 1833 Biddle street, and surrendered to a policeman at Eleventh street.

James is held at the Carr Street Police Station on a charge of murder and the woman is held as a witness. According to their story, the woman lived with James as his wife for 15 years and left him last September to go to Lee. Since then James has been seen frequently in the neighborhood of the Lee home.

James told the police that Lee warned him when they met today to stay away and threatened him with a cane and that he shot to prevent an attack. He later admitted, however, that he bought a revolver with the intention of shooting Lee.

CARPENTER FOUND DEAD IN HOME

Fred Schleicher, 45 years old, 1329A Dillon street, a carpenter, was found dead in a bed in his home yesterday, a bullet wound in his temple, a revolver in his hand and an overcoat over his head. A note pinned to the bed was written in an erratic vein.

His wife, Mrs. Anna Schleicher, had been spending a few days at the home of her brother, Lawrence Rein, 1602 Goodfellow avenue. She endeavored to reach her husband by telephone twice Friday, receiving no answer. She and Rein went to the home yesterday, broke in and found Schleicher's body. His wife said that he was of a melancholy temperament. She could give no definite reason for his act.

ICE CREAM WEEK HERE IN MIDDLE OF WINTER

Hundreds of Members of Supply Men's Association Will Come for Convention.

Ice cream week in St. Louis, which might be expected to begin on Sundae, will open tomorrow instead, and will continue until Saturday evening.

The Second Regional Exhibition of the National Association of Ice Cream Supply Men, which will be held this week in the Coliseum, is the occasion of the announcement of Ice Cream Week.

The exhibition was arranged by the St. Louis Convention and Publicity Bureau, and it will have some of the features of a convention. There will not be any meetings of the usual sort, with the reading of papers by Messrs. Chocolate, Vanilla, Strawberry and others prominent in the business, but Mayor Kiel is expected to call at the exhibition early Tuesday afternoon, sample some of the ice cream and tell the delegates, in a little speech, what he thinks of it.

Thursday night, at Hotel Jefferson, there will be a dinner, with the Mayor and Circuit Attorney McDaniel, head of the State Fair Price Commission, as speakers.

Several Hundred Coming.

The convention bureau announces that several hundred ice cream manufacturers are expected to be here for the week, coming from all the Central and Southwestern States. They will be entertained at stag smokers and athletic performances on different nights, with motor drives and theater parties for the women.

The exhibition of supplies, machinery and equipment will be the largest ever held in this industry, it is announced. It will have many of the features of the Eastern Regional exhibition, held last November in Philadelphia.

Ice cream is as much an American product as tobacco or the 14 points. The French and Italian courts used to have their ices, before the days of democracy, but President Andrew Jackson is said to have been the first ruler to serve real ice cream at state functions, declaring that, "by the Eternal," it was great stuff.

Baby Cried for More.

In 1900 ice cream soda was discovered in Philadelphia. Like Newton and his apple, and Charles Lamb's roast pig, it was an accident. A lump of ice cream fell into a glass of carbonated water, a child consumed the mixture and cried for more, and a new item was added to the public enjoyment and expenditure.

The ice cream cone is said to have been discovered, also by accident, at the St. Louis World's Fair in 1904. The ice cream sandwich and the banana split are other by-products.

The officers of the National Association are: President, Oliver S. Gordon, New York; vice-president, Harvey Miller, Columbus, O.; treasurer, Thomas D. Cutter, of New York, and secretary-manager, Roberts Everett of New York.

RURAL SCHOOLS CLOSED FOR WANT OF TEACHERS

State Teachers' Executive Body Plans Campaign to Increase Salaries of Instructors.

Rural Missouri, doing an agricultural business estimated at $1,000,000,000 a year, a manufacturing business estimated at $1,000,000,000 a year, and an annual banking business the footings of which total $1,000,000,000 and represent deposits 75 per cent in excess of what they were five years ago, is paying elementary teachers in the "little red school houses" such paltry salaries that they are quitting their profession and accepting positions as clerks, saleswomen and bookkeepers in order to earn enough to "keep body and soul together" under the pressure of the 125 per cent increases in the cost of living.

The majority of the teachers receive less than $500 a year, 89 receive less than $200 a year, 540 receive less than $300 a year and 2101 receive less than $400 a year. There are approximately 15,000 grade teachers in the rural districts, and to fill vacancies created by the departure of many for more lucrative fields the county superintendents last year found it necessary to issue teachers' certificates to more than 5000 persons having only an eighth-grade education. Even at that, there are still some schools, badly needed, that are without teachers.

Boys Get $3 a Day.

On the other hand, boy helpers in coal mines, just over the child labor age limit, are receiving $3 a day, plasterers get $38.50 a week, bricklayers, $37.40, hod carriers, $24.20, gas fitters, $33, and paper hangers, $27.50.

These facts were contained in reports of a special committee on salaries, which were submitted yesterday to the Executive Committee of the State Teachers' Association meeting at the Marquette Hotel. The reports were read by C. A Phillips, dean of the State Teachers' College at Warrensburg, and C. H. Williams, director of extension work in Missouri University. The Executive Committee, of which H. L. Roberts of the Cape Girardeau Teachers' College is chairman, spent the afternoon in discussing ways of carrying on a campaign of propaganda for public support in an effort to get financial relief for the teachers.

It was pointed out that there are two plans by which the State can get increased revenue for school purposes. One is by constitutional amendment, by a proposition submitted to the voters at the autumn election, authorizing the Legislature to increase the tax rate. The alternative would be to induce the State Board of Equalization to increase the assessed valuation of property. The latter step would not be unreasonable, it was contended, because farms in Missouri, the valuation of which is now assessed at $50 an acre, can be sold at $200 an acre.

The Executive Committee discussed the advisability of an advertising campaign in newspapers and picture theaters.

The salary committee, in urging that action in the matter of increased salaries be hastened, pointed to the fact, based on actual statistics, that vocational schools are overcrowded and have long waiting lists while the enrollment in teacher-training institutions has fallen off 25 per cent in the last year. This means a crisis in Missouri educational affairs, Dean Phillips said, with no prospect of improvement unless the profession of teaching in the rural districts is made more lucrative.

The figures in the reports submitted were taken from Government reports and statistics obtained in the office of the State Superintendent of Schools, from the University of Missouri and from the five Teachers' Colleges of the State.

A statement recently made by Secretary of the Interior Lane, in whose department the Bureau of Education is located, was quoted in the salary committee's report follows:

"At a time when democracy must meet the challenge of eastern autocracy, and when our public schools stand in need of ablest men and women, we are not only losing thousands of our best teachers yearly, but other young men and women are no longer preparing to enter the service because they cannot exist on the disgracefully low salaries. The public school is the strongest weapon we possess against the enemy of our liberty. The temper of that weapon will naturally depend upon the character of our teachers. These teachers have always been disgracefully under-paid."

The report showed that in 1914-1915 the average annual salary of rural school teachers in Missouri was $329.16, or $25.32 a month, or $6.33 a week. The increase in salaries in the five-year period since then has been 10.9 per cent, whereas, the increased cost of living, according to the report, has been 121 per cent.

The committee suggested the following standards for a revised salary schedule: For teachers in cities of less than 25,000 population, having a Normal School diploma, $1000 the first year, with an increase of $100 each year for the following six years, making a maximum of $1600; for teachers with an A. B. degree, $1200 the first year and an additional $100 a year for the following 10 years; for teachers with an A. M. degree, $1400 the first year and $100 additional each of the subsequent 10 years, and for teachers with a Ph.D. degree, $1800 the first year and $100 additional each of the following 10 years.

The salaries paid to teachers in the rural schools in St. Charles County range from $40 to $90 per month. In only one instance, that of Miss Belle Tuttle, teacher at the St. Peter's district school, is the minimum salary of $25 a month paid. The reason for this, it was learned, is that all of the 85 registered school children of St. Peter's, a small village, eight miles north of St. Charles, attend parochial schools, leaving the public school house vacant.

Miss Tuttle is maintained as teacher, although she has no pupils, in order to comply with the law.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY ASKS CITY TO JOIN IN CENTENNIAL

Many Celebrations of Missouri's Hundredth Birthday Are Planned in State.

A call for Mayor Kiel and the Chamber of Commerce to join with it in planning a celebration in St. Louis of the centennial of the admittance of Missouri to statehood has been sent out by the Advisory Board of the Missouri Historical Society. The State Government was inaugurated here.

Many celebrations of the event about the State already are planned or being talked. Columbia has set March 6, 1920, as a celebration date. The enabling act for the organization of Missouri territory into a State was signed on that date by President Monroe.

St. Charles became the temporary capital in 1921 and will celebrate in that year. The last Legislature's bill for a celebration was vetoed with the understanding that the Legislature of 1921 would make provision for a celebration. Kansas City newspapers are talking of a celebration, probably in the form of a pageant.

Wednesday

Dear Frances:-

I know you will be tickled to death to know some real news. Well, I've gone and did it - no, not married (that is, not yet). But nearly as good. You see I am now working for the Elder Manufacturing Company, and, believe me, they're real people to work for. Very pleasant, light, airy surroundings, everything nice and clean. The work comes steadily and the girls are delighted with everything, particularly the pay, which is the best of all. If you can run either a Single Needle Singer or Willcox & Gibbs on Shirts, Overalls, Neckwear, Belts, Pajamas or Boys' Blouses, or a Union Special Two-Needle Machine, or can Press or Iron Shirts, or know any other girl who can, tell her she can marry a swell job by applying to the Elder Manufacturing Company 13th and Lucas Avenue, 23rd and Madison Streets, or 7600 Michigan Avenue, right now. They can still use a few more good operators and quick learners. I am telling you something! You know me.

ESSEX MOTOR CARS

How to Guarantee Spring Delivery of Hudson and Essex Open Models

No Large Money Outlay Required. Make Your Choice Now. We Will Store It For You and Insure You Against Disappointment

In the light of the year just closed, it is not conjecture to assert that a shortage of Hudson and Essex cars is sure to recur this Spring.

More than 22,000 Essex cars were sold in the past twelve months. The factory capacity was increased time after time. Beginning with a daily production of 30 cars, it reached 125 cars daily.

Yet we were never able to overtake advance orders.

A similar condition was true with respect to Hudson.

You remember how scores waited in vain for delivery. Perhaps you were among those disappointed.

Practically our entire quota of both Hudson and Essex cars were sold weeks ahead. Few were able to get delivery who had not placed their orders ahead.

Settle the Delivery Worry Now

This year we have arranged a special plan to guarantee you delivery, during the acute spring rush of orders.

It will require no large outlay of money.

You can place your order now. We will have your car ready for you on the day you want it.

Thus you dispose of all concern about getting your Hudson or Essex when you want it. It will be a source of satisfaction to know you are insured against having to accept some less wanted car, when the season for open types crowds the market with more buyers than we can supply.

If your preference is for a light car what choice equals the Essex?

It represents a new, unexpected value. It brings to the light car field such quality and fine performance as was hitherto found only among large costly cars.

Note the Quality of the Essex

If speed is your requirement see if the Essex does not meet it. Where luxury and finish are demanded compare the Essex with any car.

It is needless to speak of the Hudson. All know what it has done. Its records, which prove supremacy throughout the range of performance, are confirmed by the satisfaction that more than 80,000 owners know in their Super-Sixes.

The supply of Hudsons and of Essex has never been sufficient for the demand.

You can only insure yourself against disappointment in getting either of these popular cars, by placing your order under the convenient plan we have set forth above.

Dempsey's Manager Inspects Prospective Scene of Battle at Tia Juana.

By the Associated Press.

BORDEAU, Jan. 10.—Georges Carpentier, French heavyweight champion, knocked out "Blink" McCloskey in the second round here tonight. At the conclusion of the fight M. Descamps, manager of Carpentier, announced to the audience that he had telegraphed this morning to Jack Dempsey's manager that the Dempsey-Carpentier fight would take place in New Jersey on Sept. 6 (Labor day).

COFFROTH IS SURPRISED.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 10.—James W. Coffroth, who has been proceeding in the belief that his bid of $400,000 for a world's championship fight between Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier virtually had been accepted, said tonight he was unable to explain the announcement of M. Descamps, Carpentier's manager, that the fight would be held on September 6 (Labor Day), in New Jersey.

"In regard to the statement of Carpentier's manager, issued from the ring, after the Frenchman's victory of tonight, will say that when men work on a purse proposition instead of a percentage of the gate receipts we do not take it that they should be concerned in the battleground.

Coffroth Claims Priority

"However, things may come around so that Descamps may have his wish granted, although I always will adheer to my belief that Ti Juana must have the first call if I promote the fight. The same line of thought applies as regards the date of September 6. The date is a matter of mutual agreement between all parties, and either July 4 or September 6, which is Labor Day, is immaterial to me."

Coffroth had just returned from Ti Juana, where he and Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, had inspected a possible site for an arena.

Dempsey Is Ignorant of Plan

LOS ANGELES, JAN. 10.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, apprised by the Associated Press, tonight of the statement of M. Descamps, Georges Carpentier's manager, that the Dempsey-Carpentier fight would take place in New Jersey on Labor Day, said he knew nothing of any arrangements or even proposal to that effect, but admitted that Jack Kearns, his manager, might be able to throw light on the matter.

Carpentier Held to Contract.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Charles Cochrane, the English fight promoter, tonight denied the assertion of M. Descamps, manager of Georges Carpentier, the French heavyweight champion, that Cochrane's agreement with Carpentier would expire Jan. 15, if he were unable to obtain the signature of Jack Dempsey, the American title holder, by that date.

Cochrane said he doubted that Descamps made such a statement and announced that he had sent a cable message, today, asking him to deny it.

"I have made the first payment under the contract due on or before Feb. 15, and shall make further payments as they become due," the message reads. "I hold you to your contract and you have no right to enter into any other negotiations."

Cochrane said the next payment, under the provisions of the agreement, was not due until June 1. He added that "M. Descamps and Georges Carpentier were both delighted with the terms of the contract, at the time they signed it."

FAILURE TO HEAR FROM CARPENTIER HOLDS UP PLANS FOR TITLE BOUT

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 10.—Jack Kearns, manager for Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion pugilist of the world, and James Coffroth, fight promoter, today went to Tia Juana to look over the proposed site for the fight between Dempsey and Carpentier.

One development of the day was that nothing further toward completing details of the proposed heavyweight contest can be done until Carpentier and his manager are heard from.

Both Coffroth and Kearns are of the opinion that Carpentier and his manager will be unable to act until after Jan. 15, when it is said an option on Carpentier's services, held by Charles Cochrane, English fight promoter, will expire.

Kearns, however, at the conference yesterday, renewed his assent to Coffroth's terms, and placed himself on record as being unwilling to accept an offer from the other promoters, unless far in excess of the figure offered by Coffroth.

LINNE TAKES LEAD IN POLICE REVOLVER SHOOT

Next Wednesday night's shoot of the Police Revolver Club will close the third series in the interesting handicap shoot now being contested. After a vacation over the holidays the contestants shot the third series of targets in the third event last week, William E. Linne taking the lead from Espy with a total of 584 out of a possible 600. Espy was second with 578 and Rich third with 577. The margin is so close that it is anybody's contest. It looks as though the three leaders have the first, second and third prizes cinched, no matter in what order they may finish.

The scores last week were: Todd 200, W. F. Linne 196, Rich 195, Muelled 194, Dorman 192, Godfrey 191, Espy 189, King 187, Butterley 186, Turner 185, Waddock 183, Loeffel 179, Fynn 177, Engel 176, F. L. Linne 163, Kueffner 141, Cobb, 126 and Plunkett 114.

Election of St. Louisan to Golf Presidency May Mean Title Event Here in 1921

St. Louis Country Club's Ambition to Hold the National Amateur Championship Likely to Be Gratified With G. H. Walker in Power.

G. HERBERT WALKER.

The election of G. Herbert Walker, 12 Hortense place, to the presidency of the United States Golf Association at New York, Friday night, was the topic of discussion at various country clubs here, yesterday. The prevailing opinion was that the choice of a St. Louis man to the high office meant that the St. Louis Country Club would be awarded the National Amateur Championship tournament for 1921.

The club has aspired to hold this feature ever since it moved to Price road, and there established what is conceded to be one of the best links in the United States—a course that requires strictly accurate and consistent golf. The holes, in almost every instance, are copied from among the most noted ones of the country's best courses. They form a composite of all the best hazards in the United States.

Leading amateurs and professionals that have played over it all have commended the course highly.

The National Golf Association, in selecting Mr. Walker for president, chose not only a high-grade golfer, but one of the best all-around athletes in the city. Mr. Walker is 45 years of age, but he has not ceased to be identified with some form of sport ever since as a youth at Smith Academy he played on the football squad. Today he is a member of the St. Louis Country, Sunset Hill, Log Cabin, Racquet and Noonday Clubs.

Runner-Up in District Event.

As a golfer Mr. Walker has never quite attained championship altitudes, although in 1917 he was beaten by Chris Kenney in the final for the District Championship. The following year, at Midland Valley, he was put out of the district tournament in the semifinal round by E. C. Sullivan. In both tournaments Walker eliminated that good player, Jimmy Manion. Walker is especially good at match play.

Walker achieved his most conspicuous success as a polo player and was a member of the famous four that practically held the championship of the West for several years. This team was good enough to give the pick of the Chicago polo teams a handicap and still win. Walker was said to have the best stable of polo ponies in the Middle West.

Walker is a great huntsman and maintains a kennel of hunting dogs. He is widely known, especially to Eastern golfers and sportsmen. He owns a remarkable physique and keeps himself in good condition. Although of middle years he is still an athlete.

Millers to Play Screw Co. Today

St. Louis Soccer League Elevens in 35-Minute Halves at Cardinal Field.

The regular schedule of the St. Louis Soccer League will be resumed today, after a week's layoff because of the holiday attractions with the Robins of Brooklyn. In the opener today, the leading Ben Millers oppose the Screw Co., while the Innisfails battle the Scullins in the second. Play at 2 o'clock, with Phil Kavanaugh as referee.

In the contests today, 35 minute halves, instead of the usual 30 will be played, this having been decided upon at a meeting of the officials of the circuit during the week. The switch was made so that the local kickers would get accustomed to the 45 minute periods required by the U. S. F. A. rules.

Officials have announced that if the snow remains on the field, the side-lines will be marked with lamp black.

NOTED ENGLISH GOLFER TO TOUR THIS COUNTRY

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—W. Herbert Fowler, famous across the waters as the builder of Walton Heath, a fine golf links near London, will arrive in this country shortly and will tour the land with his assistant, ready to give advice where needed and when asked, for a consideration, of course. He will undoubtedly have plenty of work, and ought to bring about a revival of interest among those club members who may think at the present time that their course needs no fixing up.

America has fine architects here, but there is work enough, and to spare.

While Mr. Fowler is an amateur in Great Britain, he would not be permitted to play in an amateur tournament held in this country under the U. S. G. A. rules because of the fact that golf architects have been classed as professionals, according to the latest amateur edict ruling of the U. S. G. A. Executive Committee, which will surely add to the disgust of the aforenamed gentleman, who is a first-class golfer as well as a links builder.

YALE AND HARVARD NOT TO SHIFT REGATTA COURSE

The possibility of Yale and Harvard shifting the scene of their annual regatta from New London to New Haven is not taken seriously by Yale authorities. An official pointed out that neither Yale nor Harvard favors a departure from the old plan of four-mile races. Inasmuch as the proposed New Haven course is to be but a trifle longer than the Henley distance there seems no chance of a change.

Pikeway Varsity Five Barely Wins

Freshmen Team Was Winning in First Half, but Tired From Lack of Condition.

Washington University's basketball regulars were fortunate to beat the Freshman team in a practice game at Francis Gymnasium, last night, score 44 to 35.

At the close of the first half the Freshmen, minus two regulars, had played rings around the university men, leading 23 to 16. The next period saw lack of condition cut down the first-year men and the varsity passed them. Ted Drewes and Wentworth, two first-year regulars, were not in the lineup. Marquard played with a bad knee and cut on his shin.

Washington plays Missouri two championship games, next Friday and Saturday.

The lineup:

Varsity (44).	Positions.	Freshmen (35)
Marquard (6) Thompson (4), McElwee (2)	Left forward	Yorger (6) Edgar (0)
Hurd (6), Linnemeyer (6)	Right forward	Stratton (4), Rowley (0)
Lippert (8)	Center	Thumser (13)
Kamp (6), McCollum (2)	Left guard	Hanson (12)
Kraehe (2), Russel (2)	Right guard	Muckiman (0)

FOOTBALL STARS HELP ILLINOIS QUINTET WIN

URBANA, Ill., Jan. 10.—Illinois opened the conference basket ball season here tonight by defeating Purdue 33 to 31.

Two football stars, responsible for several wins on the gridiron this fall, deserve the honors for tonight's victory. They are "Chuck" Carney of Evanston, and Walquist of Rockford. The boilermakers led at the half way post by two points, but Illinois overtook them early in the last half. The game was hard-fought throughout.

GLADSTONE SUE TAKES FIELD TRIAL LAURELS

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Jan. 10.—Smith's Gladstone Sue, owned by Col. Gustav Pabst of Milwaukee and handled by Louie McGrew of Pittsburg, won the amateur championship of the All-American Field Trials Club at Letohatchie, this afternoon.

Second money was taken by Utah Mack, owned by L. L. Haggin of Lexington, Ky., and third money by Llewllyn Lance, owned by C. E. Grace of Illinois.

Amateur Boxing Show Jan. 30

Officials of the Northwest Turn and Liederkranz Association announce that the club's next amateur boxing show will be held at Eagles Hall, Jan. 30. Five bouts will be arranged. Any simon pure wishing to compete should communicate with Al Neist.

New Officers of Cardinals to Be Named This Week

Annual Meeting of Knot-Hole Directors Scheduled for Next Tuesday Morning.

RICKEY CASE INTERESTS

He Is Scheduled to Relinquish Either Presidency or Managership of Team.

Baseball interest in St. Louis will be revived this week, with the annual meeting of the directors of the Cardinals, scheduled to be held at the office of J. C. Jones, vice president of the club, next Tuesday morning.

Especial interest is attached to the status of President-manager Branch Rickey. Rickey has anounced that he will not again hold down both offices. However, he has not yet made known which place he will give up.

There are two possibilities. One is that Rickey will step down as President and act as manager of the club for the 1920 campaign. The other is that Rickey will retain the presidential seat and select a man to run the team on the field.

This latter possibility has been given much publicity, as during the National League meeting in New York it was reported that Bert Shotton would be the next manager of the club. Lately several other names have been added to the list.

Rickey, when he returned recently from the New York meeting when asked concerning the 1920 manager, stated as follows:

"You know I have not quit as manager to date."

Rickey, who since early in the week has been away on a trip, which has some baseball connection, is scheduled to return to the city either today or tomorrow.

Twenty-two players, a majority of them pitchers, are on the list of newcomers due for a trial under the critical eye of President-Manager Branch Rickey of the Cardinals next spring. Some of the players are familiar to St. Louis fans, while many will be making their first bow in professional company. The "scouting" on most of the juveniles was done by Charley Barrett, who probably has procured jobs in baseball for more youngsters than any other single person.

Among the pitchers is "Big Bill" Bolden, from Tennessee, who served his apprenticeship in Houston last summer. Bill has the size, weight, speed and other qualifications to make a real star.

The performances of Walter Schulz, a young St. Louis righthander, will be watched with interest. Schultz is the pitcher who, when toiling for the Mt. Vernon team last September in an exhibition game, defeated the Cardinals. He not only won his game, but held Hornsby, Stock and company to three hits.

Following is the list of youngsters signed by the St. Louis club:

Pitchers—Walter Lambrecht, Evansville, Ind.; Walter Schulz, Mount Vernon, Ill.; Phil Todt, Houston, Tex.; Earl Gardner, Granite City High School; Willis Koenigsmark, Waterloo, Ill.; Bill Bolden, Houston, Tex.; Thomas Kelley, Waco, Tex.; Arthur Reinhart, Houston, Tex.; Frank Keck, Kirkwood, Mo.; James Hatchard, St. Louis; Roy Parker, Cape Girardeau, Mo.

Catcher—Arthur Dunn, St. Louis.

Infielders—James McLaughlin, Mt. Vernon, Ill.; Bill Brown, Mobile, Ala.; James Bottomly, Nokomis, Ill.; Hi Buser, St. Louis; Louis Oettle, Staunton, Ill.; Polly McLarry, Binghamton, N. Y.; Levi A. Bechel, Chaffee, Mo.; E. O. Daughtrey, Chaffee, Mo.

Outfielders—Ed Bogart, Regina, Canada; Jake Miller, Mobile, Ala.

SCHUPP SCHEDULED TO TRAIN AT HOT SPRINGS

Ferdinand M. Schupp, upon whose once mighty left arm depends success or failure for the Cardinals in 1920, is soon to depart for Hot Springs, Ark., to prepare for the coming baseball grind. Schupp will likely start a month in advance of main squad of Cardinals.

Schupp has spent most of the time since the season closed in St. Louis. He likes his berth with the Cardinals and recently in a conference with President Rickey, it was decided that Schupp should start early for training quarters.

After the return of President Rickey from his "mysterious" baseball trip, he will likely tell Schupp when he wants the lefthander to start South. At Hot Springs, Schupp will merely get himself into physical condition and not attempt to throw a baseball. That will come latter when he joins his teammates at Brownsville, Tex., March 1.

With Schupp in form, Rickey will have at least three well-seasoned hurlers: Schupp, Doak and Goodwin. His big task then will be to choose a fourth regular from among Elmer Jacobs, Frank Woodward, Bill Sherdel, Jake May, Oscar Tuero and the vast flock of juveniles who will accompany the Cards into Texas.

Former Gob Gets Match.

Denny O'Keefe, former lightweight star at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, will meet Eddie Fitzsimmons of New York in a 10-round contest at Racine, Wis., Jan. 15. O'Keefe accepted the match after all the lightweights and welters in this part of the country refused to get into the ring with the New Yorker.

BOXING A MAJOR SPORT IN COLORADO SCHOOLS

DENVER, Colo., Jan. 10.—Boxing and wrestling were included in the list of major sports by action of the Faculty Athletic Council of the Rocky Mountain Intercollegiate Conference at a meeting here today.

The first boxing and wrestling meet will be held Jan. 27, probably in Denver.

M.A.A. to Release 18-Year-Old Star To Illinois A. C.

Oliver Horn, Who Swam Great Race Against Champion, Sought by Chicagoans.

Oliver Horn, St. Louis' 18-year-old swimming "hope," is to become a member of the Illinois Athletic Club's swiming squad next month, according to information received from authoritative sources, yesterday.

The local youth distinguished himself in Chicago, last Thursday, when he "placed" in two events at the Illinois A. C. invitation meet. He took second in the 10-yards backstroke event, finishing only three-fifths of a second behind Perry McGillivray, the world's champion in this event. McGillivray's time for the distance was one minute, nine seconds, exceptionally fast.

Horn took third place in the 220-yard swim, finishing about eight seconds behind the winner, who was S. Town of the Chicago A. A. Horn returned to St. Louis yesterday.

M. A. A. to Grant Release.

It is reported that the I. A. C. officials were greatly impressed with Horn's work and immediately invited him to join their squad. The I. A. C. authorities telegraphed Karl Bauer, swimming coach at the Missouri Athletic Association, inquiring if Horn would be granted his release from the local club, if he applied for it.

Bauer stated yesterday that he would in no manner stand in the way of Horn. Horn is very anxious to make the change as he will there be able to enter many meets and is certain to be sent by that club to the national championships.

The fact that he showed so well at Chicago gives Horn a good chance of making the Olympic team squad which will be selected this winter at a meet in Indianapolis.

Horn has been swimming at the M. A. A. since he was 12 years old and was at one time a member of Tom Whittaker's famous junior team. He attracted attention when, as a mere boy, he defeated all of the club's experienced swimmers in the backstroke event.

RESOLUTE AND VANITIE WILL RESUME AMERICA CUP TRIALS THIS YEAR

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—It is the intention of the New York Yacht Club to resume its elimination contests between Resolute and Vanitie, next spring, and not pick the defender of the America's Cup until after the series is ended.

When Sir Thomas Lipton's challenge was accepted late in 1913, three eligible yachts were launched and later took part in a series of races that began in early June of 1914, and continued until the end of August. Midway in the series it was discovered that Defiance was a failure and the yacht was withdrawn. It left Vanitie and Resolute to fight it out.

The series was brought to a sudden end when the world's war started in August of 1914. At that time, Resolute had a decided advantage over Vanitie. Many believed that the Gardner boat would have done decidedly better had it been as well manned as the Resolute. There was some talk of changing crews, and after tuning up, trying the yachts out under the novel conditions. This was never done. These races are going to be resumed next spring.

Final Football Score, 102—0.

LONG BEACH, Cal., Jan. 10.—The Long Beach High School football team buried Phoenix (Ariz.) High School under a 102-to-0 score in the final game of the Southern California season here today. By this victory Long Beach, already State interscholastic champion, annexed the championship of the Southwest.

HERRMANN URGED NOT TO QUIT COMMISSION

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 10.—Garry Herrmann was unmoved, today, by telegrams from minor league owners and officials urging him to reconsider his announced determination to abandon the office of chairman of the National Baseball Commission on account of the petty annoyances he has been subjected to, for several months.

A general review of the messages indicates the esteem in which he is held and a tribute to the manner in which he has conducted his office during the past 17 years.

It is declared that the chief opposition to Mr. Herrmann comes from five disgruntled National League club owners and is founded on disappointment over the decision of the commission in certain cases involving these clubs.

Giants Have 5 Catchers.

The announcement last week that the New York Giants had purchased Catcher "Hank" Gowdy from the Boston Braves means that Manager McGraw now has five first string backstops. It is obvious that he will not retain that number and the news of the release of one or two of these receivers will be awaited with interest by Cardinal Field patrons.

Among McGraw's backstops are Miguel Gonzales, the Cuban, and Frank Snyder, the Texan, both of whom were once members of the Cardinals. It is probable one or both of these players will be released by McGraw.

Billikens Fail To Name Leader for 1920 Eleven

Absence of Four "Letter" Men Compels Postponement of Election.

The annual banquet of the St. Louis University football squad at the Missouri Athletic Club last night was a disappointment in one respect. The primary purpose of the gathering—the election of a captain—was not accomplished.

This was announced as being due to the fact that four or five of the "letter" men, players qualified to cast a ballot, were not present. The election was deferred and will take place at the Administration building, St. Louis University, next Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Rademacher Will Coach.

The announcement that Charles M. Rademacher would again coach the Billiken football forces in 1920 was well received by the several hundred alumni and undergraduates who attended the dinner. The Grand avenue school followers place great confidence in the former Maroon star, because of his work in 1917 and 1919 when he turned mediocre squads into winning elevens.

Rademacher stated that he was glad to be again in charge of the Blue and White, but would request that his players report earlier in the season for practice than they did last year. This will be necessary, he explained, inasmuch as the "Bills" will have a harder schedule to face than they did in 1919.

15 "Letters" Awarded.

The players were officially awarded their emblems for services during the past season. The sweaters had been given shortly after the close of the season, but the letter certificates were announced at the dinner. Those who received them were: Captain Francis O'Donnell, William Murphy, Dewey Godfrey, William Gallagher, Russell Murphy, Harold Connor, Ernest Baker, James Finnegan, William Strubinger, Alexander Kotkis, Alvin Eggler, William Donovan, Ray Drace, Delmont McKinney, and Ed Signaigo.

Trafton Is Ineligible.

NOTRE DAME, Ind., Jan. 10.—George Trafton, center on the Notre Dame University football eleven, today was disqualified from further athletic competition under the Gold and Blue colors because he played professional football during the holiday vacation. Trafton's loss will be felt as he is a star basket ball and track performer.

The stills are on the blink.
Water, water everywhere,
But not a drop to drink!"

HARLEY, IN HOSPITAL, THINKS BASKET BALL IS WORSE THAN FOOTBALL

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 10.—"Chick" Harley, All-American football star, who is trying to win his fourth varsity letter in basket ball, says the court is terribly rough.

"Football was never like this," "Chick" declared after making the annual holiday jaunt as a member of the Ohio State squad.

So badly stove up was Harley when he returned here that he had to be put in a hospital. One of his thumbs was sprained, his left elbow and shoulder were badly bruised and he had a mass of sore places from head to foot. His arm and shoulder became infected and to prevent possible blood poisoning he was tagged for the hospital.

McKinley Quintet Springs Surprise In Opening Clash

Southside Basket Ball Team Wins From Central in First Game of the Season.

SOLDAN BEATS CLEVELAND

West Enders Overwhelm Opponents by One-Sided Score of 33 to 10.

In the opening games of the Interscholastic League basketball season last night Central High was nosed out by the McKinley High five, 14 to 11, while Soldan High swamped Cleveland, 33 to 10. The two games were played at the Cleveland High gym and were witnessed by approximately 800 persons.

The opening and feature game of the evening was that between Central and McKinley. Although Central had been expected to win, Coach Schick's quintet surprised everyone.

Early in the contest both McKinley and Central resorted to virtually a defensive game, neither five being able to score many field baskets. Wassal's free throw was the first point scored. Through the remainder of the first half Central was able to score but a single field goal and one free throw, giving the red and black lads a 4-point total. McKinley tallied two field goals and four free throws for 8 points.

In the second half the battling became closer. McKinley let loose and scored three points, but Central came right back with five on their own accord. Another basket by Central while the South Siders were registering on a free throw brought the tally at 12 to 11. McKinley came through with a field goal by Kemper, which closed the scoring and the game soon after.

Anzalone of Central and Anderwert of McKinley were the high point getters. The latter made good on six free throws, while Anzalone tallied two field goals and a free throw.

Soldan an Easy Victor.

Soldan had an easy time against the Cleveland High tossers. Opening the game Ralph Walsh of Cleveland, a guard, scored a field goal from the middle of the floor. But that was virtually all that Cleveland could show. Kling, Long and Stevenson started a stampede of their own on the basket, the former two tallying the field goals while Stevenson aided with the free throws. When the half ended Soldan was leading the Orange and Blue 15 to 5.

Cleveland did not get any chance to shine in the second half. Again Long with field goals and Stevenson with the free throws piled up a commanding total, amounting to 33 when the final whistle blew. The Carondelet quintet tallied five during the 20 minutes of play, bringing their total to 10.

Long, the 220-pound center, with eight field baskets, was the scoring leader of the game and evening.

A feature of the evening's play was the division of the 20-minute halves into quarters, each of 10 minutes, with a minute rest between the first and second, and third and fourth quarters.

The lineups follow:

Central-McKinley.

McKinley (14)*	Position.	Central (11).
illig (2)	Right forward	Anzalone (5)
raig (2) (Capt.)	Left forward	Wassall (C.)(4)
Kemper (2)	Center	Floun (0)—Kuttrer (0)

*Wassall scored two points for McKinley when the ball went into the McKinley basket while he attempted to throw it.

Soldan-Cleveland.

Soldan (33).	Position.	Cleveland (10).
Stevenson (9)	Right forward	Groerich (4)—Thym (1)
Long (16)	Center	Schlapprizzi (1)—Gammater (0)
azolo (C.) (2)	Right guard	Walsh (2)
nn (0)	Left guard	Boverle (0)—Stanwood (0)

Referees, each alternating for halves—Esher and Wirtz. Official scorer—Hebberger.

Hartley Asks to Be Traded

Grover Hartley, who managed the Columbus club of the American Association a part of last season, will not be with the club this season. Hartley wrote President Tinker that in view of the fact that "Bill" Clymer has been appointed manager for the coming season, he preferred to be traded.

Fulton Launches New Title Drive Tomorrow, Meeting Moran and His "Mary Ann"

Ferocious Fred Is Expected to Repeat His Previous Knockout, Unless Old Inconsistency Comes to Bat—His Chance at Championship Seems 18 Months Distant.

By John E. Wray.

INCONSISTENCY, which is the only rhinestone among the crown jewels of Fred Fulton, may be in the ascendant, tomorrow night at Newark, N. J., where the tall Minnesotan will oppose Frank Moran of Pittsburg in an eight-round, no-decision contest.

Inconsistency occasionally outshines all Fulton's virtues and it is in such moments that Fred is about as useful in the ring as a bathing suit in the Sahara.

Several times, just as Fulton's manager thought he had picked out a soft spot for the big boy, Old Inconsistency drew cards and Fred was knocked into the discard.

With Fred it appears to be a matter of getting by the first round. If he survives that, then the other fellow may as well stack up his whites and cash in.

Mike Collins, after the Cowler fight, was so discouraged that he almost quit Fulton, then and there.

"When Fulton is good," Mike commented, "he can lick anybody. When he's bad, I can whip him."

And Mike is so little he couldn't whip cream, if it stood on the table.

Moran Faces Fulton Again.

THUS tomorrow night Fulton is matched with a man whom he has already flattened in three rounds. They met at New Orleans while Moran was still an army boxing instructor. For two rounds Moran waded into Fulton and in the first he stirred Fred's inconsistency a bit, but Moran soon got into deep water. Weathering the storm Fulton came back and extinguished his foe—doused his glim completely. It was the most crushing defeat Moran ever suffered.

Now they are matched again. Fulton returned from Europe in wonderful condition. His photographs show that. Pictures of him, taken while in action abroad, show his herculean build and powerful muscular development at its zenith. He is fresh from easy conquests in Europe. In short, there is every reason to believe that he will flatten Moran in shorter time than it took his first attempt.

It's No Betting Proposition.

BUT don't hock the family plate on any such eventuality. For just when Fulton looks like a four-ply cinch, he runs last.

Moran is not much of a fighter. He never was. A good, game fellow, with a punch—his "Mary Ann"—that he advertises many seconds before it is delivered, he has a line of blarney that has lulled to sleep the Eastern critics, all of whom are strong for him. As a matter of fact he has been beaten oftener in bouts with good men than any heavyweight of caliber.

There is only one thing that may give Moran a lookin—it is the fact that when Fulton stopped him, Frank prepared for the contest by army boxing and training. Subsequent events have proved that boxing instructors in the United States army lost their ring efficiency for at least three months after they were discharged. Army life took something away from their ring value.

Title Bout Is Distant.

EVEN when Fulton has polished off Moran a second time his horizon still will be limited. Jack Dempsey, of course, will be tied up until his next title bout which, presumably, will not take place earlier than July 4. Then it will be at least six months more ere Dempsey again risks his title. Thus Fulton can not hope to fight for the title before a year—more likely 18 months. And Freddie is drawing near the 30-year-old mark.

However, if Fulton continues battling, gaining experience by clearing out the riffraff, eventually he will earn the coveted title bout. By that time, if he continues to box regularly, he will have lost all his nervousness and will have come into his own. For, without doubt, he is the best equipped heavyweight in the game, today.

The Impress of Wilde.

THE coming of Jimmy Wilde to St. Louis will, in the course of time, have a favorable effect. This effect should take the form of improvement in boxing style in favor of clean tactics in the ring.

Boxers present at last Thursday's Coliseum show could hardly fail to notice the difference between the Wilde-Asher bout and the Thompson-Witt contest which preceded it. Wilde and Asher fought cleanly. Neither held; neither resorted to hitting while holding; neither shirked the issue under punishment, but stood the test on the strict merit of his boxing ability. Late in the match Asher held a time or two; but that was when he was about to fall to the floor from exhaustion. The referee intervened but twice during the contest. The result was that every spectator present voted it a great battle, even though one-sided.

In strong contrast was the Witt-Thompson bout, which was hissed roundly throughout because of the butting, holding and rough-house wrestling methods employed. Witt was hissed, deservedly, when he left the ring.

This contest was not a boxing match, but a foully-fought, hugging contest. Witt deliberately butted, time after time, even after the referee's caution. If a boxing commission held sway here, Witt doubtless would be suspended and perhaps barred, for such conduct.

Observant boxers must have noted that the clean tactics of Wilde accomplished far more than the rough stuff of Witt. Instead of learning tricks and petty methods of fouling they will doubtless draw from Wilde's display, the conclusion that a clean fighter is always better equipped and more successful than a foul one.

Here's a Real Fighter.

THE American Legion, which is scorching the ears of Jack Dempsey for failure to enter war service, can have no complaint about either of the little men who fought at the Coliseum. Wilde was a Sergeant in the British army, having been accepted after repeated refusals because of his size.

Asher was in the U. S. army 18 months and not only fought 42 battle to win the A. E. F. title, but fought and bled in battles with the Hun. Only Friday a reminder of his services was received in the form of a citation from the War Department which read as follows:

Headquarters, Fifth Division, A. E. F., General Orders, No. 25.—Cited for distinguished conduct in action: Corp. John Asher, Battery D, Nineteenth Field Artillery, on the afternoon of Sept. 26, 1918, although badly wounded in the right leg, ran two kilometers through a shelled area for medical assistance and ambulances for his wounded and dying comrades. It was because of his rare presence of mind and courage that adequate facilities were brought to the scene for there was no telephone or other means of communication to their dressing station.

It was no wonder a boy with this kind of stuff in him could take the beating Wilde gave him and bob up for more, round after round.

Benny Leonard Must 'Go Some,' to Surpass Last Year's Receipts

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.

UNLESS a fortunate selection of a site for the Benny Leonard-Johnny Dundee bout should be made soon, the lightweight champion will be off to a poor start in his effort to excel his financial campaign of 1919.

Last year, according to a recent statement by Billy Gibson, manager of Leonard, boxing fans paid $482,000 to see the champion box. This sum was contributed by fans in Newark, Jersey City, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Detroit, Joplin (Mo.) and other places. The largest individual "gate" was taken in at Newark, on the occasion of the Willie Ritchie contest, $52,000.

The Leonard-Dundee 20-round championship go, originally scheduled at New Haven, but prevented by the authorities, was counted upon to give Leonard a fine start for his 1919 campaign. As yet no city has been awarded the homeless feature, although seven have bid for it.

NATIONAL COMMISSION DENIES SALARY CLAIMS

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 10.—The National Baseball Commission today disallowed the salary of Charles Pick against the Chicago National League club for $660. Pick contended that sum was due him as additional salary last season by reason of a verbal agreement with Manager Mitchell.

Player Frank Truesdale was declared a free agent, but his claim for two months' salary from the Boston Americans, was disallowed.

Pitcher Wheeler Fuller was declared to be a free agent when he negotiated his services with the Washington Americans in 1919. Secretary Farrell of the National Association claimed Fuller was the property of Waterbury and requested the commission to award him to that club.

Doubles Teams in Match.

C. Kaley and Gene Kohaus will bowl Elmer Vaughan and O. Whitehead a five-game match on alleys 15 and 16 at the Washington. The match is scheduled to start at 8 p. m.

U. S. SOCCER BODY TO HOLD DRAWINGS TODAY

Drawings for the fourth round in the United States Football Association cup tie series will be made today at a meeting to be held at the Hotel Astor, New York. The drawings will be of interest to St. Louis soccer followers in that the opponent for the Ben Millers will be picked. It is probable that the locals will be drawn against an Illinois district eleven.

Texas League Opens April 16.

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 10.—With all clubs except Beaumont represented at the annual meeting of Texas League club owners, today, consideration of tentative playing schedules for the 1920 season consumed virtually the entire session. The opening date for the league was set for April 16.

Schmidt-Stein Match Off.

The tenpin match between Jules Schmidt and Otto Stein, scheduled to be bowled this afternoon, has been postponed owing to the illness of Stein.

Brookes Analyzes Merits of Yankee Racquet Leaders

Vincent Richards Will Never Be First-Class Champion, Australian Thinks.

FAVORS NORRIS WILLIAMS

Former Champion "as Good as Any Player Living," Tennis Wizard Asserts.

A copy of the Sydney (Australia) referee of Dec. 3, just at hand, contains an interview with Norman Brookes, one of the greatest strategists and tacticians the game of tennis ever knew, in which he analyzes the merits of leading American players with surprising frankness.

Always a keen student of the game and a member of the Davis Cup team which snatched victory from the best American combination assembled in years, in 1914, a participant in last year's American championships, and esteemed the very dean of the game, his opinions will hold a strong interest for Americans. The most important features of his article, as it appeared in the Referee, are reproduced below:

Johnston's Play Praised.

"W. M. Johnston is very much like W. A. Larned in all his strokes and methods. He is sound in every part of the game, and has a beautiful forehand drive. Tilden has a greater variety of strokes, but suffers from a lack of temperament. He gets excited during the play, like some of the Continental players. I consider Williams as good as any player living. He plays perfect strokes on both back and forehand. He was still, I consider, suffering from the effects of the war. I think in a little while he will get back into his best form, and will then, probably next year, be hard to stop. Johnston is playing as well as he was before the war. It doesn't seem to have left any effect on him.

"The Japanese champion, Kumagae, is one of the first five men in America. He is almost wholly a backline player, but is learning the volley and picking it up well. He is quite a decent volleyer already.

Richards Not of Title Timber.

"I don't think Vincent Richards, who was, with Tilden, doubles champion till Patterson and I beat them, will develop into a first-class champion. Of course, he is very young and one can't be sure. He has command of all the strokes, studies the game with Tilden, and is developing more strokes; but he may spoil his game with too many strokes. The cut is a danger to a young player.

"McLoughlin may come right back into his best game. For the time being he has lost control of his service; but it is purely a matter of nerve. I think he will get it back again. I told him I could get him back into his old service in about a week of steady practice. There was nothing wrong with the game he played against us at San Francisco. He relies now on a twist service, and gets none of the wonderful pace of old.

"Patterson and I were not playing well that day we played Tilden and Johnston. A bit wearied with too much play. They were not then a well-molded pair, but with practice together they should make the best pair in America. I think Garland is one of the best ground-stroke players in the world. He places perfectly.

Doubles Play Criticised.

"The doubles formation of the Americans is not so good in effect as outs. The striker-out's partner stands back while the service is being received. I think the system of taking the service on the rise gives the man at the net a good opportunity of getting a good interception in. The server cannot get sufficiently far in to take the return before the ball drops, and striker-out's partner can, if he is standing in, chip in on the slightest weakness in the volley of the server. The art in the return of the service is to make the server volley upwards. If one can take the service on the rise one's partner should stand close in; but otherwise I do not favor his doing so.

English Players Slipping.

"The English players will not improve to any appreciable extent till they get the game into the schools. I offered a cup to be competed for by schoolboys at Wimbledon, but as they did not seem to wish it, I withdrew the offer. The opponents of lawn tennis are the masters of the big schools, who still think that lawn tennis is merely a game for girls and unathletic curates—garden party stuff, they think.

"I would go over next year to America with Gerald Patterson with pleasure to defend our title to the doubles championship; but have no desire to go to Wimbledon. It will be quite interesting to have another try at the best Americans."

STARTERS EASILY BEAT IGNITIONS 6-0 IN ONLY MUNICIPAL SOCCER GAME

The only game played in the Saturday Division of the Municipal Soccer League, yesterday, saw the Starters overwhelm the Ignitions, 6—0. Guinee and O'Shea were the leading goal scorers, with two each, Bischoff and Donahue booting the other two.

The Eden team failed to appear for its scheduled contest with the Keen Kutters and forfeited.

The Assembly team also won from the Motors on a forfeit. Only five of the last named eleven appeared on the field.

Lineup of the Starters—Ignitions contest:

Starters.	POSITION.	Ignitions.
Hays	Goal	Meyer
O'Neil	Fullback	Abinger
Bates	Fullback	Sonderman
Bischoff	Halfback	Adelsberg
Slattery	Halfback	Egan
Meyers	Halfback	O'Connel
Guinee	Forward	Hart
Berzen	Forward	Pylansky
Bollam	Forward	McGlaughlin
O'Shea	Forward	O'Shea
Donahue	Forward	Vishanion

Goals—Bischoff 1, Donahue 1, Guinee 2, O'Shea 2. Time of halves—30m. Referee—Asinger.

At Lake Koshkonong

Ira Bingham, 81 Years Old, Tells of Shooting Ducks in Wisconsin—Sold 2300 Birds in Two Months in 1858.

By William C. Hazelton.

There's a charm at the Old Point Blind
When the winds go whistling by;
There's a kiss in the autumn wind
For my good old Pards and I.

There's a line on your nose—never mind,
'Tis neither corn nor rye;
'Tis the seal of the Old Point Blind,
For my good old Pards and I.

There's sport of the old-fashioned kind
When the birds go sailing by:
That's the charm of the Old Point Blind
For my good old Pards and I.
—H. L. Skavlem.

Koshkonong! World famous lake! Celebrated even in a State where there are many beautiful lakes, great and small. Truly the greatest lake for waterfowl in all Wisconsin, and possessing wondrous natural beauty, admired not only by the hunter, but by all who carry the love of nature in their hearts. No one can view its waters without being thrilled.

What glorious flights of noble white-backed canvasbacks have swept down from the far north on their migrations to find here a haven of rest and food. Redheads, too, and all the countless hosts of migratory waterfowl knew it from a time before a white man ever gazed upon its waters.

The Indians made annual pilgrimages to hunt and fish here, and the squaws gathered wild rice, a valuable article of food with them, and cultivated fields of Indian corn on its shores.

Old Indian Village There.

The name Koshkonong is Winnebago, and means "lake we live on." Historical as well as archaeological evidence proves Koshkonong to have been a favorite home of the aborigines. In 1828 an Indian village of 1200 souls was yet upon its banks. They were Pottawatamies, and the ruling chief was White Crow. They were living in lodges covered with white cedar bark, not wigwams, but huts. Black Hawk passed near Koshkonong several times on his raids, and was finally defeated by U. S. troops on the Mississippi River above Rock Island.

Koshkonong is nine miles long and three miles wide. Innumerable bays stud its shore, and the shore line is from 22 to 24 miles. The bed is an expanse of Rock River, with broad shallow bays which are bordered with considerable areas of swamp land. The surrounding higher lands consist of gently rolling, but irregular moranic knolls, which in places approach the lake shore without a bordering strip of marsh land. The lake lies in Jefferson, Dane and Rock Counties, Wis. The depth of the water is from four to nine feet. It is a large open lake with no islands. The diving ducks can feed anywhere out in the lake, safe from molestation, as it is illegal to shoot in open waters in Wisconsin. Birds will not remain long where shot at on the open water. This results in thousands of ducks arriving early in the season, later being joined by others, until vast numbers are located permanently over the large celery beds. There they remain until driven away by ice closing the lake. The mallards and shoal water ducks bed in the open lake, visiting the adjoining marshes to feed at night.

When Dr. Lapham visited the lake in 1850 he wrote: "The water is from 4 to 12 feet deep. At the time of our visit in July, wild rice was growing abundantly over almost its entire surface, giving it more the appearance of a meadow than a lake." Today the wild rice is confined to the shallowest parts of the bays.

Edgerton Four Miles Away.

The nearest town of size to Koshkonong is Edgerton, four miles from the lake. The village of Newville is located on Rock River, some little distance down from where it leaves the lake. Rock River is one of the most picturesque streams in the United States.

Many fine bags of ducks have been made at Koshkonong. C. L. Valentine, the veteran Janesville sportsman, told me: "On the day years ago when the steamer Chicora was lost mysteriously in a storm on Lake Michigan, never to be heard from again, I made a bag of 78 redheads at Lake Koshkonong, shooting from a point and with no decoys. That will give you an idea of the number of birds there in the old days."

Ira Bingham is the oldest and most noted hunter of the Koshkonong region. He is a small, wiry man of great vitality. Many of his contemporaries have passed on long since. When you look at him you know he is a marksman and man of determination. He attended many large live bird tournaments in the old days, but does not care for target shooting. Ezra, better known as Ed, is a younger brother of Ira. He is well known as a hunter and crack shot. The Bingham farm of several hundred acres is located on Bingham's Point, which juts out into Lake Koshkonong. It is a valuable and up-to-date farm with plenty of stock thereon. There is an extensixe marsh on one side. Gov. Philipp, the present Governor of Wisconsin, has a fine cottage on Bingham Point. The following was told me by Ira Bingham while I was there on a hunt last fall:

Ira Bingham's Story.

"I am 81 years old. I came here in 1846. In 1858 I began to shoot for the market. I sold 2300 ducks to one man in Janesville from Sept. 15 to Nov. 1 of that year. I used a muzzle loading gun at that time. In 1872 I furnished the Sherman House, Chicago, with several hundred canvasbacks at 50 cents each. I also sold many thousand birds to the Hyatt House, Chicago, then one of the leading hostelries.

"I was the first man to use a scull on Lake Koshkonong. I was also the first man to vote against the use of a scull when a bill came up to prohibit its use, as I saw it was ruining the shooting.

"Following the Civil War, Phil Sheridan came here often for the shooting. I have sculled him many times up to flocks of canvasbacks, also shot from the blind with him. He was not a very good marksman.

"In the early days we did not know the birds we killed at Koshkonong were true canvasbacks, and we called them little and big redheads. Later we discovered the difference. Eastern hunters had told us that there were no canvasbacks in the West.

The Old Timer's Story.

"During my long career as a hunter I have had some amusing experiences with those who came to shoot at Koshkonong.

"Years ago two leading lights of the legal fraternity, both afterwards prominent on the bench, came annually here as companions for a duck hunt.

"As neither was an expert marksman, they usually hunted, each with a guide. On one occasion it fell to me to take Judge Conger out for a shoot.

"About two miles down the lake thousands of mallards were feeding in the marsh. We rowed down against a strong wind, and getting back in the flags on the marsh out of the wind somewhat, set out our decoys in a little opening.

"We had routed out many big flocks on our arrival, which left for the open water of the lake. As it was very rough on the lake, I knew they would soon return to more sheltered spots.

"This was in the days of the old muzzle loader and ammunition was not always plentiful. We only had about two pounds of shot between us, and it would not take my companion long to shoot away at least half of it, with prospects of small return, as I well knew from observing his marksmanship on previous occasions. I wanted to see him get some birds and had a plan in mind.

"So I said, 'Conger, you lie down in one end of the boat where you will be more comfortable, and let me do the shooting.' He was agreeable. Soon a big flock of mallards swung in against the wind over the decoys. I killed two with the first barrel and one with the second.

"I made every shot count and at the end of an hour we had 25 or 30 fine mallards. We pulled up our decoys. I tied the ducks into two equal bunches. We hoisted a little sail I had in the boat and steered for Bingham's Point.

"With the gale blowing it did not take long to reach there. Judge Williams was at the landing to meet us and opened his eyes when he saw the two bunches of ducks we had. I pulled the boat up and laid the two heavy bunches of mallards on the shore.

"'Conger, how many of those ducks did you kill?' asked Judge Williams. 'I killed my share,' replied Judge Conger.

"'Honest, now, Conger, how many of them did you kill?' persisted Judge Williams.

"'I tell you I killed my share,' stoutly asserted Judge Conger, and that is all he would say.

"Judge Williams' suspicions had a good foundation, for Judge Conger had not killed a single bird. Had he admitted it, however, he would never have heard the last of it. I remained silent."

Clarence Rowland, president-manager of the Milwaukee club of the American Association, has taken a one-half interest in the Peoria Three-I club, according to announcement made recently.

Earl Caddock to Give Joe Stecher a Chance To Win Back Mat Title

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.

JACK CURLEY, promoter of championship wrestling matches, is authority for the statement issued yesterday that the United States heavyweight wrestling champion, Earl Caddock, had consented to give Joe Stecher a match for the championship.

Curley said that if Caddock's dates could be arranged, the event would take place late in January or early in February. The signed articles leave the date blank.

It was from Stecher that Caddock won the title three or four years ago. Stecher, then champion, had just been married. He was induced to take on Caddock. Each man had gained a fall but Stecher had to withdraw, after the second session, being unable to continue.

Many persons believed Stecher was taken at a disadvantage, at the time, and their demands since Caddock came out of the army have led to the rematching of the rivals.

Barnes to Report March 1; Will Go Abroad Next May

St. Louis Golf Professional to Take Part in British Open Championship.

President Jess Carleton of Sunset Hill Country Club, stated last night that golf professional Jim Barnes, after reaching an agreement with the Sunset Hill Country Club officials, relative to his services with the local organization next year, had announced his intention to depart immediately for Texarkana, after which he intended to winter in Florida, as formerly. Barnes annually takes part in all the open and professional events scheduled at southern resort links, where he has been an important factor in winning titles and purses.

President Carleton said it had been arranged for Barnes to report at Sunset Hill Club March 1 and would continue his work there until May. He will then be given leave of absence to go to England, where he expects to compete in the British National open championship against the pick of Great Britain's professionals, as well as against other American notables including Walter Hagen, Bob McDonald, Jock Hutchinson and Gil Nichols.

Barnes has been at his best for two years. He was easily the leading golfer of this country last year. Walter Hagen, his chief rival for honors in 1918 and winner of the national open, will be one of his American rivals in the foreign competition.

KENRICK HIGH DEFEATS TROY (MO.) FIVE 39-10

GRAIN MAN BUYS BIG VACANT SITE ON LINDELL BLVD.

William T. Hill Said to Plan Improvement Corner With Structure for Revenue Purposes.

MANY LARGE DEALS REPORTED PENDING

Frisco and M. K. & T. Railways Lease Space in Pontiac Building for Overflow Departments.

By Berry Moore.

According to realty circles, many deals are pending in which are involved control of attractive holdings in all parts of the city, notably in the downtown and uptown sections, and in the West End.

William T. Hill, grain operator, yesterday purchased, through the Fletcher R. Harris Realty Co., in conjunction with Sam Harrisburg Jr. of the Rosenbaum-Hauschulte Real Estate Co., the northeast corner of Lindell boulevard and Vandeventer avenue, formerly owned by Virginia A. Goddard. The price paid was not announced. Sam Hamburg Jr., of the Rosenbaum-Hauschulte Real Estate Co., represented Hill in the transaction.

The site, which is just west of Moolah Temple, is to be improved by the purchaser with a handsome building for revenue purposes, the character of which has not been disclosed. There are 150 feet on Lindell boulevard and 150 feet on Vandeventer avenue. The ground is vacant.

Hill came into view as a large purchaser of St. Louis realty several years ago, following his first big coup in the grain market, when he bought property on the south side of Olive street, between Sixth and Seventh streets. He recently scored again on a large scale in the grain trade.

Business District Space Demand.

The demand for space in the central business district is exemplified in the acquisition of quarters in the large office buildings, vacancies in which are isolated and of only temporary duration. With few exceptions, rentals in downtown office buildings are at a higher level than for a number of years.

The Frisco Railroad Co. has leased the ninth floor, and the M. K. & T. the eleventh and twelfth floors of the Pontiac Building, at the northwest corner of Seventh and Market streets. The Frisco will use this space for its valuation department. It is removing its general offices from the Railway Exchange Building to the Frisco Building, at the southwest corner of Ninth and Olive streets, its quarters in the latter building, however, not being large enough to provide for the valuation department. The space in the Pontiac Building, acquired by the M. K. & T. will be occupied by the overflow from its offices in the Railway Exchange Building.

The twelfth floor and part of the sixteenth floor of the Railway Exchange Building, to be vacated by the Frisco, has been leased, according to Claud B. Ricketts, the manager. The identity of the lessee, which is a large corporation, has not been disclosed. The Railway Exchange Building is said to be overflowing with tenants and has a waiting list of 200 or more.

Will Remain an Office Building.

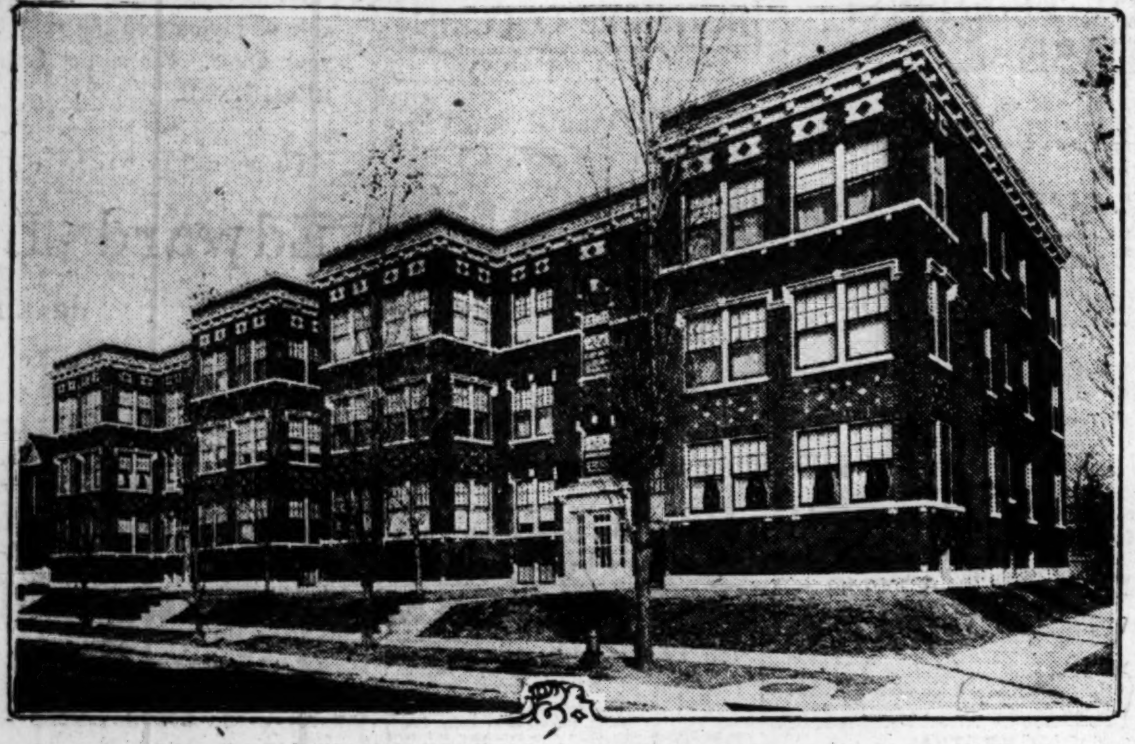
There have been many offers involving the conversion of the Pontiac Building into a hotel, but the owners have elected to retain it as an office building. The late Louis A. Cella sought it as an annex for the American Hotel, occupying the northeast corner of Seventh and Market streets.

The building was promoted by the late John P. Herrmann, primarily for the general offices of the Missouri Pacific Railway Co., which occupied it for many years, but which have been removed to the Railway Exchange Building.

The first seven floors and basement of the Railway Exchange Building are occupied by the Famous and Barr store, which has its own elevator service.

The Seventeenth Street Realty Co., of which Isaac H. Lionberger is president, has extended the option for a 99-year lease of the vacant block bounded by Pine, Chestnut, Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets, recently obtained by Mark Ewing and W. B. Brennan and others, who have plans for construction on the site of a huge garage. The option runs until April, before which time construction of the building is expected to be commenced. It is understood that Ewing and Brennan have interested North St. Louis capital in the project. The block is owned in fee by the Seventeenth Street Realty Co.

One of Twin Apartment Buildings Sold to Realty Company.



THE Trunk Realty Co., an operating corporation, has purchased the six-family apartment building at 5855 Washington boulevard, being the northwest corner of Laurel avenue.

Each apartment has five rooms, exclusive of sun parlor and sleeping porch. There are tile baths and hardwood floors. The construction is of the highest type.

This is one of twin buildings as shown in the accompanying cut. The sale was effected by J. I. Epstein.

M'NAIR BAKEWELL TO HANDLE RESIDENCE SALES FOR BROTHER

McNair Bakewell, recently returned from France, has associated himself with his brother, Edward L. Bakewell, in the real estate business, and has been placed in charge of residence sales in which capacity transaction totaling $45,000 have been closed, including 3005 Hawthorne boulevard, for Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bluthardt for reported consideration of $17,500; 4612 McMillan avenue for E. H. Cowdry; residence of D. J. Collins to Ernest Helfensteller; 4388 Maryland avenue for Laura B. Lee to Mrs. Hurvey, and residence on Vernon avenue.

VINITA PARK IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION ELECTS OFFICERS

The Vinita Park Improvement Association has elected the following officers for 1920: Judge Charles Erd, president; F. J. Gould, vice president; Charles W. Ermes, secretary; John C. Starke, treasurer.

Plans are being made for a new school in this district, also street extensions and betterments. This association was the principal factor in the building of Springs avenue road, known as an extension of the North and South road, and which connects the Olive street road with the St. Charles road.

MOTOR COMPANY LEASES NEW BUILDING ON LOCUST STREET

LeGrand Jones, for the Paul Jones Realty Co, reports having closed a lease for a two-story fireproof building to be erected on the southwest corner of Locust street and Garrison avenue, lot 100x134.8 feet, for A. J. Hutcheson, to the Southwest Nash Motor Co. Construction has been started. The lessee was represented by S. W. Ramsey, who is in charge of the St. Louis branch of the company.

3-FAMILY APARTMENT BUILDING ON M'PHERSON SOLD FOR $20,000

Edward L. Bakewell reports having sold the Fulton Apartment building, 5753 McPherson avenue, for G. Stephen Hurst to Mrs. Irene P. Lightner for a reported price of $20,000. This is a three-family building, each suite consisting of six rooms, sun parlor and sleeping porch.

TWO SIX-FAMILY APARTMENTS SOLD BY BOTTORFF FOR $45,000

The Bottorff Realty Co. announces that it sold the Sun-Kist Apartments, a six-family building, each suite having five rooms, sun parlor and sleeping porch; on lot 55x130 feet, renting for $3600 per year, for the Scarritt estate, to Celeste W. Hopkins, for $25,000.

Also, through M. Curry Giles, the six-family apartment at 6045-47 Kingsbury boulevard, lot 60x135 feet, and bringing in an annual rental of $3300, for D. E. Keefe of East St. Louis, for $20,000.

Industrial Concern Buys Building.

The Steelcote Manufacturing Co., manufacturers of paints and roofing cement, has purchased a four-story building, 40x128 feet on the northeast corner of Main street and Lucas avenue, from C. M. Cherry. This is the third building it has occupied since organization, July 1, 1915. New machinery has been purchased.

Ames Place Residence Sold.

W. H. Elbring has bought, through J. I. Epstein, 6833 Pershing avenue, an eight-room colonial residence, being one of the 11 residences being built in Ames place by the E. L. Wagner Construction Co., for whom J. I. Epstein is agent, and of which six have been sold.

GREULICH REALTY CO.

The John C. Greulich Realty and Investment Co. report having sold two lots on the corner of Palm street and Florissant avenue for the Stifel Estate Co. to Henry Friedmeyer.

UNUSUAL CHANCE FOR RETAILERS, SAYS FERRIS

St. Louisan, in Real Estate Journal Article, Points Out Value of Home-Owning Crusade.

Wheaton C. Ferris, president of the Olive Street Terrace Realty Co., has in the current issue of the National Real Estate Journal the following article, entitled "A Magnificent Opportunity:"

"Once let the realtors of the United States realize the magnificent opportunities for public service in the 'own your own home' movement; once let them get their organized abilities on the job, and this one thing alone will be worth all the war cost us in money.

"Increasing the number of home owners in the United States is the surest and quickest cure for that unrest which may be the forerunner of bolshevism.

"We hear a great deal about the wonderful opportunities opened up by the war for business generally, but in my opinion the present situation offers the one golden opportunity of history for the realtor. For the first time the national demand for his stock in trade is greater than the national supply.

Bargains in Homes.

"The average workman can buy a home today for about half its actual value, because real estate has not yet felt to any great extent the result of the cheapened dollar. For example, a certain house could have been bought six years ago for $5000. The same house can be bought today for $5000. Six years ago that home would have cost the workman 2500 days' labor. Today he can buy it for 1250 days' labor, because his wages have been doubled, and the price of real estate has not yet been marked up. Six years ago that piece of real estate was worth 5000 bushels of wheat. Today it can be bought for 2500 bushels of wheat.

"So the man who buys a building lot on which to erect a home at the present time gets his land for about half what it is worth. The cost of building, of course, is higher, but there seems no good reason for believing that it will be any cheaper for many years to come.

"The fact is often overlooked that about 80 per cent of the cost of building is labor. The actual raw material in lumber brick, etc., amounts to very little. It is the labor consumed in producing the brick and the lumber which constitutes most of the cost. Since it is not probable that wages are going to be materially lower during the next several years, it follows that there can be no reduction of any consequence in the cost of building.

Calder Bill Approved.

"The Calder bill (Senate Bill No. 2492), entitled, 'A bill to encourage Home ownership and to stimulate the buying and building of homes,' has been indorsed by the National Association of Real Estate Boards. The purpose of this bill is to help the average workman finance his home just as the Farm Loan Bank, now in operation, assists the farmer in financing his farm.

"The latest census shows that there are 12,000,000 people engaged in agriculture and 26,000,000 people engaged in other gainful occupations. It is seen from these figures that the Calder plan will serve twice as many people as the Farm Loan Bank. It is to be hoped that the realtors will familiarze themselves with the Calder bill and strive to secure its passage."

CENTURY ELECTRIC BUYS HALF BLOCK OPPOSITE PLANT

Will Erect Addition on South Side of Pine Street, Between 18th and 19th Streets.

TUNNEL PLANNED BETWEEN BUILDINGS

Property at 21st and Poplar Streets Also Purchased for Use as Receiving Depot and Warehouse.

As a site for a six-story fire-proof building with deep basement, the Century Electric Co. has acquired the entire half block on the south side of Pine street, between Eighteenth and Nineteenth streets, having a depth extending to the east-west alley which forms its south line. The cost of the contemplated improvements will range between $500,000 and $600,000 according to Senter M. Jones, vice president of the company.

The building will form an addition to the company's present plant, comprising six and eight story buildings, and occupying approximately a half block at the northeast corner of Nineteenth and Pine streets, with buildings on both Pine and Olive streets. Contracts have been let for wrecking the present buildings on the recently acquired site, except the substantial four-story buildings on the two corners.

Plans include the construction of a 10-foot tunnel under Pine street to connect the buildings on the two sides of the street.

The growth of the Century Electric Co. is shown by its recent purchases and improvement plans. The company now has a working organization of more than 1000, which will be increased with the completion of the addition.

Plans for New Building.

The new building will have a frontage on Pine street of 180 feet by a depth of 106 feet extending to the alley on the south. It will comprise 125,000 square feet. The construction will be of reinforced concrete flat-slab design. The exterior will be faced with red brick and stone trimming and will be topped off with a graceful overhanging copper cornice. All openings will be equipped with steel sash and will give the maximum of daylight. Along the alley there will be an unloading platform extending the entire length of the building and covered with a glass canopy and inclosed with motor-driven steel rolling shutters, thus permitting them to be entirely inclosed during cold or inclement weather. On this platform will be installed a traveling crane for the handling of freight.

The heating and ventilating systems have been given special attention and worked out along scientific engineering lines. Elevator and plumbing equipment have also been given especial consideration. The floors throughout are to be paved with wood blocks.

Site for Receiving Depot.

The structural contract has been awarded to Stone & Webster, and the plans have been prepared by L. Baylor Pendleton, architect, under whose supervision the building will be erected. Work on the wrecking has already started and the building will be completed and ready for occupancy by the middle of the summer.

The Century Electric Co. has also purchased 70x157½ feet, at the northeast coner of Twenty-first and Poplar streets, to be used as a receiving depot and warehouse. This property is served by the Terminal Railway.

WEISELS-GERHART.

The Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. reports sales as follows:

6039-41 McPherson avenue, two-family apartment; lot 35x130 feet; for Mrs. Lura D. Hasgall to Mrs. Edward S. Murdock.

3872-76 Washington boulevard, nine-room dwelling; lot 100x233 feet; for E. Mason Roberts to George Trauth.

Ten-room residence, lot 50x110 feet, for Stern Real Estate Co. to the Lester Realty Co., represented by Martin-Breitt Real Estate Co.

SHUCHART REALTY CO.

The Shuchart Realty Co. reports the following sales:

3223 Dodier street, single flat, for Caroline Selzer to a client of the North St. Louis Savings Trust Co.

6023-25 Horton place, double flat, to Harris Shapiro.

5632 Etzel avenue, single flat, to Charles Siegel for a client of Peuser Realty Co.

5030 Cates avenue, single flat, to Samuel Snitzer, for a client of the Hemmelmann-Spackler Real Estate Co.

5032 Cates avenue, single flat, to a client for a client of the Hemmelmann-Spackler Real Estate Co.

4557-59 Lucky street, double flat, for a client of H. W. Herweck to Lila Drumm.

1402-04 Granville place, double flat, to H. Komm, for a client of the Glick & Jones Real Estate Co.

4915 Terry avenue, single flat, to Clara Dodson for a client of Leo Bloch.

Also negotiated loans in the sum of $45,000.

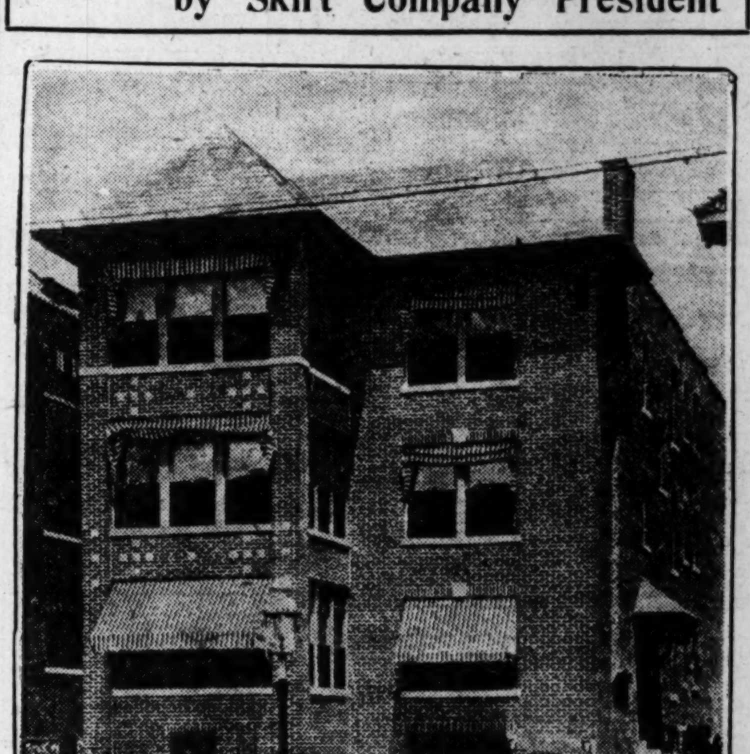
THOMAS F. PECHAN.

Thomas F. Pechan reports these sales:

Flat at 2636 Allen avenue for Sophie Roeth to a client.

Eleven-room residence, 1820 Kennett place, for a client to a client.

Waterman Ave. Apartment Bought by Skirt Company President



THE Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. announces the sale of the Brent Apartment at 5657 Waterman avenue to Edward H. Hirshfield, president of the Edward Hirshfield Skirt Co.

The Brent is an attractive three-family building with side entrance and auto driveway. Each apartment has seven rooms, sun parlor, two baths, French doors and garages. The lot is 40x200 feet. The Weisels-Gerhart company will continue the management of the building.

708 PER CENT. GAIN IN BUILDING FOR MONTH

November, 1919, Contrasted With Like Month of 1918 in Statistics From 212 Cities.

A gain of 708 per cent is shown in the amount of construction for which permits were granted during November, 1919, compared with November, 1918, according to reports received by Building Age from the building departments of 212 cities. Only eight cities reported decreases. Figures are $153,774,287 for November, 1919, and $19,020,723 for November, 1918. Government restrictions were still in force during this period last year, not having been lifted until Nov. 21.

The total number of permits granted in the 212 cities last November was 32,644, an average value of $4741. The number of permits granted during November, 1918, was 13,730, the average value being $1385. The percentage of increase in permits is 138.

Eastern cities show a gain of 782 per cent, 78 out 81 reporting gains. Cities in the middle states show 634 per cent gain, 57 out of 59 reporting gains. Southern cities show 302 per cent gain, 43 out of 45 reporting gains. Western cities show 543 per cent gain, 26 out of 27 reporting gains.

Material's prices have risen considerably. The lumber market shows increases almost daily, $5 to $15 increases being not uncommon. This condition is due to big demand for buildings of all kinds, combined with a shortage of materials. Every indication points towards higher prices during 1920.

FIVE-SIXTHS OF HOMESITES LOTS SOLD FOR HOME PURPOSES

More than 500 of the 600 lots comprising Homesites, at the northwest corner of Natural Bridge road and Goodfellow avenue, have been sold, according to Wheaton C. Ferris, president of the Olive Street Terrace Realty Co., owner of the subdivision.

The lots have been purchased for home sites by business men who will erect houses, forseeing the demand for homes in that district, wherein there are now being constructed a host of large industrial plants. The purchases have been made primarily for profit, which will be made with the sale of the homes to workers in the district. Not a few purchases have been made on a speculative basis.

The absorption of this tract, which was placed on the market only recently, has broken all records.

Spruce Street Property at Auction.

William F. Bohn, as special commissioner under order of the Circuit Court will at noon Jan. 21 at the Real Estate Exchange sell at auction to the highest bidder three parcels of unimproved property on Spruce street, west of Twelfth street. A. R. Schollmeyer will be auctioneer.

2001-05 South Second street to George J. Fritz Foundry Co. for August F. Praate.

912 La Salle street to Thomas J. Fisele, owner being Albert Lip.

LUMBER EXCHANGE 'AD' PRAISED BY READERS

Prominence Given City's Interests as a Whole Termed an Instance of High-Grade Publicity.

The full-page advertisement of the St. Louis Lumber Trade Exchange in Tuesday's Post-Dispatch, has caused much favorable comment from readers who consider it an instance of high-grade publicity. St. Louis and its interests as a whole were put first and the lumber interest last, in the advertisement, but this did not lessen the effectiveness of the statement, coming at the end, regarding the city's position as the nation's principal lumber market.

The needs of St. Louis business in 1920, considered in a spirit of optimism, furnished the theme of the advertisement.

"When the war ended," the advertisement read, "we had no industrial reconstruction to worry about. We simply turned our co-operative energy into industrial creation. We have broken ground for a new city of huge industries. We have forgotten what a 'for rent' sign looks like, and have organized for building on a mammoth scale. Nineteen-twenty calls for higher speed, and that means a greater need for smooth bearings."

OWNER OF 4 DOWNTOWN HOTELS BUYS FIFTH ONE IN WEST END

The Linmar Hotel, at the southeast corner of Vandeventer avenue and Washington boulevard, has been purchased by David D. Israel, owner and manager of four downtown hotels. The purchase price for the property, which includes a building on the east side used by an antique furniture firm, was about $100,000.

The hotel is a three-story brick structure having 63 rooms on its upper floors and eight stores on the ground floor. The lot is 116 feet on Washington boulevard and 140 feet on Vandeventer avenue. It was bought from Joseph E. Ryan. Joseph Wald conducts the hotel on a lease which has two years to run at $350 a month.

CITY REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

FORESIGHT

Foresight can be converted into hard cash. Have you foresight? Can you vision what will happen in Saint Louis' new Industrial District when a City, almost as large as East St. Louis, springs up in a few months—when 50,000 to 75,000 people want homes in walking distance of their work and find that there are only a few desirable building sites which can be bought at any price? Have you the foresight to realize that the value of real estate will increase by leaps and bounds in this section?

HOMESITES

is right in the heart of this district. You can buy lots, today, at low prices on convenient terms and be sure of a quick profit as prices rapidly advance. Five hundred lots have been bought by shrewd investors in the past month—only a few more are left. Come out Sunday. Take Union Avenue car. See our representative, corner of Goodfellow avenue and Natural Bridge road.

Consider Grand av. as the logical place for improvements.
THAT WILL PAY ON THE MONEY INVESTED
The Northwest Corner, Botanical and Grand Avenue.

This district is a most attractive one from a residence point of view. Stores on the Grand avenue frontage would appeal to high-class merchants.

The location is excellent for an apartment, hotel, bank, lodge building, theater, church, school, etc., as it extends 231 ft. on Grand avenue, 200 ft. on Botanical, has FOUR ENTRANCES, a wide city alley from north to south, a private alley from Shenandoah street to the property at 2313 South Grand avenue. There are three lines of cars—Grand, Compton and Fourth Street; it is only one block from Tower Grove Park and four blocks from Reservoir Park.

Any reasonable improvement scheme backed by substantial men can be financed on a long-term loan that will amortize itself in 20 years.

FREE book of Florida Facts. Own your own orange grove in beautiful Fruitland Park. A few cents a day you now waste will buy it for you. A few dollars a month may provide you with a life income. Schnitzler sold his 20-acre grove here for $40,000—$2000 an acre. He saw the same opportunity that's offered you and planted a grove. Result—he reaped a small fortune. You have the same chance but you must act now. Write today for Free Book of Actual Photographs, Florida Facts and the interesting story of a Fruitland Park Farm. Learn of crops that help you buy it. Address today, Lake County Land Owners' Association, 62 Sunset Way, Fruitland Park, Fla. (c99)

IS THIS YOUR IDEA OF FLORIDA? A little piece of land near the water; a boat, a garden, some strawberry plants, and perhaps a few chickens; a vine-covered cottage among your own orange and grape fruit trees; fish and oysters in abundance; plenty of quail and game—a simple, natural, wholesome life in the open the year round—Home, Health and Contentment. All this is within your reach at modest outlay in this beautiful land of sunshine and roses. We are on the Gulf and a navigable river, also on the Dixie Highway, and we are only two hours by auto jitney from Tampa and St. Petersburg, and only eight miles from Tarpon Springs. Here we have the freedom, comfort and economy of country life, yet are within easy access of the big cities and resort centers. Our community is new and prices have not gone sky-high; living expenses are moderate. Over 100 Northern families already here. They like it—perhaps you will. May we send complete information? Board of Trade, Box 131, New Port Richey, Fla. (c99)

SMALL RECEIPTS BIG FACTOR IN CORN PIT

Higher Prices Are Scored for Week's Trading on the Merchants' Exchange.

Advances in the price of corn here last week in the early trading sprung largely from unlooked-for halting of supplies from farms. Compared with a week ago, the market Friday was up 2⅛c to 5⅛c. Yesterday, however, most of the advance was lost.

Although belief had been general among corn traders that the long expected increase of the crop movement was just at hand, the prospect soon disappeared. Opinion of a majority of dealers underwent a complete change when, apparently owing to inadequacy of railroad service, one day's receipts here totaled only a few cars, whereas 10 times the amount would have been nearer the usual midwinter average.

A big export grain business, especially in oats and rye, notwithstanding the low rate of foreign exchange, tended further to strengthen the corn market. The upward swing of prices, however, received a considerable check from statements by Herbert Hoover that European financial needs could be met by ordinary commercial credits. Similar influence, too, was exerted by announcement that Federal Reserve authorities were against long-time loans to Europe.

Regardless of heavy profit-taking, oats touched the highest price yet this season, then reacted sharply yesterday, owing to weakness in corn and lower cash markets.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

Cash corn was 2c to 3c lower yesterday and in limited demand.

Cash oats were ½c to 1c lower and slow sale.

No. 2 red winter wheat, $2.83@2.84; No. 4 corn, $1.46; No. 5, $1.44; No. 1 yellow, old, $1.61; No. 3 yellow, $1.52@1.52½; No. 4 yellow, $1.48@1.49; No. 5 yellow, $1.45@1.46; No. 3 white, $1.51@1.52; No. 4 white, $1.49; No. 1 white oats, 88½c¼ No. 2 white, 88½@89c; standard, 88½@89c.

RAISE IN DISCOUNT RATES CAUSES SELLING OF CORN

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Tightening of Federal Reserve discount rates tended to put bulls at a disadvantage today in the corn market. Closing prices, although firm, were at ¾c to 2@2¼c net decline. Oats lost ⅝c to 1¼c and provisions 30c to 57c.

Opinions that January was not a favorable time for efforts to hoist quotations on corn received wider notice today, in view of the increased difficulty of financing loans at the banks here. Uncertainties of freight transportation did a good deal likewise to discourage holders and to provoke aggressiveness on the part of bears, who made much also of reports that the German Government had been overthrown. Active trading resulted, but declines continued until news came that Congress might grant $150,000,000 credit to Austria, Armenia and Poland to buy food. A moderate rally, due chiefly to the prospect of such a credit was in progress as the session came to an end.

Oats paralleled the changes in the value of corn. Owing to Eastern demand, July delivery was firmer than May.

Reports of British offers to re-sell lard to packers had a weakening influence on provisions, but subsequently were offset in part by chances that Congress would authorize a food credit.

RUMORS OF CONDITIONS IN GERMANY AFFECT COTTON

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Rumors of unsettling developments in Germany were followed by a very sharp break in the cotton market late this morning. Previously prices had shown considerable firmness with March selling up to 36.97 during the early trading or 22 points net higher, but that position broke to 36.05 and closed at 36.07 with the general list closing easy at a net decline of 43 to 68 points.

The opening was 9 to 22 points higher on bullish reports from the goods trade, a renewal of Liverpool buying and scattered covering which was doubtless stimulated by the early absence of Southern hedging. May sold up to $35.45 and July to $33.74 right after the call with active months showing net advances of 15 to 23 points, but these prices attracted increased realizing and prices eased back to about last night's closing figures during the middle of the morning.

There was enough scattered buying to steady the market around this level but liquidation became active later on the unfavorable rumors regarding political conditions in Germany, with May selling off to 34.52 and July to 32.90, making net declines of 43 to 70 points on the active months.

Trade interests were credited with buying on a scale down but sentiment was very unsettled late in the morning and last prices were at nearly the low point on most positions. Reports of sharp advances in some of the leading brands of bleached muslins and fine cambrics were among the features on the early advance while there was also buying on the expectation of continued exports and rather bullish week-end figures.

The amount of cotton reported on shipboard awaiting clearance was 303,000 bales against 156,000 last year. There were very few selling orders here from the South early, but offerings from that source appeared as the price of March approached the 37-cent level on the early advance and there was heavy commission house liquidation in the late trading.

Cotton futures closed easy; January, 37.80c; March, 36.07c; May, 34.52c; July, 33.00c; October, 30.50c.

London Review.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—"The city considers that Herbert Hoover's statement of Europe's credit needs, which was evidently directed at interviews given out in America by Sir George Parish, was thoroughly justified. There is intense irritation here over Sir George Parish's tactics. Comment is that he is evidently engaged in airing pet ideas, which were ventilated a year ago at a dinner given by Sir Edward Holden. Incidentally, Sir George's ideas met with no encouragement from that practical banker.

Hoover's exhortation, as cabled to this side, that Europe cease begging and get to work, fits the case as regards France, England and possibly Germany. Certain necessitous countries need aid. In other countries, the avaricious spirit rampant in labor ranks takes the form of strikes for higher wages and shorter hours, while up in the scale the so-called get-rich-quick policy encourages speculation.

"The Stock Exchange Committee, however, has wisely decided not to resume either fortnightly settlements or the practice of contangoing. The flood of new capital creations continues to be fairly well absorbed.

The Bank of England.

"Future returns of the Bank of England will probably show a steady increase in the stock of gold. The explanation is that the Cunliffe Currency Committee's recommendation to centralize all the gold stores of the outside banks at the Bank of England is being acted upon. This will involve the gradual addition of about £40,000,000 to the Central Reserve, but, of course, the real strength of the position will be in no way increased.

"Showing how the controversy rages around the question of a cheap or dear money policy, the upholders of the former argue that the bank rate should be lowered, because of the prospective addition to the Central stock of gold. There is reason to believe at present, that the anti-inflationist policy is likely to prevail which should mean the continuance of the present bank rate, with determined efforts to check speculation and proclaim the gospel of work.

"There is a growing feeling that the only hope of checking the Bolshevik spirit throughout the world, lies either in a stronger suppression by the leading governments, of the revolt against law and order, or in genuine religious revival. This statement, while startling, reflects not the opinions of excited politicians or religious fanatics, but the views of hard-headed business men."

Federal Bank of New York.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The statement of condition of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York at the close of business Jan. 9 shows: Total gold reserves, $522,756,824; total reserves, $569,016,997; total earning assets, $1,025,604,620; uncollected items and other deductions from gross deposits, $222,802,958; due to members, reserve account, $702,854,146. Total gross deposits, $919,219,662; Federal Reserve notes in actual circulation, $776,591,000.

*Record weekly supply for St. Louis market.

Steer selling was irregular here last week, regardless of the small supply on sale. Best steers selling around $12.50 and over, closed steady to 25c lower, with packers pounding the high-priced stuff. Common kinds, on the other hand, showed strength and some of the medium weight shipping cattle, around 1000 pounds, were 25c higher on the week. A top of $15.25 was made on heavies, with yearling grades going up to $14.75. A range of $10.75 to $13.50 caught the rank and file of offerings the past week.

A good demand and brisk movement featured the week in butcher cattle. Buyers were in action at all times and prices scored an advance of 50c to 75c, with $1.00 in spots. Good lightweight heifers and yearlings were especially desirable for the local St. Louis trade. Common and medium butcher kinds failed to show strength.

Good cows are easier on the week's trading. Some lots were 25c lower, but plain and medium kinds sold unchanged. Canners and cutters showed a 25c to 50c reduction, dropping down to $5 in some instances. Good cows sold as high as $12, but the beefy kinds were not wanted at any time. Bulls were draggy, selling up to $11.25, and were mostly 25c lower.

A good demand existed for quality, lightweight stock cattle, and some of the better weight steers on the feeder order, and most sales showed some advance. Plain and off-weight kinds were slow sale, going largely to packers.

Vealers for the week closed 50c lower than the high time the previous week. The top went up to $18, but the late high mark was $17.50. The supply proved liberal this week, and a good many of the choicer offerings were available. A range of $15.00 to $17.50 caught most veal arrivals. Heretics closed 25c higher, with heavies selling from $6.50 to $7, and lights mostly from $7 to $8, according to weight and quality.

Large runs, wide price fluctuations in each session and a broad shipping outlet were features of the hog trade last week, where a comparison of current quotations with the previous Saturday reflected a rise of 10c to 15c for the week. There was not a session that values did not fluctuate 25@50c. Top was at one time down to $14.70 and at another time up to $15.35. Closing top was $15, against $14.90 the week before. Receipts totaled the unprecedented figure of 114,314 head, and but for unfavorable weather conditions would have been even heavier. Pig market made a right large gain the fore part of the week, but closed very dull and with all of the advance lost, while some common light stuff showed a flat $1 decline. Rough sows sold from $13.50@13.75 late, or about 25@50c higher than a week ago.

Under moderate receipts—the week bringing only 10,000 head—the local sheep and lamb market continued on the up grade and gains of 25@50c on lambs and yearlings and a 25c rise on fat sheep were scored. Current quotations are as follows: Choice fat lambs $18.75@19, fair to good lambs, $17.75@18.50, plain to medium $15@17.50, best culls $13@14, common culls $7@12, choice light yearling wethers $16@16.50, fancy heavy yearlings $15.75@16, fat sheep $9.75@10, plain to good ewes $9@9.50, canner sheep $4.50, choppers $6@6.50 and fat bucks $6@6.75. Both lambs and yearling wethers touched a record high level for the season. At the close of last week lambs were quoted at $18.50, yearlings $15.75 and fat sheep $9.50@9.75.

Receipts of horses last week were somewhat below expectations and the market registered a strong tone on desirable material. Strictly choice Southerners were scarce and the few that arrived enlisted strong competition on the part of buyers.

Mule trade made a very satisfactory showing last week. Receipts showed a sharp increase, supply for the five-day period being the heaviest received in months.

Chicago Federal Reserve Bank Raises Discount Rate.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—The Chicago Federal Reserve Bank today announced an increase in its discount rate on Treasury certificates of indebtedness from 4½ to 4¾ per cent. Advances on commercial paper with a view to discouraging borrowers who speculate in commodities, land, cotton and oil, soon will be begun it was understood. Stock market borrowings are considered to have been reasonably reduced. The Reserve Board announced it expects to put reserve banks in a position where charges for borrowing money of them will be higher than the going commercial rate, so that reserve banks would be appealed to only in time of stress.

Controlling Interest in Drovers' National Bank Changes Hands

The sale yesterday of a large block of stock of the Drovers' National Bank of East St. Louis placed the controlling interest with its president, M. E. Patterson, and H. R. Dooley, cashier. The Drovers' National Bank is located at the St. Louis National Stockyards. It was organized six years ago. Patterson and Dooley took the management of the bank three years ago.

Coffee.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The market for coffee futures was lower today, owing to reports that supplies were being sold from the stocks held by the Brazilian Government and rumors of disturbing political developments in Germany. The opening was 22 to 30 points lower, and active months sold about 33 to 42 points net lower, with May touching 16.20c and September 16.10c, or just about a cent below the high levels of last Thursday. Closing prices were at approximately the lowest levels of the day, showing a net decline of 33 to 42 points. Closing bids: January, 15.75c; March, 16.[illegible]; May, 16.20; July, 16.35; September, 16.[illegible]; October, 16.04; December, 15.90c.

Rumors that 1,000,000 bags of the Brazilian Government coffee had been sold to France were denied, but it was reported that 25,000 bags of Santos 3s to 6s had been sold to local importers, at a price which was not definitely mentioned. The local spot market was quiet and unchanged at 16¼c to 17c for Rio 7s and 25¾c to 26c for Santos 4s.

STOCK MARKET DRIFTS OVER A NARROW RANGE

Week's Prices, However, Mostly Favor Bears in the New York Dealings.

Closing Prices on Liberty Bonds at New York.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Final Liberty Bonds prices today were: 3½s, 99.50; first 4s, 92.96; second 4s, 91.92; first 4¼s, 93.18; second 4¼s, 92.40; third 4¼s, 94.40; fourth 4¼s, 92.56; Victory 3¾s, 98.98; Victory 4¾s, 98.94.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"Not much light has been thrown on the question, how and in what direction economic events are likely to move in the next few months. The stock market has indicated nothing, except the belief of professional operators, that the speculative appetite remains. As a plain matter of fact the professional machinery did not seem this week, to be working well. There was no sign of an 'outside public,' and an advance of 2 or 3 points would be followed almost immediately by a decline of almost exactly the same extent. The whole thing was unmistakably artificial.

"It is reasonable to suppose that the real movement is awaiting plain indication of the trend of events. Last autumn there were two fundamental considerations which served to encourage the speculation for the rise. One was that the railway question, as a matter for actual new or unexpected developments, was assumed to be out of the way, at least until Dec. 31. The other influence was the strong expectation that the treaty of peace would somehow be ratified without great delay; and the belief that the sentimental effect of that event in financial circles would be very great.

Peace Treaty a Factor.

"This should have been a reasonable expectation; but those who held it had not taken the measure of a number of public men. Today ratification is seemingly a more remote contingency than ever—which sometimes means that a sudden settlement will take everyone by surprise, but which does not make the public think so—while developments of high importance in the railway problem are bound to occur in the very near future. These considerations make for hesitancy on a Stock Exchange.

"Only in two directions have the tendencies of the new year seemed to display themselves at all strikingly; in those the markets are only continuing 1919. The renewed decline in foreign exchange this week (though rates still remained far above the December minimum) cannot yet be fully measured as to the probability of its continuance. The course of that market at least caused no surprise.

"The money market, however, has not moved according to traditional form. In this week of last January call money fell from 6 per cent to 3¾, and time loans, which had brought 6 per cent the week before, got down to 5½. This week the call money rate, after easing off to 6 per cent, went up to 10 at yesterday's closing; and what was really much more striking, loans for 60 and 90 days relaxed only from last week's 8½-per-cent rate to 7¼ and 8.

"Now these are abnormally high figures for this time of year. It would not be reasonable to expect them not to be seasonably modified. But such rates have not been asked in the second week of January, on the New York market during a full generation.

Records of the Past.

"To match them it is necessary to go back on the records to the late 60s and the early 70s—a period to which the New York merchants of that period used afterward to refer as 'before the fall in money rates.' By this they meant that 7 and 8 per cent had been a familiar charge, even on good commercial paper, during nearly a decade after the Civil War. The parallel is not without interest. It raises the question whether we have yet seen in its full development the influences of the war, and of its diversion and waste of capital on the actual supply and price of money.

"This very matter was a frequent subject of discussion during the war. One body of good financial opinion then held that ending of the war would mean sudden relaxation of Government borrowings and (so it was argued) the trade relaxation which would follow return of peace, would bring low money rates. The other insisted that the price of capital would advance—first because of the waste of war time, next because of the huge demands for reconstruction, then because of reaction from the artificial ease imposed by governments during the period of hostilities, and, finally, because of the credits absorbed in the speculation which had always followed war. We partly tested this question during 1919; now we seem to be in the way of applying a second test. This is economic history in the making."

FAIRLY STEADY PRICES ON THE LOCAL STOCK MARKET

There was rather an active demand for securities at the session of the Stock Exchange here yesterday, but prices showed no important changes from Friday's transfers. National Bank of Commerce stock sold firm at $150 and United Railways common changed hands at $1.87½ and $2. Temtor "A" stock was a small fraction lower at $48.50, and Hydraulic Pressed Brick held firm around $10.25. Bonds showed a fairly firm range on the issues quoted and sold.

New York Curb Market.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—There were many important features to trading on the Broad street curb during the past week, with most interest again attached to the large transactions in stocks of companies holding properties in the new Homer field in Louisiana. Official statements in regard to the important developments on its properties made Gilliland Oil prominent, that stock advancing from 52¼ to the new high of 60½, with a reaction to 58. The preferred, on which the initial quarterly dividend of 2 per cent was declared yesterday, moved up from 107 to 120 and reacted to 115½. Simms Petroleum was attacked by bear traders on Thursday, a considerable line of shorts being put out on a decline to 66, but yesterday it had a vigorous advance to 72⅝. The "rights" were traded in at 6⅝ to 7¼. White Oil was active, with trading at 50 and 47⅛.

The widest movement in the oil stocks was in General Asphalt, which moved up from 115 to 130. Houston Oil was a weak feature, dropping from 151 to 141. Carib Syndicate, after the delivery of the new certificates, sold down from 51 to 46½.

There was a vigorous buying of Dominion, which rose from 32⅞ to 39, but reacted in the last two days. International Petroleum, after selling at the new high of 77, dropped to 69. Mid-West Refining was also heavy, selling from 180 to 170. Phillips Petroleum rose from 83½ to the new high of 88.

Following is a list of the day's highest, lowest and closing prices for the most active stocks dealt in on the Broad street curb:

Bankers' Foreign Exchange,
25 East Jackson Boulevard, Chicago.

DETAILED REPORT OF DAY'S TRADING IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Popular shares were substantially higher at the opening of today's stock market, especially the several speculative groups, in which the usual week-end covering of contracts was observed. Baldwin Locomotive, Crucible Steel and American Woolen featured the rise, with other prominent steels, equipments, metals and oils. There was a moderate demand for such utilities as Philadelphia Company and People's Gas. Specialties and miscellaneous shares were represented by Industrial Alcohol and United States Realty.

Foreign Exchange.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—There was no special feature to the foreign exchange market today. Business continued quiet with few transactions, and the changes in rates were without importance. Demand sterling moved up ⅛ to 3.73⅝ and a slight improvement was made in French exchange. Austrian exchange was heavy, foreign checks selling at the low record of .50. Today's closing rates of exchange on all the principal foreign markets were as follows: Sterling, demand, 3.73⅝; sterling cables, 3.74½; bankers' 60 days, 3.68⅝; bankers' 90 days, 3.67½; commercial 60 days, 3.67½; commercial 90 days, 3.66¼; France, checks, 11.15; France cables, 11.13; Belgium checks, 11.08; Belgium cables, 11.06; Germany checks, 1.96; Germany cables, 1.90; Austria checks, .50; Austria cables, .50; Holland checks, 37⅝; Holland cables, 37½; Italy checks, 13.43; Italy cables, 13.41; Swiss checks, 5.66; Swiss cables, 5.64; Stockholm kroner checks, 21.05; Stockholm kroner cables, 21.20; Christiania kroner checks, 19.75; Christiania kroner cables, 19.90; Copenhagen kroner checks, 18; Copenhagen kroner cables, 18.15; Spain checks, 19.05; Spain cables, 19.15; Buenos Aires spot, 192.30.

FINANCIAL ITEMS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—It is officially intimated that within a few days the terms of a new Belgian loan of about $25,000,000 will be announced. According to reports available, the loan will be in the form of three to five-year notes and will be sold on a 6 to 6½ per cent basis. It is also reported that an Italian loan for the same amount will be placed here, but offering of this loan is not looked for until the Belgian loan has been floated.

Announcement has been made that Edward Wise, president of the United Cigar Stores, has been elected a member of the board of directors of the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation.

In connection with recent listing of its stock, the Ohio Body and Blower Co. reports to Boston Stock Exchange that 1919 sales were $1,875,000, with estimated profits of $200,000, or the equivalent of $2 for each share of the 100,000 shares now outstanding. Sales for 1918 of $1,500,000 yielded $145,000 profit, and 1917 sales for $728,749 returned $75,394 profit.

Recent activity in the shares of the Pierce Oil Co., both common and preferred, is based on the reports that the directors are contemplating placing the common stock on a dividend basis. The amount mentioned is 2 per cent annually, but no official intimation of this was obtainable. No dividends have been paid on the common stock thus far, although the earnings account would justify some sort of disbursement.

Applications have been made to the Stock Exchange to list:

American Bosch Magneto Corporation, 20,000 additional shares of capital stock without par value. Pan-American Petroleum and Transport Corporation $5,567,000 class D common stock. American Sumatra Tobacco Co. $1,000,000 additional common stock. American La France Fire Engine Co. Inc., $2,950,000 common stock. The International Motor Truck Corporation, $4,156,000 7 per cent cumulative first preferred stock.

Tucker, Anthony & Co., syndicate managers, announce that the syndicate underwriting of the new issue of 43,324 shares of Bethlehem Motors Corporation capital stock has been closed and checks mailed to the participants. The entire issue of stock has been sold.

A tabulation of the earnings of the 22 trust companies in New York City, for the 12 months between the official reports of Nov. 1, 1918, and Nov. 12, 1919, compiled by the Financial Age this week, shows that the total net earnings of these companies for the period were $29,292,500. The combined capital aggregated $98,100,000, and the dividends paid to shareholders amounted during the year to $19,467,500, the average disbursements on capital employed being 19.8 per cent. The aggregate surplus and profits of these institutions is $168,439,000 and stands $10,850,000 higher than it did a year ago.

MRS. STEPHENS AND CHILDREN. (c)

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

F. W. S.—Yes; there were tanneries in the United States in 1802.

J. S. A.—It is not proper to let a boy kiss you unless you are engaged to him.

MRS. LOUISA MILLER.—Go to see the Prosecuting Attorney and tell him the facts.

A READER.—If your husband is able to work and won't, that is ground for a divorce.

TROUBLED.—The divorce is legal even if it does read a year sooner than it should.

READER.—We do not know of any special soap that makes a good combination with gasoline.

E. G. W.—A contract of a minor cannot be enforced unless he satisfies it after he comes of age.

CITY LIMITS.—The city was separated from the county and its present limits were fixed in the year 1876.

RAILROAD PASS.—You cannot have someone that used some other person's railroad pass in 1914 punished now, for forgery.

A. B. A.—"A" and Mrs. A should divide the profits, since A contributed the original capital and has turned over his pay check to her.

V. S.—The Cuban is a descendant of the progeny of the Spaniards and the West Indian natives. There are of course, strains of negro blood in the island.

STEADY READER.—You have no claim against the landlord. You might have one against the tenant next door, if he has caused the floor to become warped.

A SUBSCRIBER.—If you hold a mortgage on a house and wish to sell it you must give at least 20 days notice by advertisement, before you can do so.

B. N.—The cost of a final settlement in the Probate Court is usually about $35. It varies, according to the amount of the estate and the number of claims allowed.

LATIN STUDENT.—Your Latin grammar will explain the Latin alphabet. Consult Hoyle, the authority on card games. You can obtain a copy at the Public Library.

H. S.—As her second marriage was void because Mr. Jones then had a wife from whom he was not divorced, she need not worry about anything that Mr. Jones can now do.

A READER.—Victor Berger was born at Nieder Rebbuch, Austro-Hungary. He is under sentence to the penitentiary and is now out on bond pending appeal.

A SCHOOLGIRL. — Theodore Roosevelt suffered an injury to the sight of one of his eyes in a friendly boxing match. The fact was known to very few people until after his death.

INQUISITIVE.—You can redeem a pawned article at any time within 60 days after the first failure to pay the interest due. A pawnbroker cannot legally charge more than 2 per cent per month.

B. W. J.—If you have no information whatever of the location of your lost relative, it might be possible that the War Department will have some record of him if he was within the draft age.

X. Y. Z.—They can take the furniture away from you if the contract provides for that. If there is a chattel mortgage on the furniture, and you sell it you can be prosecuted. The contract is legal.

WEST POINTER.—Brazil did not send troops to the European battle front, but they were used to suppress threatened uprisings in the large German colonies in Brazil. The Brazilian navy co-operated with the allies in patrol and convoy work in the Atlantic.

PHOTOPLAYER.—All publications have an advertising department and a news department. Such matter as the editor selects for publication is published without cost, and for such matter as individuals want published there is a regular advertising rate.

H. V. Z. K.—There are nine Justices of the United States Supreme Court, including the Chief Justice. The Chief Justice cannot overrule the decision of a majority of the Justices. There is a jury of six men at a Coroner's inquest.

F. J. H.—Both Divine and evil inspirations come through the soul. If you always try to do what is right the evil inspirations are overcome by the good and the evil become less frequent. You have the power to make your soul either good or bad.

N. F. VALLE.—The zodiac is an imaginary belt in the heavens, 16 degrees or 18 degrees broad, in the middle of which is the ecliptic, or sun's path. It comprises the 12 constellations which once constituted, and from which were named, the 12 signs of the zodiac.

CARDS.—When playing five hundred you can raise your partner's no trump bid if your turn to bid has not passed. When playing no trump the joker becomes anything the holder wishes to call it, but it cannot be played until the holder is out of suit.

MOLLIE.—No woman could apply for your husband's allotments and secure the same without the man having allotted it to her, as the allotments were entirely at the disposition of the soldiers. However, you might get some further information from the War Risk Insurance Bureau, 1116 Syndicate Trust Building, St. Louis, Mo.

M. U. S.—Each Senator and Representative appoints two candidates to West Point. The number sent from Missouri is therefore 36. We have to know more about your individual case before we can tell if you can be made to go to Cleveland High School. You could find out from the Board of Education. All National Guards pay for drilling.

F. L. C.—At the last census the population of Greensboro, N. C., was 15,895. There are two colleges for colored there besides the native population. In a town of that size the facilities for shopping and amusement should be good. We do not see why a bright, middle aged, active woman, unless she has no initiative or ability to make friends, would not find it a pleasant place to live.

JACOBY.—If you have a liniment and wish to do house-to-house canvass you will need a peddler's license, but the medicine must be offered for sale only and no attempt or suggestion must be made to treat anyone. The only protection is to keep the formula a secret. You can label it as beneficial for influenza, but you may have to establish that it is true. There is no law against "Flu" remedies, but there is a law against using the mails to defraud.

BUNK.—In connection with the Darwinian theory you ask why the monkeys we know do not change. In the first place, we cannot know whether they do or do not, because written history does not extend far enough to record any appreciable change. Thousands of years are necessary for the minutest change, scientists say. The pithecanthropus, the skeleton of which is that of half man and half ape, is estimated at considerably more than 100,000 years old. It is not likely that an ape, developing slowly into man as we know him, would be intelligent enough to observe and chronicle the history of his own transformation. The same argument applies to man. The time during which intelligent observation has been made is entirely too short for any discernible change. As to the monkeys of today, it is not claimed that man descended from those types. If science is right, the race of monkeys from which we are descended now constitutes the human race. That is the scientific answer to your inquiry.

CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to our relatives and friends for their sympathy and kindness shown in the sad bereavement, in the loss of my dear wife and mother, Margarette Bauer; also for the beautiful floral offerings. We especially thank Father Moser of St. Vincent's Church and Clem Weick's Sons, undertakers.

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to our many relatives and friends for the kindness and sympathy shown us during our sad bereavement in the loss of my beloved daughter, and our dear sister, Rosalia F. Anielak. We wish to thank the Rev. Father Zelinski, his assistants and the pallbearers for their kind attention and service, and for the beautiful floral offerings.

THE BEREAVED FAMILY.

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks to all our relatives and friends for the many and beautiful floral offerings and for their kindness and sympathy shown us in our late sad bereavement in the loss of our dearly beloved daughter and sister, Verna Godeyjohann, and especially the Rev. M. L. Kramer of Zion Evangelical Church for his kind and consoling remarks. The bereaved family.

MR. AND MRS. H. REMMERT AND SISTERS.

We desire herewith to extend our sincere and most heartfelt thanks to our many relatives and friends for their kind expressions of sympathy and the beautiful floral offerings tendered us in the sad hour of bereavement occasioned by the loss through death of our dearly beloved son and brother, William J. A. Pape. Most especially do we thank the Rev. H. Fritz for his benediction and kind words of consolation, and do we desire to thank the navy attendance for their kind, impressive services, and Ziegenhein Bros. for their assistance and excellent service rendered.

MR. AND MRS. ANTON B. PAPE AND FAMILY.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear beloved husband and our dear father, Gustave G. Quentin, who departed from this life Jan. 13, 1916, and who will live forever in the memory of his wife and children.

MRS. FREDERICKA QUENTIN AND CHILDREN. (c)

In loving memory of our dear beloved daughter, Agnes Laura Stephens (nee Anderson), who departed this life one year ago, Jan. 4, 1919.

Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, PARENTS, SISTER AND BROTHER.

In loving memory of Leo J. Murphy, who died Jan. 10, 1919.

Days of sadness still come o'er us;
Tears in silence often flow;
Fond memories keep you ever near us,
Though you died one year ago.
Sadly missed by
THOSE WHO LOVED HIM.

In loving rememberance of the late John J. Hopkins, who died Jan. 11, 1919:

Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Tears in silence often flow;
Fond memories keep you ever near us,
Though you died one year ago.
Sadly missed by
MRS. E. HOPKINS AND FAMILY.

In loving remembrance of Ophelia Corsan, who departed this life three years ago, Jan. 12th, 1917.

Ophelia you are gone, but not forgotten;
Never shall your memory fade,
For I often linger around the grave
Where you are laid.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, FATHER AND SISTERS.

In sweet memory of our darling daughter and sister, Mamie Bike, who departed this life Jan. 7, 1915:

Fondly we think of you, Mamie,
With thoughts that are prompted by love,
And oft in the deep silent slumber
We dream of our loved one above.
Sadly missed by your father, mother, brother and sweetheart.

In loving memory of my dear wife and our dear daughter and sister, Margaret Hall, who departed this life Jan. 10, 1919:

Just one year ago you left us,
How we miss you, no one knows.
You are gone, but not forgotten
By the ones who loved you so.
Sadly missed by husband, little son, parents, sisters and brothers.

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Martin Bergholtz, who departed this life one year ago, Jan. 14, 1919.

One year ago since you left us;
How we miss you, Martin, dear;
You are gone but not forgotten
By the ones whom you left here.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, SISTER AND BROTHERS. (c)

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Charles A. Pfeffer, who departed this life Jan. 14, 1918.

The flowers laid upon his grave,
They wither and decay,
Our love for him who sleeps beneath
Will never fade away.
Sadly missed by
FATHER, MOTHER AND BROTHERS.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, John Anthony Vogel, who died in the service of his country at Prum, Germany, on Jan. 2, 1919.

Sadly missed by
MOTHER, FATHER AND SISTERS.

In loving memory of my dear husband and father, Albert Umhoefer, who departed this life two years ago, Jan. 15, 1918.

Two years have passed; our hearts still sore;
As time goes on we miss you more.
Your loving smile, your loving face,
None can fill your vacant place.
Sadly missed by
MRS. ALBERT UMHOEFER AND SON, ALBERT.

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Henry Lesch Jr., who departed this life 1 year ago, Jan. 10, 1919.

One year has passed
Our hearts still sore,
As time goes on
We miss you more.
Your loving smile, your loving face;
None can fill your vacant place.
Sadly missed by
FATHER, MOTHER, BROTHER AND SISTERS.

In loving memory of my dear son, Oliver Jones, who died Jan. 11, 1913.

Oh the misery of that morning
When I stood beside your bed
Till death stole upon you softly,
And I knew your soul had fled.
'Tis not the tears of that moment shed
That tell how I loved that soul that fled;
'Tis the silent tears through the long years wept,
And fond remembrance kept.
Sadly missed by his MOTHER, MRS. JENNIE JONES.

In memory of my dear wife and our mother, Mrs. Mary Horstmeyer, who entered into rest Jan. 11, 1919:

Mother, we miss you everywhere,
Miss your advice, love and care.
A faithful mother, so kind and true,
We always pray and think of you.
You are not forgotten in our minds;
To us you were so good and kind.
How are hearts are filled with pain;
We hope some day to meet again.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

In memory of our beloved son and brother, Walter F. Schmidt, who departed this life three years ago, Jan. 1, 1917:

Just three years ago you left us,
How we miss you, Walter, dear,
And remember all your kindness,
As we shed our silent tear,
We know that you are happy
Now, in a mansion of the blest,
Where there is no pain or sorrow,
In one sweet eternal rest.
Sadly missed by
HENRY J. SCHMIDT AND FAMILY.

In loving memory of my dear son, Alexander W. Stamm, who departed this life, Jan. 7, 1919:

Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Tears in silence often fall;
Love shall always keep you near us,
Though you died one year ago,
Never shall you be forgotten,
Never from our memory fade,
A loving heart will always linger
Around the grave where you are laid.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, SISTER AND BROTHER.

In memory of our dearly beloved mother, Louisa Breiding, who passed away Jan. 14, 1915.

In her lonely grave she is sleeping,
As the shadows onward fall,
And our lonely hearts are weeping,
No more her presence we can call.
Do not ask us if we miss her;
Oh! there is such a vacant place,
Oft we think we hear her footsteps
Or we see her smiling face.
Sadly missed by HER CHILDREN.

In sad and loving memory of my darling daughter and our dear sister, Genevieve Schaefer, who departed this life two years ago, Jan. 4, 1918.

Silently the shades of evening gather round our lonely door,
Silently they bring before us the dear face we shall see no more.
So often we go to your grave, lingering there and trying to be brave,
But, oh, 'tis hard to bear, to go away and leave you there.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, SISTER AND BROTHERS.

In memory of my dear wife and our dear mother, Sadie Phelps, who departed this life Jan. 14, 1919:

Mother, we miss everywhere;
Miss your advice, so kind and true,
We always pray and think of you;
You're not forgotten in our minds;
To us you were so good and kind,
How our hearts are filled with pain,
We hope some day we'll meet again.
Rest in peace, thy cares are ended;
Rest in peace, they work is done.
You are gone where those who loved you
Soon are coming, one by one.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN AND RELATIVES.

In loving memory of my dear husband, Ray Holmes, U. S. M. Co., who died in Nantes, France, Jan. 13, 1919.

One year has passed; sad and sudden was the call.
I little knew that on that day my dear husband would be called away.
Day by day I sadly miss him; friends may think the wound is healed;
But they little know the grief that within my heart is concealed.
He shall never be forgotten; never from my memory fade.
A loving heart will always linger around the grave in "No Man's Land" where he is laid.
Sadly missed by his WIFE.

In loving memory of my dear, beloved wife, Lillian D. Biebl (nee Hansmann), who died Jan. 10, 1919:

One Year has passed;
Sad and heart-broken was the call;
I little thought that on that day
That my dear wife should pass away.
I could not realize what it
Meant when the hour came
That she passed away.
Day by day I miss her;
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the grief
That's within my heart concealed.
She shall never be forgotten,
Never from my memory fade;
Loving hearts shall always linger
Around the grave where she is laid.
Sadly missed by HUSBAND.

In loving memory of my dear mother, Caroline Ahrenholz, died Jan. 8, 1916, dear brother Emil Ahrenholz, died Jan. 27, 1916, mother and brother of the late Hanna Goedecke (nee Ahrenholz).

Forget you, no, I never will.
It was a bitter pain and shock severe
To part with you I loved so dear.
It left me broken-hearted.
Day by day I sadly miss you;
Friends may think that wound is healed,
But they little know
The grief within my heart concealed.
Roses may fade and wither,
Leaves may fade and die.
If others forget you never shall I.
Though from you I had to part,
Your memory still dwells in my heart.
Sadly mourned in the home of
YOUR DAUGHTER AND SISTER, MRS. KATE SCHNELL, GEORGE SCHNELL AND FRANK GOEDECKE, SON-IN-LAW. (c)

By special request, Oliver McEwan, "The last of the five men who made shorthand what it is," "The greatest living authority on shorthand," author of 100 books, will give his world-celebrated lecture-lesson
"SHORTHAND IN ONE LESSON"
at 2 and 4; 150 stereopticon views.
In this lecture-lesson Mr. McEwan tells the romantic story of shorthand from the day it was invented by a slave 2000 years ago; traces the struggles of inventors through the ages; shows portraits of the great men who devoted their lives to the art; explains and illustrates a score of systems; and gives his complete lesson in his own system,
"McEWAN'S EASY SHORTHAND," declared by experts to be "the simplest, the briefest and the most legible shorthand ever devised"—so simple that children of tender years are learning it at school.
This lecture-lesson will be repeated every day this week at 3:30 and 7:30 in room 519, Hotel Jefferson. Admission free.
Beginning tomorrow and Tuesday at 10, four days' classes. Terms $10, including all textbooks and short mail course. Also all the week, one lesson classes; terms $8.50, including all books and short mail course. Call or write for prospectus.
NOTICE—Mr. McEwan will be at Memphis next week; Oklahoma City and Topeka following week; Kansas City Feb. 6 to 13.

Overland USED CAR DEPT

Why wait for a street car wasting your valuable time, when you could have a first class, slightly used automobile for a very small payment down and easy monthly payments?

See how easily you can own an automobile, and pay as you ride. Hurry! Come quick. Be up to the minute on money you might spend foolishly.

You can carry your friends to and from work at fifteen cents each, and this will help pay for the car.

Cars purchased now will be worth much more in the Spring, but we are overloaded and must sell in the next ten days to make room for more trade-ins on the sale of more new cars.

YOU don't need all cash; $100 to $250 down will buy one of the best Automobiles we have, a 1919 demonstrator, better than a new car, at two-thirds the price, and you pay as you ride. It's easy—90 per cent of all sales are made on time, so don't wait longer. BUY NOW.

In addition to these 1919 demonstrations we have seventy-five other good cars, most of which can be bought for $100 to $200 down and the balance easy monthly payments. Some of our cars are described below, but they won't last long, and neither will the prices, so QUIT WISHING and come down to 2310 Locust St. and get what you want (Liberty Bonds, War Savings Stamps, or your old Automobile are as good as cash to us).

We demonstrate — treat you square — guarantee your car — teach you to drive and tell you how to make it pay for itself.

START the "New Year" right. Dress up; look prosperous; don't go-at-that-down-pace. We are calling you. Clothing is getting "higher and higher." Come "inside;" we will give you all the "outside information" in regard to the "High Cost" of clothes. Buy our uncalled-for clothes; suits that will "dress you up." There is no time in life that you get so "down and out" that you can't get into the "Land of Beginning Again;" "Start anew;" we "are calling you" with our 5 large stores, 120 feet filled with "bargains galore." If we don't get your money for clothes here, you don't spend your "dough" right. What you "save when you spend your dough is your profit." "Install the "Abrams System" of clothes buying, and save. For 10 years we have saved thousands of dollars for the clothes-buying public. Be "awake" to the "fact" your personal appearance "must count." We have in "store" for you high-class suits; you can afford to wear two or three suits a season for the price of the customary one by purchasing our uncalled-for garments from our cleaning department; garments are tailor made and from the best manufacturers. Can you wear 34, 36, 38, 43, 40, 46 to 50 sizes? Also English and plain models. Vests, 50s. Pants, $2 to $3.95. Coats, $3 to $6.50. Uncalled-for Stetson hats, 95c. Open Sundays until 6 p. m. Abrams Cleaners and Dyers, 926 S. Vandeventer, near Chouteau. Mail orders filled. Both phones. Liberty Bonds accepted. (c)

WE ARE going after your clothing business for 1920. We will save you 15 to 25 per cent. "If that means anything to you," why the rule-of-reason, out of the high-rent district, no expensive habits, no "heavy overhead expenses," but solid values. "More than your money's worth" on high-class suits and overcoats. "Adopt our close-to-the-shore profit system. "What the Drummers' Sample Clothes Shop means to you:" These fine garments are made by the manufacturers for display or modeling purposes for traveling salesmen; they are made much better than the regular goods; after they show them off we buy them at a big discount; we give you the benefit of our immense buying capacity; this policy enables us to save you $5.00 to $7.50. We're "lowering" the "high" cost of "living;" we claim with our "5 big stores" eliminating all unnecessary expenses. You save the difference. Never in the "history" of these "United States" will you "see prices" as "high" as this fall. Don't "tread the old beaten path," paying for the high rents "which don't get you anywhere." Play the "new game." All we ask you to "go shopping around" first and come here last, and we will certainly get your "dough." $30 and $35 blue, green, brown flannel suits at these prices: $24.98 and $27.98. Don't spend "a dollar for clothes" unless you see our "fall line." "Pay less; buy more." To the "Drummers' Sample Clothes Shop." Five big stores in one. Vandeventer, Market, Sarah, Manchester, Chouteau and all other lines transfer to our door. "Sample Suits," $24.98, $29.98. Sample pants, $2.58, $3.46, $4.98; tailor-made suits cost up to $35; our price $26.75. Mackinaw coats, $7.98, $9.98 and $12.48. We again announce our "Trade-in Sale" Department. We will make you a liberal allowance on your old clothes for new ones. "The place to buy clothes." 926 S. Vandeventer av., near Chouteau. Liberty Bonds accepted. (c)

HENRY WARD BEECHER'S CHURCH HAS $7000 DEFICIT FOR 1919

Resignation of Its Pastor, the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, Is Rumored.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—After the annual report of the treasurer of Plymouth Church (Henry Ward Beecher's church) had been published today, showing that the famous old Brooklyn institution had sustained a $7000 deficit during 1919, a rumor spread that the pastor, the Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, probably would resign. The rumor was given credence by the assistant pastor, the Rev. Dr. I. W. Henderson, but he declared that, if Dr. Hillis did quit the pulpit of Plymouth, it would be to take the platform in the interest of Americanization and not because of state of the church's finances, which, it is stated, is largely due to steadily lessening receipts from pew rent.

In the annual report, the treasurer, Otto E. Reimer, said the church's receipts for the year were $50,595 and the expenditures more than $57,000. He added that Plymouth Church has spent money lavishly "often foolishly," in the past, and suggests that a policy of rigid economies might save the church from the necessity of selling a few bonds, an expedient which he declares would only stave off the inevitable for about three years.

U. S. Legation for Helsingfors.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The State Department plans to establish the American legation at Helsingfors, Finland, Feb. 1, next, Secretary Lansing said today in asking Congress to provide funds to pay the salary of a Minister. Since American recognition of Finland, the Secretary said the United States had been represented by a "commissioner," and further delay in establishing the legation might seem contradictory to the friendly relations between the United States and Finland.

WASTE IN BUILDING NITRATE PLANT ALLEGED

House Committee Told Workers Gambled and Slept on Job at Muscle Shoals.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Allegations of waste and extravagance in the building of a $62,000,000 air nitrate plant for the Government at Muscle Shoals, Ala., were made today in testimony before the House committee investigating expenditures in the War Department. Employes loafed on the job, gambled and had a "loose moral tone," it was testified.

The plant was built for the Government by the American Cyanamid Co. to produce nitrates for war explosives by the company's German process and is now idle.

According to testimony today, the company paid $12,000 for the distribution of articles to newspapers describing the plant. Under its contract with the Government, the company would receive royalties if the Government ever should operate the plant, and Chairman Graham of the committee said it had been proposed to have the Government make fertilizer there.

Maj. J. J. Farley, an ordnance officer who was stationed at the plant during its construction, testified of finding boilermakers asleep in boilers and electricians idle in a field telling stories. The quarters for some employes, he said, were extravagant, having hardwood floors. Once he found three elevators lifting wheelbarrows of concrete four feet. He told of a cook being employed as a draftsman, a farmer as an engineer and a "movie" actor as a mechanic.

Capt. R. M. Moberly, another ordnance officer, described his discovery of padded payrolls as a result of which the Government had been defrauded of $6000. The money was restored and two men were sentenced to two years each in prison.

The recruiting of labor for the Muscle Shoals project cost more than $900,000, according to an auditor's report, and a discrepancy of $88,000 in two audits of this expense is being investigated.

Representative Graham said he had been advised that the commissary at the plant lost $1,000,000 in serving meals.

BILL CARRIES PAY INCREASE FOR NAVY OFFICERS AND MEN

Measure Unanimously Voted by House Naval Committee to Be Introduced Tomorrow and Pushed.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The House Naval Committee voted unanimously today to recommend increases of 30 to 50 per cent in the pay of enlisted men in the Navy, and advances ranging from $240 to $840 a year for officers below the admiral grade.

Representative Kelly, Republican, Michigan, who headed a subcommittee to work out the schedule, will introduce the bill Monday, and ask for consideration under a special rule to hasten action, because of the expected opposition by some House leaders.

The proposed increases would amount to about $18,000,000 a year, it was estimated, and be made retroactive under the bill to the first of this year and extend to July 1, when the new appropriation for the Navy becomes effective. No decision as to the period beyond July over which the advances would apply was made by the committee.

Officers' resignations and failure of thousands of men to re-enlist because of lucrative positions available in commercial shipping prompted the decision, committeemen said. The high cost of living made it impossible to keep men in service, they added, and loss of personnel will leave unexpended about $70,000,000 of the pay fund for the current fiscal year, from which balance the increases are proposed to be paid.

For enlisted men, the committee proposes a monthly rate of base pay as follows: Chief petty officers with acting appointments, $99; permanent, $126; petty officers, first class, $84; second class, $72; third class, $60; non-rated men, first class, $54; second class, $48; third class, $33.

The increases for officers would be: Captains and Commanders, $600; lieutenant-commanders, $840; lieutenants, $720; lieutenants, junior grade, $600; ensigns, $240; commissioned warrant officers, $480, and warrant officers, $240.

The committee also voted to authorize $55,000 a year for civilian instructors at Annapolis, the amount of individual increases being left to the Navy Department.

OSWALD GRAVES FALLS DEAD WHEN WAITING FOR A CAR

Oswald Graves, 65 years old, of the Hamilton Hotel, a broker connected with Lamson Brothers & Co., grain merchants, fell dead at 8 a. m. yesterday as he was waiting for a Hodiamont car at Hamilton avenue and Suburban right-of-way.

Death is presumed to have been due to apoplexy.

ANTHROPOLOGISTS ORGANIZE

Robert J. Terry Elected Head of St. Louis Society.

The Anthropological Society of St. Louis was formed last week at the Washington University Medical School. Officers were elected as follows: Robert J. Terry, president; Dr. H. M. Whelpley, vice president, and Dr. D. C. Danforth, secretary-treasurer. Dr. B. A. Mills, Dr. J. Max Wolfing, Dr. Albert Kountz, Dr. Dan Shoemaker, Dr. W. W. Graves and Dr. Sherwood Moore were elected members of the council. Dr. Alex Hrdlichka, eminent Government anthropologist, spoke on the "Peculiarity of the Indian Skull" at the first meeting.

32 PICTURES BY NEW YORK PAINTER AT ART MUSEUM

Several Additional Specimens of Chinese and Japanese Art Also Placed on View.

The City Art Museum is showing through January a collection of 32 paintings by Jonas Lie, a well-known New York artist of Scandinavian birth. The subjects shown on Lie's canvases embrace still-life, New York skyscrapers, fishing villages, marines, and a series of views of the Panama Canal. The latter pictures, made during a two months' visit by the artist to the canal zone just prior to the completion of the great engineering task there, are said to be typical examples of his style at its best. In them he is credited with having accomplished the difficult feat of representing the topographical features of his subject in a truthful manner without sacrificing its pictorial qualities of atmosphere, color and light.

One of the largest of the Panama series is the canvas entitled "Toil," which is a view of Culebra Cut just prior to its completion. "The Heavenly Host" shows another view of the bed of the canal, and "The Gates of Pedro Miguel" depicts the great canal locks in process of construction. Other pictures in the canal series are "Cranes at Miraflores," "Canal Bottom," "Local Color, Gatun Lake," and "Cucharacha Slide."

Lie also gives us pictures of New York's imposing skyscrapers, such as "The Times Building," "City Icebound," and "End of Day." In the pictures mentioned it has been the chief aim of the artist to give a vivid impression of the towering immensity of these buildings. Some of his other paintings on exhibition are "Mackerel Fishing," "Nova Scotia Village," "The Rose of Valparaiso," "Autumn Fleet," "Silent Stream" and "Low Tide."

Several additional pieces of Chinese and Japanese art which W. K. Bixby acquired in the Orient have arrived at the Museum and have been placed on view in gallery 31.

SOCIAL AGENCIES COMMITTEE POSTPONES REPORT ON MILK

Says Conditions of Supply Are Worse in Summer and Then Is Time for Investigation.

At a meeting of the Health Committee of the Central Council of Social Agencies yesterday, the Council's recent decision to investigate the character of the milk supplied to St. Louis consumers was discussed with the following conclusions:

1. That the conditions of milk are worse in summer than in winter, due to high bacteria count, flies, delivery to trains, care of milk during transportation, dirty cans and cooling.

2. That an investigation at this time could not be complete and would show the milk supply in perhaps a better condition than if the investigation were made during the summer months.

3. That the report of the investigation be not made until June or July of 1920.

The committee, of which Dr. George B. Mangold is chairman, also decided in the meantime to obtain data concerning the conditions surrounding the milk supply in other large cities, for the sake of comparison with St. Louis.

WOMEN TO MEET AT C. OF C. TO PLAN LIVING COST MEETING

Federal Crusaders Against Profiteering Address Gathering Saturday at Odeon.

A meeting of officials of large women's organizations will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce to continue preparations for the mass meeting to be held at 3 p. m. Saturday, at the Odeon, to discuss ways of reducing the cost of living. It has been hinted that if the meeting is not a success, organized effort here to reduce living costs likely will be allowed to rest.

Howard Figg, Assistant Attorney-General in charge of prosecutions against profiteers, and Miss Edith Strauss, in charge of women's activities in the Department of Justice campaign, will be the principal speakers.

CAMPAIGN FOR REST OF FUND FOR HOSPITAL TO BE RENEWED

Auxiliary of Jewish Consumptives' Relief Society Will Seek to Reach $25,000 Goal.

Efforts to complete a fund of $25,000 for a St. Louis building in the group of tuberculosis hospitals at Denver, will be renewed tomorrow by the St. Louis Ladies' Auxiliary of the Jewish Consumptives' Relief Society. More than half of this fund had been obtained before the holidays and stock-taking season. A score of teams composed of women will finish the drive.

The campaign is to close with a dance and formal celebration at Trimp's Hall on the evening of Jan. 21, when novel features are promised by the auxiliary, of which Mrs. Morris Friedman of 4212 West Pine boulevard is president. Hyman Cohen is chairman of the campaign committee and Maurice Weil treasurer. The society, which is 14 years old, takes care of tuberculosis patients free of charge, and no lines are drawn as to creed or nationality. There are now more than 150 patients on the waiting list.

A St. Louis building in the Denver group will enable the local society to care for more patients from this city. Heretofore local patients have been treated in buildings erected by other cities. The society owns a farm of 64 acres and besides the seven hospital structures it has 34 house tents in a convalescent camp where more than 2000 tubercular patients are sheltered.

GOVERNMENT WOULD SETTLE TEXAS-OKLAHOMA LINE DISPUTE

Oklahoma Supports Federal Contention in Controversy Involving Burk-Burnett Oil Lands.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The Government will again enter the Texas-Oklahoma boundary controversy, a source of litigation since the Spanish-American treaty of 1819, Assistant Attorney-General Nebeker announced tonight. In a new series of suits, soon to be instituted, adjudication of the rights of Indian allottees will be sought and a definite establishment of the boundary line attempted because of Government interests involved.

Lands directly affected by the new proceedings constitute largely the flood plains of the Red River near Burk-Burnett, Texas, on which oil development in the last few years has increased values an estimated $100,000,000. Most of the land is on what is now the Texas side of the river, but the Government contention is that the river does not flow where it did when the Spanish-American treaty was signed.

The State of Oklahoma is supporting the Government's contention as a big revenue in Taxes from oil developments in involved.

In the treaty the south band of the river as then located was made the boundary between Spanish territory—in Texas—and that portion of the United States since included in the State of Oklahoma. In preparing its case the Department of Justice has conducted an extensive investigation of the vagaries of the river current for the last hundred years and Nebeker said it had been ascertained that its course had shifted from one side of the flood plains to the other. Meanwhile, even in the waters of the river itself, oil wells have been drilled.

IMPLEMENT DEALERS WILL HOLD CONVENTION HERE

Mississippi Valley Association Will Be Guest of St. Louis Organization.

The annual convention of the Mississippi Valley Implement Dealers' Association composed of implement, vehicle and heavy hardware dealers in the Mississppi Valley States, will be held at the Planters Hotel Jan. 20, 21 and 22.

The Implement, Vehicle and Hardware Association of St. Louis will be host to the delegates, and has prepared an elaborate program for the convention.

A banquet will be given to the delegates Jan. 22, at the Planters Hotel, when W. H. Stentz, president of the Implement, Vehicle and Hardware Association of St. Louis, will be toastmaster. Mayor Kiel will be one of the speakers.

The officers of the association are: W. R. Bost, Litchfield, Ill., president; John Berryman, Poplar Bluff, Mo., vice president; George Niess, Belleville, Ill., chairman of the Board of Directors.

FORMER COURT CLERKS WED

Workers Here Married at Oklahoma City.

Word was received here yesterday of the marriage at Oklahoma City of Miss Lura Gochenour, former deputy clerk of the St. Louis Court of Appeals, to John H. Murphy of Oklahoma City, former clerk of the same court. He appointed Miss Goechnour to the position 15 years ago and she served until Dec. 21 last, when she resigned, but did not tell of her plan to be married. The ceremony took place about Christmas. Miss Hazel English was promoted to the vacancy made by Mrs. Murphy's resignation. Murphy retired as court clerk here 12 years ago.

343 Births, 235 Deaths in Week.

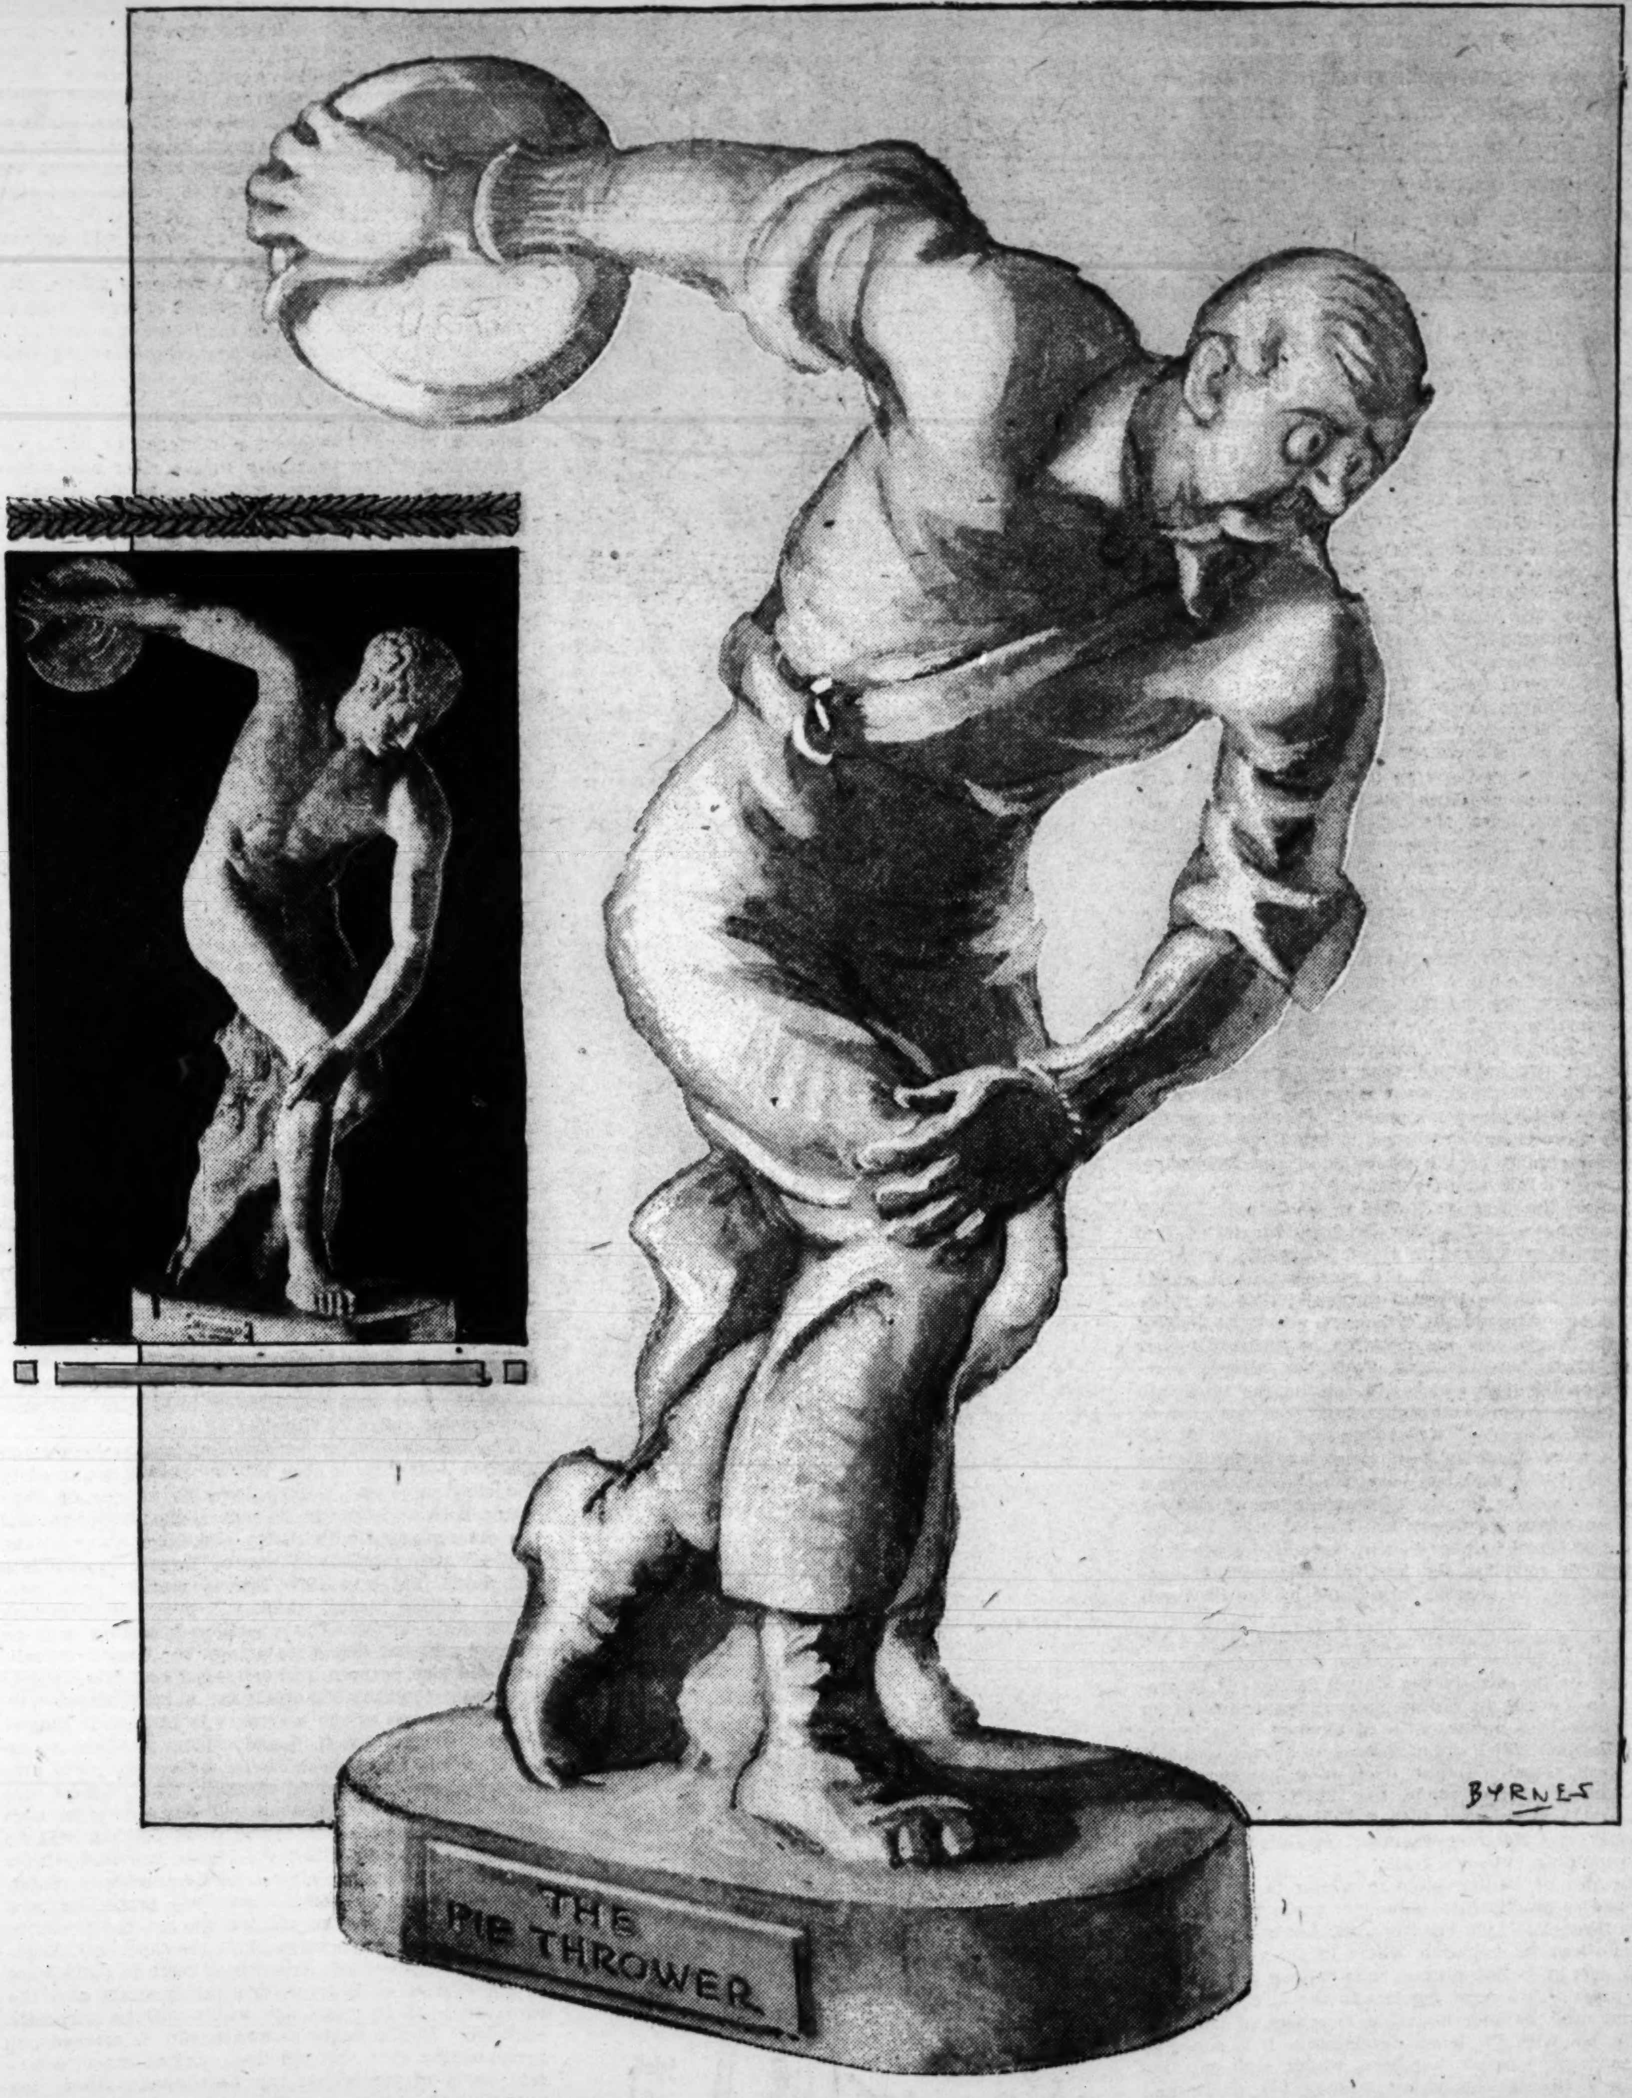
The POST-DISPATCH SUNDAY MAGAZINE

ST. LOUIS, MO., JANUARY 11, 1920.



"THE PIE THROWER"

(From "The Archelogic Review," 3500 A. D.)

This interesting example of sculpture of the 20th century was unearthed in excavations on the site of the ancient metropolis of St. Louis. Its similarity to the "Disc Thrower" by Mirone (inset) recalls the great advances made by the St. Louisans over the Greeks of a somewhat earlier period. In their contests for distance and accuracy, the Greeks threw a metal disc, while the missile thrown by the ancient St. Louisans at their human targets was apparently soft and flexible but of unknown composition.

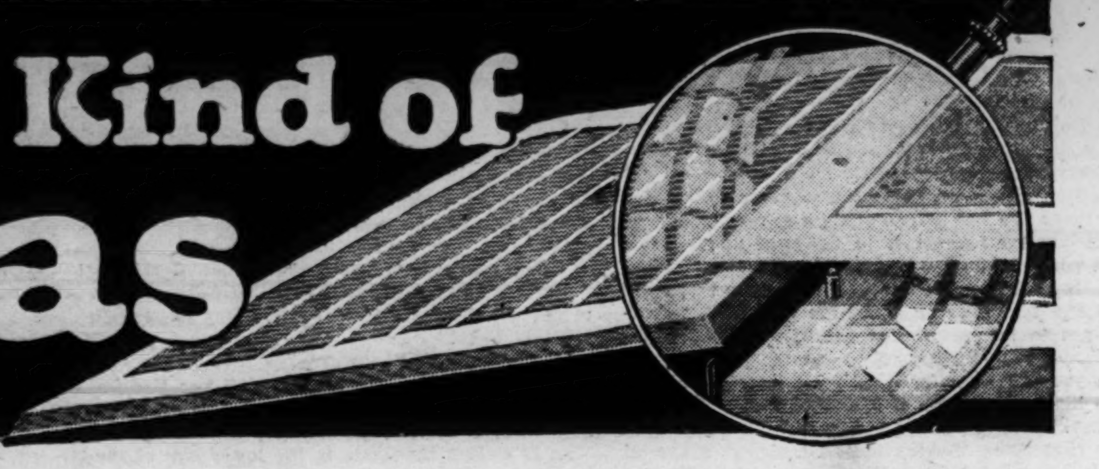
A New Kind of Atlas



Loose Leaf—Always Up to Date

OUR former atlases have gone hopelessly out of date. They do not show the results of the greatest war in history—the vast changes that have swept over the face of three continents, redistributing millions of square miles of territory—establishing new nations—drawing new boundary lines—revolutionizing the destinies of people.

Now a wonderful new kind of atlas is ready for you—an atlas that keeps pace with the world! Fresh from the press comes the NEW WORLD Loose-Leaf ATLAS, a superb new collection of maps that is up to date now and that can be kept up to date in the future. It is Loose Leaf, and it is provided with continuous Map Service that supplies new revised maps whenever changes occur anywhere.

Here is the atlas you have been waiting for—here are three hundred and fifty pages of finely engraved, large-scale, full-color maps and indexes that show the whole new world of today with all the recent changes in every country. This great new work constitutes a source of timely geographical knowledge—a wealth of authoritative information.

Each day, as you read your newspaper, as you talk with well informed people about national and international affairs, as you follow the course of commerce at home and abroad, you will appreciate the value of the NEW WORLD Loose-Leaf ATLAS. You will turn to it, just as you turn to your dictionary and encyclopedia, to obtain exact information and to increase and broaden your store of knowledge.

Map Service Free for Two Years

The NEW WORLD Loose-Leaf ATLAS will be kept up to date for two years without charge. Twice each year new maps will be issued to cover all changes that have occured in every part of the world. These revised maps are simply inserted in the Loose-Leaf Binder in place of the old maps. This new kind of atlas need never go out of date. It is the only atlas that keeps pace with the world.

The NEW·WORLD Loose Leaf ATLAS

The New Atlas You Need Now—The Last Atlas You Need Ever Buy

You need no longer be without an up-to-date atlas, and you need not wait until additional settlements have been made in the map, for this new kind of atlas keeps pace with the world—shows changes in the map whenever and wherever they occur.

Do You Know—

- Where the new Serbo-Croat-Slovak State is located?
- What territory Italy has received as a result of the war?
- Where the international port of Danzig is located?
- Where the Shantung Peninsula is?
- What territory was awarded to Belgium by the Treaty with Germany?
- How the "new" Poland appears on the map?
- What the new boundaries of Germany are?
- What Colonial possessions have been lost to Germany?
- Where the new Empire of Mongolia is located? The new Kingdom of Hejaz?
- What great new railroads have been constructed in South America? In Australia?
- How to figure parcel post rates in the United States?

If the world never changed no atlas would ever grow out of date. But with the rapid march of current events new atlases soon must become obsolete. Even the NEW WORLD ATLAS would soon be far behind the times if no provision were made for keeping always up to date. That is why we made it.

Loose Leaf—To Insure Permanence

The NEW WORLD Loose-Leaf ATLAS represents a distinct advance in the science of atlas production. Never before has an atlas been made that could be kept up to date—permanently abreast of developments, of changes political and economic, of advances in commerce, of new discoveries and explorations

World to Undergo Many Changes

Even now, after all the changes that have taken place in every part of the globe, an Atlas cannot be kept up to date unless provision is made for future changes.

Plebiscites are apt to wipe out many boundary lines. Self-determination may bring about drastic changes. Perhaps even an entire continent may be divorced from its present rule. Who can foretell all that will take place the next year or so?

Map Service Free for Two Years

For every change that is made, a new map will be furnished and for two years we will furnish these maps without charge.

Twice yearly, as the publishers have made new maps conforming to new conditions, they will be sent to those who own the NEW WORLD Loose-Leaf ATLAS. All that is necessary to bring the Atlas up to date is to put new maps in the binder.

After the first two years NEW WORLD Loose-Leaf ATLAS owners can purchase this always up-to-date map service for a nominal sum, thus insuring permanence to their Atlas.

A Few of the Features

Three hundred and fifty pages of maps and indexes. All maps are printed in full color on heavy, super-calendered paper, size of page 13¼ by 19½ inches. Rich, durable cover with special Lose-Leaf Binder.

New maps of all the nations, territories and islands of the world revised to date. Detail maps of important cities and harbors. Maps of the Hemispheres and the World. Exploration maps of North and South Poles. Language maps of Europe. Large-scale map of the Western Front. Sixteen pages of Historical maps showing the territorial development of the nations of the world from ancient times. A comprehensible collection of special maps, including Physical, Vegetation, Climate, Population, Economic and Agricultural Maps. Large-scale maps of the United States. United States Railroad Maps and key map showing standard time zones, parcel post units, U. S. Shipbuilding Map. Oil and gas map. Over one hundred pages of new State maps, showing each State on large scale and in great detail. A complete index of the world, the Index of the United States, including the name of every incorporated place, Post Office and town of over one hundred inhabitants, with latest population figures.

St. Louis Plans Finest Bird Sanctuary

Planting already begun on eight-acre tract near O'Fallon Park, where every convenience will be installed to entice permanent and transient guests from feathered kingdom—Both bushes and trees offered to visitors as dwelling places, with choice of marsh or lake for aquatic fowl—No cats need apply—Park Department undertakes project at instance of St. Louis Bird Club

ST. LOUIS is to essay the role of Pied Piper, not to a ravaging pest of rodents, but to the native song bird family. The luring instrument will not be a flexible flageolet, such as piped its summons in old Hamelin, but a bird sanctuary, to be located and delightfully developed on an eight-acre tract in the north end of the city, between O'Fallon Park and Bellefontaine Cemetery.

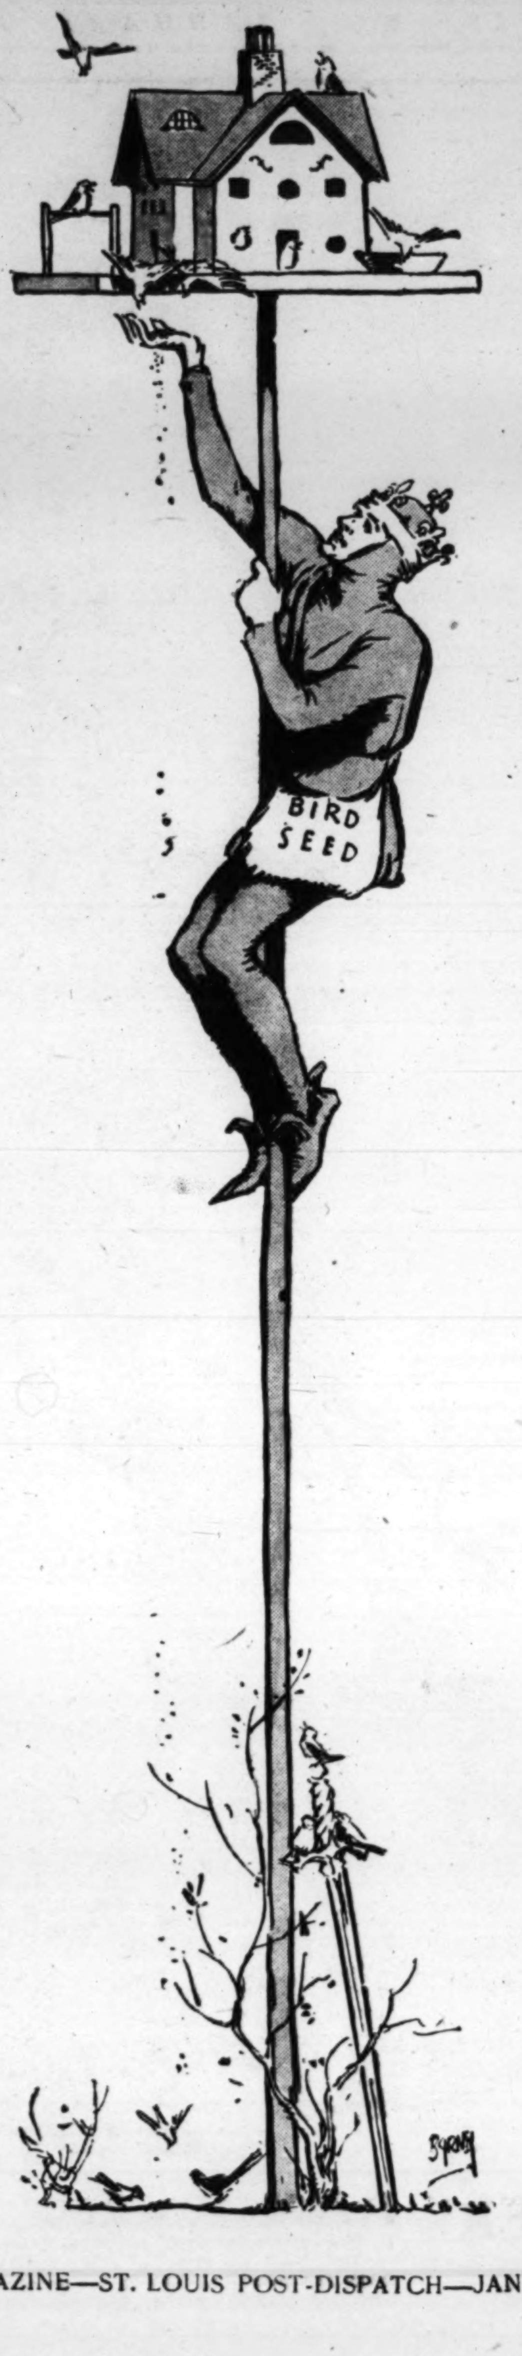
This bit of land, peculiarly well suited by nature to the purpose, will be turned by art into a miniature paradise for the feathered population of the air. Nothing which song birds are known to love and need will be left unsupplied. A scheme of planting has been worked out which will provide berries, seeds and other sorts of natural foods. Trees and bushes there will be in abundance for nesting and protection from the elements. There will be a clear lake and a section of marsh ground. The water will be stocked with small fishes for such visitors as relish a piscatorial diet. Bird baths and drinking fountains will be built, and last, but not least, the songsters will be protected from enemies, human and animal. And all this will be open for the bird lovers of the city to enjoy.

The demand for a reservation for birds has grown steadily in recent years, and has been emphasized by the rapid shrinkage in our parks and cities of every variety of bird life, except the English sparrow. The St. Louis Bird Club, of which Dr. Robert J. Terry is the president and moving spirit, has long advocated the proposition, which has now been put in concrete form by Nelson Cunliff, Commissioner of Parks and Recreation. It happened that the city possessed a piece of land, at the moment lying idle, which was as if made to order for such a project. This tract contains slightly more than eight acres, is heavily wooded and slopes irregularly in the direction of the Mississippi River, with a fall of approximately 70 feet.

Formerly the ground belonged to the Catholic Church and was known as the New Bremen Cemetery. Two years ago it was given to the municipality by Archbishop Glennon, but with the proviso that it should not be used for recreational purposes; that is, swimming pools, playgrounds, etc., were not to be located upon it. There was no objection to turning it over to the birds, however, and work has already commenced on the plan which will convert the tract into an al fresco aviary. All stones have been removed, in which operation care was taken not to disturb the soil. A fence has been built along the Taylor avenue boundary, and a path has been run through the heart of the reservation for the accommodation of visitors. The planting of shrubbery has been started, but, according to Commissioner Cunliff, several years will be required to complete the horticultural program contemplated by the plan as formulated by the St. Louis Bird Club.

This plan is an extensive one, and when carried out in detail will give this city the most complete institution of the sort in the United States. It is proposed, in a word, to restore natural conditions as far as feasible in a public park, developing in particular those features which are calculated to attract bird life. The work actually divides itself into four parts—the development of the woods, the careful treatment of open tracts to conform with conditions in the fields, perfecting the water environment, establishing a fence and providing entrance trails.

The idea of feeding birds in winter is not a novel one, and is practiced in municipal parks in numerous cities throughout the country. St. Louis already has four stations in its parks, where in the cold weather grain, suet and other provender is thrown to the birds. This practice has done wonders in the direction of attracting and holding desirable members of the bird family, but with the latest development it is hoped to gather vastly greater numbers, which will populate not only the sanctuary but restock the parks and surrounding country. Besides, the little acreage will be a spot of indescribable charm for those who love to watch and study birds.



Among the birds likely to avail themselves of the preserve, either as a permanent dwelling place or a visiting ground, may be mentioned cardinals, juncos, jays, bobwhites, wood thrushes, towhees, robins, thrashers, doves, grackles, flickers, red-winged blackbirds, Maryland yellow throats, kingfishers, snipe, sandpipers, grebes, coots, song sparrows, white-throated sparrows, Carolina wrens, martins, bluebirds, downy and red-headed woodpeckers, wrens, chickadees, screech owls, sparrow hawks, tufted titmice, crested fly catchers, whip-poor-wills, larks, quails and possibly such itinerants as green herons, bitterns, stray ducks and cranes. Semi-domesticated mallards, wood ducks, etc., will be introduced as permanent features in the preserve.

In developing the woods an effort will be made to produce a canopy of trees and an undergrowth of saplings, shrubs, bushes and herbaceous plants. It is desirable that the woodland consist of native trees and shrubs, so that native birds and those stopping in the spring and fall migrations may find familiar fruits, seeds and insects upon which to feed. Many of the mature trees now on the place will, for various reasons, be removed, as will all undesirable growths of smaller order. The absence of factories and apartment houses and proximity to the river and wooded reserves of the park and cemeteries furnish extremely favorable conditions for plant life.

Reproduction of natural conditions, however, will be tempered somewhat. Bushes, the fruit of which is congenial to a number of species of birds, will be generally planted. Certain fruit trees are to be introduced. An attractive feature of the plan consists of a scheme of grouping together two or three species of shrubs, or shrubs and trees, each presenting some definite characteristic. In so far as they affect bird life, some of the groups will serve only as nesting sites. Others will function as screens for protection in winter, while many will be useful as producing food.

For example, the plan states, a thicket of elder and wild rose affords a nesting place for thrushes, winter cover for chickadees and juncos and food for robins, catbirds, kingbirds and many others. This familiar roadside group presents a wonderful display of pink and white flowers at the same time. Other beautiful combinations are the red bud, cedar and wild plum, or cedar and dogwood, the cedar giving excellent protection against storms and the plum, with its prickly limbs, providing defense against the cat and other enemy animals. Seven sections of woodland are planned to present each some definite characteristic related to the needs and customs of birds.

For such birds as do not take kindly to the woods, there will be laid out open tracts, to be planted with grain in small patches, and otherwise simulating the countryside in typical farm areas. Certain of the wooded sections will be developed in relation to water. In detail of things to plant, little has been overlooked. The entire botanical list has been combed, and such selections made as will be useful and attractive. Among the most familiar to dwellers in the Mississippi Valley may be mentioned hazel, blackberry, wild gooseberry, Indian current, wild rose, buck thorn, elder, wild blackberry, wahoo, sassafras, wild crab, haws, hackberry, spice bush, bladder nut, iron wood, bitter sweet, trumpet vine, sumac, hawthorne, honey locust, sorghum, wild beans, sunflower, milk peas and endless grasses and wild flowers.

The fact that water for drinking and bathing is an absolute essential to bird life is taken account of in the sanctuary plan. There will be a lake of clear water, with an island in its center, one shore bare and the other planted with rushes and other water plants.

The water supply will not be turned directly into this pond, but will flow over a marshy area, providing shallow water, which will prove an attraction for wading birds. The overflowed section will be planted with cat tail, delta potato, bur weed, wild millet, wild rice, wapato, pickerel weed and other shoots producing toothsome morsels for hungry birds.

While success of the sanctuary is admittedly largely dependent upon the food and shelter it offers, to an equal extent will its success be measured by the protection given against bird enemies. The greatest care must be taken to guard against destruction of eggs and young by cats and dogs. Good policing will do much, but a good meshed wire fence, provided with a cat-proof device, is almost indispensable. Stout, thorny hedges are another excellent protection, and these will doubtless be planted around the preserve. There will be a main entrance to the sanctuary, located on the high ground, from which there is a fine view of the Mississippi River, with pleasing vistas over the sanctuary. Made roads and walks will be purposely excluded. In the fields pathways will be marked out by mowing a strip through them, and entrance to certain parts of the woods can be opened without the necessity of laying out paths.

There will be a number of features not in the category of nature, but which will still be pleasing to the the sample, we"——

"But I tell you we got to have it tonight. Tomorrow's Sunday and the lady who"——

"No, no; with my husband not here I can't let go no sample. As a special favor, sir, we'll make you one up in a week."

Miss Dobriner stooped forward, her eyes narrow as slits.

"Seventy-five, spot down."

Indecision vanished as rags before Abracadabra.

"We make it a rule not to sell our samples, but"——

"That carriage has got to be delivered at my house tonight before 10."

"Sir, that can't go out tonight. It's got to be packed special and sent over on a flat-top dray. These carriages got to be packed like they was babies themselves."

"Can you beat that for luck!" He inserted his fingers in his tall collar as if it choked him. "Can you beat that!"

"The first thing Monday morning, sir, as a special favor, but that carriage can't go out tonight. We got one man does nothing but pack them for delivery."

He plunged his hands into his pockets and paced the narrow aisle down the center of the room.

"We got to get that carriage over there tonight if—if we have to wheel it over!"

Miss Dobriner clapped her hands in an ecstasy of inspiration.

"Good! We'll wheel it home. We can make it by midnight, what you bet?"

He turned upon her, but with a ray in his eyes.

"Say, Gert, that ain't such a worse idea, but"——

"No buts. The night is young and I know a fellow used to walk from the Bronx to Brooklyn with his girl every Sunday."

"Sure! What's an eight-mile walk on a spring night like this? It's all cleared up and stopped raining. Only, gee, I—I hate to be getting home all hours again."

She flipped him a gesture.

"Say, it's not my surprise party you're giving."

"It's not that, Gert, only I don't want to keep her waiting until she gets sore enough to have the edge taken off the surprise when it does come."

"Say, suit yourself. It's not my kid I'm going to wheel out tomorrow. I should worry."

"I'll do it."

"You're not doing me a favor. With my cold and my marcel, a three-hour walk ain't the one thing in my life I'm craving."

"I'll roll it over the bridge and be home by 12 easy. You take the subway, Gert; it's too big a trot for you."

"Nix! I don't start anything I can't finish."

She cocked her hat to a forward angle, so that the hen pheasant's tail swung rakishly over her face, took an Hellenic stride through the aisle of perambulators, flung her arms across her bosom in an attitude of extravaganza, then tossed off a military salute.

"Ready, march!"

"You're a peach, Gert!"

"I've tried pretty near everything in my life; why not wheel another fellow's baby carriage for another fellow's wife's baby across Brooklyn Bridge at midnight? Whoops! Why not!"

"We're off, then, Gert."

"Forward march!"

"Forward march!"

"Keep your eye on the steering wheel, Phonzie, and remember, 10 miles is speed limit on the bridge. One, two, three! Gawd, if my friend from Carson City could only see me now!"

Out on the drying sidewalk they leaned to each other and the duet of their merriment ran ahead of them down the meager street and found out its dark corners.

"Honest, Phonzie, won't the girls just bust when they hear this!"

"And, Mil, poor old girl, she's right weak and full of nerves now, but she'll laugh loudest of all when she knows why I went with Slews."

"Yes. She—can—laugh—loudest—of—all."

"What?"

"Come on, or we won't get home until morning."

And on the crest of her insouciance she thrust out her arm, giving the shining white perambulator a running push from the rear, so that it went rolling lightly from her and with a perfect gear action down the slight incline of sidewalk. They were after it at a bound, light-heeled and full of laughter.

"Whoops, my dear!"

"Whoa!"

At a turn in the dark street the lights of the bridge flashed suddenly upon them, swung in high festoons across an infinitude of night. Above, a few majestic stars, new coined, gleamed in a clear sky.

"What do you bet that with me at the wheel, we can clear the bridge in 30 minutes, Phonzie?"

"Sure we can; but here, let me shove."

She elbowed him aside, the banter gone suddenly from her voice.

"No, let me."

She fell to pushing it silently along. Stars came out in her eyes. He advanced to her pace, making his stride to hers, fancies like colored beads slipping along the slender thread of his thoughts.

"Swell sight, ain't it, Gert, the harbor lights so bright and the sky so deep?"

Silence.

"Seeing so much sky all at once reminds me, Gert. You know about that midnight blue satin Hertz had the brass to dump back on us because the skirt was too tight. Huh?"

Her eyes were far and away.

"Huh, whatta you know about that, Gert?"

Her hands, gripped around the handlebars, were full of nerves; she could feel them jumping in her palm.

"Huh, Gert?"

"What you say, Phonzie?"

"All right, don't answer. Moon all you like for my part." And he fell to whistling as he strode beside her, his eyes on the light-spangled outline of the city.

At 12 o'clock the lights in the lower hall of the uptown apartment house had been extinguished. All but one, which burned like a tired eye beneath the ornate staircase. The misty quiet of midnight, which is as heavy as a veil, hung in the corridors. Miss Gertie Dobriner entered first and holding wide the door between them, Alphonse Michelson at the front wheels, they tilted the white carriage up the narrow staircase, their whispers floating through the gloom.

"Easy there, Phonzie!"

"There!"

"Watch out!"

"Whew, that was a close shave!"

"Here, let me unlock the door. Sh-h-h!"

"Don't go, Gert! Come on in and after the big show I'll send you home in a cab."

"Nix! After a three-hour walk, a street car will look good enough to me."

"Well, then, come on in, just a minute, Gert. I want you to see the fun. What you bet she's asleep in the front room, sore as thunder, too. We'll sneak back and dump the kid and wheel him in on her."

"Aw, no, I—I got to go now, Phonzie."

"Come on, Gert, don't be a quitter. Don't you want to see her face when she knows that Slews has been all a fluke. Come on, Gert, I'll wake up the kid if I try to dump him in alone."

"Well, for just a minute. I—I don't want to butt in on your and—and her fun."

They entered with the stealthy espionage of thieves, and in the narrow hallway she waited, while he tiptoed to the bedroom and back again, his lips pursed in a "sh-h-h."

He was pink-faced and full of caution, raising each foot in exaggerated stealth. Between them they maneuvered the carriage down the hallway.

"Sh-h-h! If she's awake she can hear every word in the front room!"

From her wakeful couch Madam Moores raised herself on her elbow, cupping her ear in her palm and straining her glance down the long hallway. The tears had dried on her cheeks.

"Here, Gert, you dump in these things and let me lift the kid."

"No, no, let me! Go way, Phonzie, you'll wake him! I just want her to be too surprised to open her mouth when she sees him sleeping in it like a top."

She threw back the net drapery and leaned to the heart of the crib, and the blood ran in a flash across her face.

"Little darling—little Phonzie darling!"

"Don't wake him, Gert."

She was reluctant to withdraw herself.

"His little darling fists, so pink and curled up! Little Phonzie darling!"

He hung over each process, proud and awkward.

"Little darling—little darling—here, Phonzie, help."

They transferred the burden, the child not moving on his pillow. In the shallow heart of the perambulator, the high froth of pillows about him, he lay like a bud, his soft profile against the lace and his skin like the innermost petal of a rose.

"Phonzie, ain't he—ain't he the softest little darling! Gawd, how—how she'll love to be wheeling him."

His fingers fumbled with excitement and fell to strapping and buckling with a great show and a great ineffectuality.

"Here, help me let down the glass top. Sh-h-h! Every word carries in this flat."

"Now!"

"You wheel him down and in on her, Gert!"

She stiffened with a new diffidence.

"No, no, it's your surprise."

"You done all the work on the job as much as me, and it's half your present, anyways. You roll him down the hall and stand next to her till she wakes u She's a tight little sleeper, but if she don't wake soo I'll drop a book or something. Go on, Gert, roll it in

"No, no, Phonzie! You and her have your fun o alone. It's your fun, anyway, not mine. This piece o rolling stock will roll herself along home now."

"Aw, now"——

"Anyways, I'm dead. Look what a rag I am. Loo at the hem of this skirt! The next time I do a craz thing like walk from Brooklyn I want to be burned oil."

"Now, Gert, stick around and I'll send you home in a cab."

But she was out and past him, craning her nec backward through the aperture of the open door.

"Go to it, Phonzie! It's your fun, anyways. Yours and hers. S'long!"

He had already begun his triumphant passage down the hallway and on her couch among her pillow madam closed her eyes in a simulation of sleep and against the tears that scalded her lids.

In an eastbound car Gertie Dobriner found a seat well toward the front. Across the aisle a day laborer on a night debauch threw her a watery stare and a thick-tongued, thick-brogued remark. A charwoman, with a newspaper bundle hugged under one arm, dozed in the seat alongside, her head lolling from shoulder to shoulder. Raindrops had long since dried on the window pane. Gertie Dobriner cupped her chin in her palm and gazed out at the quiet street and the shuttered shops hurtling past.

Twice the conductor touched her shoulder, his hand oustretched for fare. She sprang about, fumbling in her purse for a coin, but with difficulty, because through the hot blur of her tears she could only grope ineffectually. When she finally found a 5-cent piece, a tear had wiggle-waggled down her cheek and fell, splotching the back of her glove.

Across the aisle the day laborer leaned to her, batting at the hen pheasant's tail in her hat, and a cold alcoholic tear dripping from the corner of his own eye.

"Cheer up, my gir-rl," he said, through a beard like old moss, "cheer up and be a spor-r-rt!"

city's bird guests. These include nesting boxes, winter feeding stations, baths and drinking fountains, and perhaps a small house or shelter at the lake for semi-domesticated mallards and wood ducks. It is pointed out that as nesting boxes are seized upon by common sparrows, a vigorous offensive must be waged to keep that little pest of birddom out of the sanctuary. A tastefully designed winter feeding station could be made an object of interest and delight, rivaling the bird bath in summer.

The St. Louis Bird Club, efforts of which have done so much toward securing the sanctuary, will keep a supervising eye upon it. Members are expected to arrange for the necessary equipment. An opportunity is here afforded to contribute further in the field of teaching boys and girls the pleasure of intelligently watching the birds and the value of bird life.

La-may Face Powder is now used by over a million American women!

A specialist has perfected a pure face powder guaranteed harmless to the most delicate baby skin. It beautifies wonderfully, because it helps to clear and lighten the skin and protect the complexion from blemishes. And it really stays on better than any other face powder. Of course, every one knows the famous La-may Powder (French, Poudre L'Ame). This is the powder that does not contain starchy rice powder or dangerous white lead to make it adhere. Five thousand dollars reward will be given any chemist who finds that La-may contains any white lead or rice powder. All dealers carry the large sixty-cent box, and many dealers also carry the generous thirty-cent size. When you use this harmless powder and see how beautifully it improves your complexion you will understand why La-may so quickly became the most popular beauty powder sold in New York. We will give you five thousand dollars if you can buy a better face powder anywhere at any price. Herbert Roystone, 16 East 18th St., New York. Save this notice.

Living Apart, Though Happily Married

This is the stranger-than-fiction plan which Nina Wilcox Putnam, the noted novelist, and her husband are trying out so as to give romance a chance during the honeymoon and insure contentment ever after

By SARAH MacDOUGALL.

Nina Wilcox Putnam, recent bride of Robert J. Sanderson, and her two-year-old son by a former marriage, on terrace of her home in Connecticut.

"SOMETIMES it happens that too much of a good thing is the only thing that will turn you against it. Do you get me?"

That philosophic reflection by Marie, the girl who gallops through the pages of Nina Wilcox Putnam's latest novel, might serve as a text on which to hang this story. The thing that set Marie pondering on the ultimate realities was a too piggish patronage of Ma's cream cakes. A text is a text. Neither Marie nor the cakes had anything to do with this story, which is about a new-fangled marriage and a modern feminist and an old-fashioned man.

Before his marriage a few weeks ago to Nina Wilcox Putnam, the authoress, Robert J. Sanderson, district manager of the Southern New England Telephone Co., lived alone in his bachelor apartment in Bridgeport, Conn. He is living alone there still. After a brief honeymoon at the Hotel Brevoort in New York the bride and bridegroom parted, he going back to his lonesome flat, she to her own stately home, "The Christmas Trees," in Madison, Conn. These two were wedded and parted, and now they are working out Utopian ideals of their own in order that they may live happily ever after.

Not only did the bride go back to her old home. She went back to her old name, or almost the old name. She has announced that hereafter she will be known as "Miss" Nina Wilcox Putnam. Which leaves the tall Mr. Sanderson—he stands 6 feet 3—without a Mrs. Sanderson to call his own, except in a very intimate circle of friends. And these all call her Nina.

Ever since she could push a pencil across a sheet of white paper or get any kind of an audience for her ideas, Nina Wilcox Putnam has been a fiery evangelist for the economic independence of woman. She argued that clean romance hadn't a chance in the world because marriage implied that woman was dependent on her husband for support, and how could either a man or a woman know whether the wife loved her husband so long as marriage supplied a home for her and a servant for him?

So I journeyed up to Madison, Conn., to ask "Miss" Putnam how she liked her own matrimonial medicine. If she had a system that would carry the charm and the delightful uncertainty of courtship down to the end of married life and a guarantee that boredom would never have a place at the fireside, I thought she ought to pass it along to this Magazine's readers.

The "study" is a study in wistaria and mahogany, and everything in it looks very old except the exuberant young authoress with the amber eyes and joyous laugh, and a cheerful fire that crackled in the grate.

Miss Putnam seated herself on a high-backed Spanish chair upholstered in red and gold brocade. Between us was a venerable mahogany table piled with books and magazines and papers. Wistaria silk draperies hung from the two sets of double windows. An old sofa and some lazy looking chairs were covered with faded velvet in the same shade. On the walls were faded old portraits of Wilcoxes and Davenports and Winthrops, bygone members of the family that settled in Madison in 1637. Across the hall was a rather formal and very tidy drawing room in old rose. You wouldn't be interested in that room. I can't imagine any of Miss Putnam's guests sitting there except, perhaps, to play the piano.

I asked the bride whether she wasn't planning to go to Bridgeport to live with her husband, and you should have seen the way she looked at me.

"Really, you know, we never thought of that," she confessed. "No, I expect I shall stay right here. As long as Jack's business keeps him in Bridgeport he will stay there. We do manage to see each other occasionally, though. And he calls me up every evening. I have always maintained that when a woman is leading a professional life she and her husband should live on a 50—50 basis financially. If I am to hold up my half of the family burden I must have an opportunity to do my work under the most congenial conditions, just as he has to do his work.

"If my husband had to get away to business from this house every morning he would create a very disturbing element. It would take me a long time to get settled down for the day. If he were here he would fill up the whole house, so far as I am concerned. If he didn't disturb me that way it would be all off—our love affair, I mean. I hope he will get to be such a habit that he will seem like a familiar and unobtrusive piece of furniture that is always in its place. I love Jack Sanderson more than anything else in the world, but, believe me, I couldn't live with him every day and do good work. I love New York, too, but I couldn't work there.

"All through the ages, while man was the bread winner, woman surrounded him with comfort and quiet. Her job was to wait on him and pet him and look out for his comfort. For a woman who has no other profession, running a house and taking care of a man is a big job in itself. I maintain that it ought to be professionalized on a definite economic plan, especially if they have children. I have been a self-supporting woman for many years. I didn't marry Jack Sanderson for a home. I married him because I love him.

"We are great pals. He gives me lots of ideas, and he doesn't charge anything for them. He is witty and genial, and I find in him an intellectual tonic. He is a business man and I am a writer, but we have many tastes in common. We both like domesticity and gardening and driving motor cars, and we adore children and animals, and—and we love each other. Sometimes I get so lonesome that I can't stand it another minute, and I call him up by telephone.

"Sometimes I take a day off and visit him. Sometimes he takes a couple of days off and comes here to see me, and no matter what the hour may be, I call it the noon whistle and put my work away until he leaves. We have an apartment in New York at 12 Fifth avenue, just across from the Brevoort, and we often go there for the week-end. We keep all our dress clothes there, and we play with friends uptown and downtown, and then we come back to the country ready for work."

The bride doesn't live alone, by a long way, even if her husband does. First, there is her 2-year-old son, John Francis Putnam. Then there is the cook's baby, a chocolate-colored pickaninny, almost 2; and the secretary's baby, about the same age; and there are the cook and the nurse and the secretary, and most important of all is Dunn, the colored steward, who plans the meals and runs the house for this sizable family. And there are a couple of cats, Pico and Gallagher, who have their breakfast every morning with the lady of the house and her son. And then, because the upkeep for all these has to come out of the study, household activities are run on a plan to protect the authoress from intrusion until the mailman makes his daily visit early in the afternoon.

I suspected before I saw her that one of the reasons she lives and works in Madison is because it is almost impossible for New York friends to drop in for tea, unless they start before sunrise. The suspicion was well founded. Even the morning paper doesn't get there until the day's work is done.

"The Christmas Trees," a big, old, mid-Victorian house with green shutters, takes its name from four splendid evergreens that stand like silent sentinels in a row on the lawn right in front of the house. Home and trees and lawn suggest plenty of leisure and plenty of room, and they overlook Madison Green, a spacious park, bordered with stately old trees.

Miss Putnam learned long ago that it is bad for genius to smother it with household cares. She was married at 18 to Robert Faulkner Putnam, a member of the publishing house of that name. He died in 1918. In the meantime Nina Wilcox Putnam had made a name for herself as a successful author of books, magazine stories and moving picture scenarios. So she is staying by the old name for business reasons.

"There has been a great deal of silly talk about how bad it is for a creative artist to marry," she went on. "That's the trashiest twaddle. Marriage, if it is anything, ought to be the finest form of sympathetic friendship. Nobody stands in greater need of sympathetic comradeship than the creative artist. I maintain that a woman is a better wife and is saner and healthier and happier and a better comrade if she sticks to her job—whatever that may be. Everybody knows that boredom is the deathknell of love.

"No, I do not think for a minute that my husband and myself would tire of each other by being together every day. But the inevitable routine might interfere with our work. And for that reason I think this arrangement of separate homes is the sanest and most conservative plan imaginable for two busy persons. It leaves us both perfectly free, and the mere fact that we have a chance to get lonesome for each other injects an element of romance that sometimes fades out of ordinary married life. I've studied this question of freedom for a long time. I've been a Greenwich Villager off and on for 10 years, and I am convinced that there is no real freedom, that writers and artists never really arrive anywhere until"——

The telephone rang, and that sentence was never finished. Next thing I heard, in, oh! such velvet-tender tones, was:

"Hello, how do you do? Oh, pretty good. I finished a chapter today. I'm so lonesome, Jack. Can't you come over Friday?"

And so on, for nearly 10 minutes. Unless district superintendents have special rates for long-distance calls it must take quite a lot of the literary income to go 50—50 on the Putnam-Sanderson telephone bill.

"Let's go for a ride," suggested Miss Putnam. "I haven't had the car out today."

Artist-Priest and Church He Built on Hill-Top

homage to the Mother of Christ, who is holding the Infant Savior in her arms. The face of the late Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria-Hungary represents the kingly worship, while the red, white and blue are there to show the devotion of the people of a democratic form of government. Pope Benedict is also in front, standing next to the Rt. Rev. John B. Morris, Bishop of Little Rock; Abbot Ignatus of New Subiaco and lastly Father Placidus himself, kneeling at the door of the church addressing his petition to the patroness of the congregation. This picture was done by the artist Fuchs in the pre-war days, and he insisted on placing the pastor's picture there in order to complete the group.

In one of the largest groups of figures illustrating the appearance of Christ in Jerusalem among the learned men when His mother feared that He was lost, taken from the second chapter of Luke, the pastor paid a pretty compliment to Joseph M. Duerr, organist and teacher for more than 20 years. He it was who organized the school work and took charge of all the music and choir, and the pastor placed him in the foreground, holding a scroll in his hand, while he intently watches the Child Jesus in the center of the painting.

Christ scourging the money changers from the temple, as narrated in St. Matthew, is represented in a panel scene 9 by 5 1-2 feet and is an adaptation of one of Schumacher's Munich decorations. In this large scene, with its many figures, the artist who came over from Wuertemberg, Germany, to co-operate with his old friend in the decorative work, is plainly shown with his brushes and paints prepared to make a hasty exit with the others. Fuchs, who has been in this country since the work began, is soon to return to his native land to claim the bride who has been awaiting his coming, and when they are married they propose to come here and make America their permanent home.

The altars, like the organ in the church at Altus, are only temporary. Later the black walnut will give way to marble, and the small organ will probably be replaced with a pipe instrument that will be in keeping with the richness of the other furnishings. The paintings on either side of the main altar are 4 by 10 feet and represent the Sacrifice of Melchizedek and the Sacrifice of Isaac. Above the altar the Virgin is shown as the lily among thorns. These paintings are on a gold mosaic background which gives them a very rich and soft tint. The lettering on the frieze contains the "Sanctus." On the north side of the church there are medallions on gold mosaic representing Sts. Agatha, Gertrude, Elisabeth, Rose of Lima, Gregory the Great, Boniface, Henry and Placidus. On the opposite side are paintings of others saints. In other scenes there are portraits of Pope Leo XIII, during whose pontificate the church was planned; Abbot Ignatius Conrad of the Benedictine Order and Bishop Morris of Little Rock. People who have visited many churches and studied the decorations say that there are few places where there is such a colorful display as can be seen in the stone church of Altus. When the sun streams through the thick stained-glass windows, thus softening its glare, the effect is particularly impressive.

and any person reading the poster would have a difficult time asserting enough will power to avoid the show. He also showed some artistic dash in getting up the pictures of his bearded lady, sword swallower, snake charmer and Hindu fortune teller. His fat lady is particularly impressive, with her succession of chins and brobdignagian limbs. He made this picture, he says, long before the war and the advent of Herbert Hoover. Accordingly there was no suggestion of restraint in piling up tissue. He adds that with the present high cost of living he would not be so generous in outlining this stock sideshow attraction.

Thorpe plans to bundle up his entire outfit the next time the Arts and Crafts Exposition is held and set it out where all who attend may see the results of his long career of intensive whittling. Before this is done, however, the decorations on the wagons will be gone over thoroughly and the band outfits will receive a new dressing of gold leaf.

REAL HAIR GROWER FOUND AT LAST

New Drug Borandine Causes Big Stir Among Hair Specialists.

$1000 REWARD IF WE FAIL ON GUARANTEE.

Those who have become prematurely gray or who are troubled with scalp or hair diseases, such as falling hair, dandruff, baldness, itching scalp, etc., know full well the humiliation that they cause. There is no need, however, of such conditions. These troubles can be quickly overcome by Borandine, the new drug recently discovered at the Scientific Research Laboratories at Scranton, Pa. Since its discovery a little over a year ago, Borandine has been found to contain marvelous properties for producing a new growth of hair. In subjecting it to various tests in the worst cases of baldness, dandruff, itching scalp, etc., the results obtained by the experimenting chemists were considered almost miraculous. In every case it was found that where there were any hair roots left it would produce a new and luxuriant growth of hair in from four to six weeks' time. Gray or faded hair was often restored to its natural color in from 10 to 14 days' time. In minor cases of scalp and hair diseases, such as dandruff, falling hair, itching scalp, etc., it was found that these unnatural conditions were corrected and often completely cured by two or three applications. The discovery of Borandine will without doubt put an end to the troublesome scalp and hair diseases that are becoming so common with the American people. Any one who suffers from scalp or hair troubles should write the Scientific Research Laboratories, Dept. 127, Scranton, Pa., at once, and full particulars of this new discovery will be sent you in a sealed envelope free of charge.

Rheumatism

A Home Cure Given by One Who Had It

In the spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally, I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of curing your rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

"Cure Your Rupture Like I Cured Mine"

Old Sea Captain Cured His Own Rupture After Doctors Said "Operate or Death."

His Remedy and Book Sent Free.

Captain Collings sailed the seas for many years; then he sustained a bad double rupture that soon forced him to not only remain ashore, but kept him bedridden for years. He tried doctor after doctor and truss after truss. No results! Finally, he was assured that he must either submit to a dangerous and abhorrent operation or die. He did neither! He cured himself instead.

"Fellow Men and Women, You Don't Have To Be Cut Up, and You Don't Have To Be Tortured By Trusses."

Captain Collings made a study of himself, of his condition—and at last he was rewarded by the finding of the method that so quickly made him a well, strong, vigorous and happy man.

Anyone can use the same method; it's simple, easy, safe and inexpensive. Every ruptured person in the world should have the Captain Collings book, telling all about how he cured himself, and how anyone may follow the same treatment in their own home without any trouble. The book and medicine are FREE. They will be sent prepaid to any rupture sufferer who will fill out the below coupon. But send it right away—now—before you put down this paper.

By FANNY HURST

IN THE great human democracy, revolution cannot uncrown the builder of bridges to place upon his throne the builder of pantry shelves. Gray matter and blue blood and white pigment are not dynasties of man's making. Accident of birth and not primogeniture makes master minds and mulattoes, seamstresses and rich men's sons. Wharf rats are more often born than made.

That is why, in this dynasty not of man's making, weavers gone blind from the intricacies of their queen's coronation robe, can kneel at her hem to kiss the cloth of gold that cursed them. A peasant can look at a poet with no thought to barter his black bread and lentils for a single gossamer fancy. Backstair slaveys vie with each other whose master is more mighty. And this is the story of Millie Moores, who, with no anarchy in her heart and no feud with humany democracy, could design for women to whom befell the wine and pearl dog-collars of life, frocks as sheer as webb, and on her knees beside them, her mouth full of pins and her sole necklace a tape measure, thrill to see them garbed in the glory of her labor.

Indeed, when the iridescent bubble of reputation floated out from her modest dressmaking rooms in East Twenty-third street, Millie Moores, whom youth had rushed past because she had no leisure for it, felt her heart open like a grateful flower when life brought her more chores to do. And when one day a next-year's-model limousine drew up outside her small doorway, with the colored fashion sheet stuck in the glass panel, and one day another, and then one spring day three of them in shining procession along her curb, something cheeped in Millie Moores' heart and she doubled her prices.

And then, because ladies long of purse and short of breath found three dark flights difficult, and because the first small fruit of success burst in Millie Moore's mouth, releasing its taste of wine, she withdrew her three-figure savings account from the Manhattan Trust Co., rented an elevator-service, mauve-upholstered establishment on middle Broadway, secured the managerial services of a slender young man fresh from the Louis Quinz rooms of Madam Roth, Fifth avenue costumier, tripled her prices and emerged from the brown cocoon of Twenty-third street, Madam Moores, Modiste.

Two years later, three perfect 36 sibyls promenaded the mauve display rooms, tempting those who waddle with sleeveless frocks that might have been designed for the Venus of Milo warmed to life.

The presiding young man, slim and full of the small ways that ingratiate, and with a pomaded glory of tow hair rippling back in a double wave that women's fingers itched to caress and men's hands itched to thresh, pushed forward the mauve velvet chairs with a waiter's servility but none of his humility; officiated over the crowded pages of the crowded appointment book, jotted down measurements with an imperturbability that grew for every inch the tapeline measured over and above.

Last, Madam Moores, her small figure full of nerves; two spots of red high on her cheeks; her erstwhile graying hairs, a bit premature and but a sprinkling of them, turned to the inward of a new and elaborate coiffure; and meeting this high tide with a smile, newly enhanced by bridgework and properly restrained to that dimension of insolence demanded by the rich of those who serve them well.

In the springtime Fifth avenue and Sixth avenue turn lightly to thoughts of Narragansett Pier and Bronx Park. Fifth avenue sheds its furs and Sixth avenue its woolen underwear. At the dusk of one such a day, when the taste of summer was like poppy leaves crushed between the teeth, and open street cars and open shirtwaists blossomed forth even as the distant larkspur in the distant field, Madam Moores beheld the electric-protection door swing behind the last customer and relaxed frankly against a table piled high with fabrics of a dozen sheens.

"Whew, thank heaven, she's gone!"

To a symphony of 6-o'clock whistles the rumble of machines from the workrooms suddenly ceased.

"Turn out the shower light, Phonzie, and see that Van Nord's black lace goes out in time for opera tonight. When she telephoned at noon I told her it was on the way."

Mr. Alphonse Michelson hurtled a mauve-colored footstool and hastened rearward toward the swinging door that led to the emptying workrooms. The tallest of the perfect 36s, stepping out of her beaded slippers into sturdier footwear of the street, threw him a smile as he passed that set her glittering earrings and metal-yellow ringlets bobbing like bells in a breeze.

"Hand me the shoe buttoner, Phonzie; the doctor says stooping is bad for my hairpins."

Their laughter, light as foam, met and mingled.

"Oh, you nervie Gertie!"

"What's your hurry, Phonzie, dearie?"

"I don't see you stopping me."

"Fine chance, with her crouching over there, ready to spring."

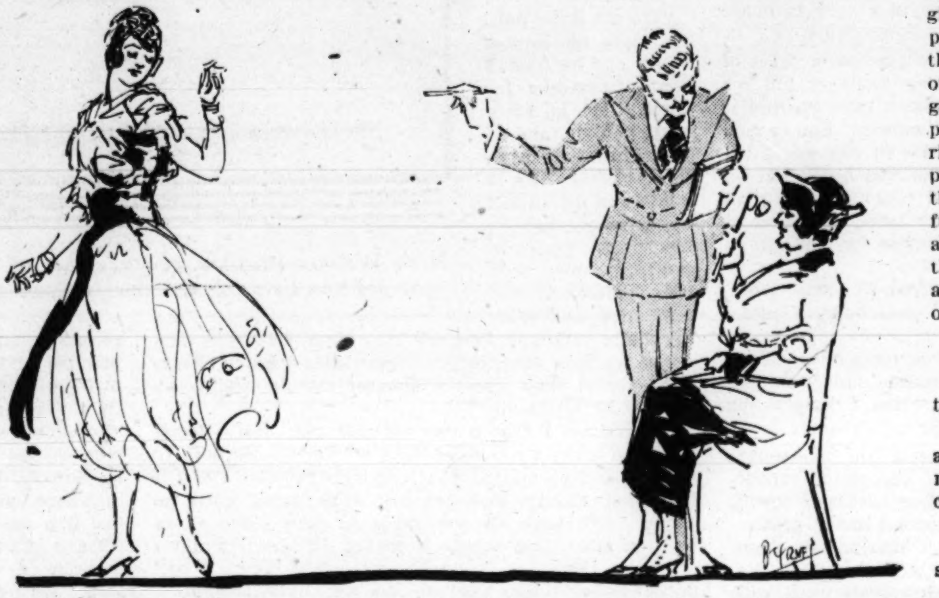
"Hang around, sweetness; maybe I'm not on duty, and I'll take you to supper, if you haven't got a date with one of your million-dollar Charlies."

"Soft pedal, Phonzie! You know I'd break a date with any one of 'em any day in the week for a 60-cent table d'hote with you!"

"Hang around, then, sweetness."

"Hang around! Gawd, if I hang around you any more than I have been doing in the last five years, following you from one establishment to the other, they'll have to kill me to put me out of my misery."

"You're all right, Gert. And when you haven't any of the greenback boys around to fill in, you can always fall back on me."



The presiding young man officiates over the crowded pages of the crowded Appointment Book.

"You're a nice old boy, Phonzie, and I like the kink in your hair, but—but sometimes when I get blue, like tonight, I—I just wish I had never clapped eyes on you."

"How she hates me."

"I wish to God I did."

"Cut the tragedy, Gert."

"That's the trouble; I been cutting it for the mock comedy all my life."

"You, the highest little flyer in the flock!"

"Yeh, because I've never found anybody who even cares enough about me to clip my wings."

Her laughter was short and with a blunt edge.

"Whew, such a spill for you, Gert!"

"It's the spring gets on my nerves, I guess. Blow me to a table d'hote tonight, Phonzie. I got a red-ink thirst on me and I'm as blue as indigo."

"Hang around, Gert, and if I'm not on duty I"——

"Honest, you're the greatest kid to squirm when you think a girl is going to pin you down. You let me get about as serious as a musical comedy with you and then you put up the barbed wire."

"Yes, I do not!"

"Fine chance I've got of ever pinning you down! You care about as much for me as—as anybody else does, and that ain't saying much."

"Aw, Gert, you got the dumps"——

"Look at her over there. I can see by her profile she's hanging around to buy you your dinner tonight. Whatta you bet she springs the appointment-book yarn on you and you fall for it?"

A laugh flitted beneath Mr. Michelson's blond hedge of mustache.

"Can I help it that I got such hypnotizing, mesmerizing ways?"

She smiled beneath her rouge and wanly. "No, darling," she said.

Across the room Madam Moores regarded them from beside her pile of sheeny silks and her fingers would pluck nervously at the fabrics.

"Hurry up over there, Phonzie; I told her the black lace was on the way."

Miss Dobriner daubed at her red lips with a lacy fribble of handkerchief, her voice sotto behind it.

"Don't let her pin you, Phonzie. Have a heart and take me to supper when I'm blue as indigo."

He leaned to impale a pin upon his lapel.

"She's so white to me, Gert, how can I squirm if she asks me to go over the appointment book with her tonight?"

"Tell her your grandmother's dead."

He leaned for another pin.

"Stick around down in Seligman's. If I dust my hat with my handkerchief when I pass, I'm nailed for the evening. If I can wriggle, I'll blow you to Churchey for supper."

"I"——

"Sh-h-h!"

He retreated behind the mauve-colored swinging doors. The two remaining sibyls, hatted and coated to crane the neck of the passerby, hurried arm-in-arm out in the spring evening. An errand girl, who had dropped her skirt and put up her hair so that the eye of the law might wink at her stigma of youth, hung the shimmering gowns away for another day's display. Gertie Dobriner patted her ringed fingers against her mouth to press back a yawn and trailed across the room, adjusting her hat before a full-length mirror. In the light from a single electric bulb her hair showed three colors—yellow gold, green gold and, toward the roots, the dark gold of old bronze.

"You can go now, Gert."

"Yes, madam."

"Did—did Du Gass order that fish-tail model, madam?"

Madam Moores dallied with her appointment book. Through the mirror she could observe the mauve-colored swinging door.

"Yes, in green."

"If I had her complexion I'd wear sandpaper to match it."

"We haven't all of us got the looks, Gert, that'll get us four-carat stones to wear down to a $20-a-week job."

Miss Dobriner's hand flew to her throat and the gem that gleamed there.

"I—I guess I can buy a stone on time for myself without—without any insinuations."

"You can wear the stone all right, Gert, but you can't get past the insinuations."

"I—I ain't so stuck on this place, madam, that I got to stand for your insinuations."

"No, it ain't the place you're stuck on that keeps you here, Gert."

They regarded each other through eyes banked with the red fires of anger, and beside the full-length mirror Miss Dobriner trembled as she stood.

"You can think what you please, madam. I—I'm hired by Phonzie and I'm here to wear models and not to steer your thinking."

Madam Moores sat so tense in her chair that her weight did not relax it.

"You and me can't have no fusses, you know that, don't you? I give Phonzie the run of my floor and he's the person one has to deal with—with freshness."

"You—you started it, madam. I—can't get along with anybody. I don't have to stay in a place where I'm not wanted; it's just because Phonzie"——

"We won't fuss about it, Gertie. I'm the last one to fall out with my help."

Silence.

"Did—did Laidlaw order that trotteur model in Man, the Hunter — and Woman, the Fisher

By HELEN ROWLAND.

"SOME day," announced the Widow, as she extravagantly dropped two lumps into the Bachelor's cup, "I am going to tell the real truth about women."

The Bachelor raised his eyebrows with a glance of anticipation.

"What have they done," he inquired, "to drive you to this cruel extremity?"

"Nothing," admitted the Widow, helping herself to a wicked looking marron glace. "But I DO get so unspeakably tired of reading all these old platitudes by the 'heart-throb' writers on 'How to Win a Man,' 'How to Hold a Husband's Love,' and all that! Just as though any love you had to clutch at was worth holding!"

"Bravo!" cried the Bachelor, clapping his hands. "But," he added with a sudden afterthought, "considering the splendid working knowledge you already have, why do you continue to read them?"

"Because," explained the Widow, "I still cherish a desperate sporting hope that some day some writer will say something different, something new, something enlightening! But they never do! They all begin exactly the same way, with exactly the same false premises, and end in the same haze of glittering generalities. Even Elinor Glynn, who OUGHT to know better"——

"Or worse!" interpolated the Bachelor, sotto voice.

"Even Elinor Glynn," repeated the Widow, "starts right off with the old, old banal statement that 'man is a natural-born HUNTER!'"

"Well, ISN'T he?" demanded the Bachelor innocently.

"Of course!" The Widow waved her teaspoon with a gesture of scorn. "And woman is a natural-born FISHER!"

"What!" The Bachelor almost tipped over his tea.

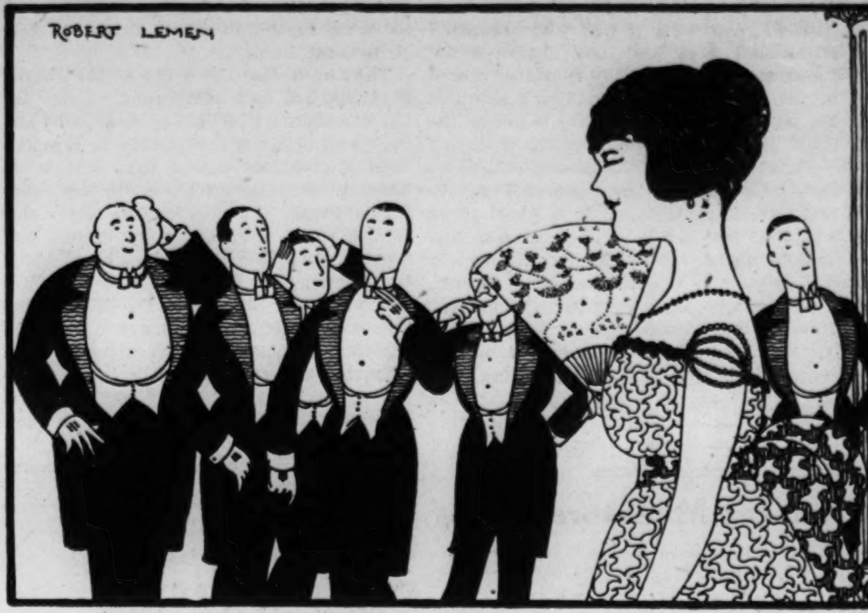
"You overlooked that, didn't you?" laughed the Widow. "That's what they ALL overlook, or forget, or ignore. They always assume that a woman's one wild desire is to be the quarry in the love chase, and that her one consuming passion is to land a husband. They never give her credit for having any sporting instinct or any vanity or any prowess, or any interest on earth in attracting a man, except in order to marry him"——

"Stop!" cried the Bachelor, in shocked tones. "You're shattering one of my most cherished illusions. You must be talking about a 'vamp'!"

"I'm not!" protested the Widow. "I'm talking about a normal, nice, average girl, who enjoys attracting a man just for the sake of—of being attractive, and enjoys her sentimental fishing, just as a man enjoys his 'hunting.'"

"But, if a girl doesn't fish for a husband," inquired the Bachelor in frank bewilderment, "what DOES she fish for?"

"For the pleasure of fishing, Mr. Weatherby! For glory—for vanity—for excitement! What does a man fish for? He doesn't catch a fish because he WANTS it, does he—but just because he wants to see if he CAN catch it. Yet, every time a girl casts her lines or her smiles in a man's direction he hears wedding bells and sees 'object—matrimony' written all over her! Whereas, she may be doing it purely unconsciously"——



Half a dozen men in the same ball-room, all of whom thought the same woman was in love with them.

"Or merely for 'practice,'" put in the Bachelor cynically, "to test her ability to catch a bigger fish!"

"Well," admitted the Widow, grudgingly, "a girl MUST practice on somebody, at some time. She couldn't possibly want to marry ALL the men to whom she tries to be agreeable and pleasant and attractive and charming. And yet, I've seen half a dozen men in the same ballroom at one time, all of whom thought the same woman was in love with them!"

"Yes," rejoined the Bachelor, with bitter reminiscence, "and I've seen that 'same woman' exerting her every art to MAKE 'em all think it!"

"Well," confessed the Widow, flushing a rosy pink, "it's so tempting—and SO easy! But the woman may have been utterly innocent of intending to exert any wiles whatever. It may have been just a subconscious feminine instinct with her, a—natural, innocent habit of trying to be as charming and pleasing as possible. But no man will believe that! Every mortal one of them looks upon an unattached woman as a menace to his peace of mind. If he's single he thinks she's trying to lure him into matrimony, and if he's married he thinks she's trying to lure him out of it. It's awfully hard on a normal girl, with a normal amount of vanity!"

"It must be!" sympathized the Bachelor. "It makes the trout so shy."

"Sometimes," agreed the Widow. "And sometimes it makes them just the other way. I'm almost certain my butcher's boy fancies that I have a secret sentiment for him, Mr. Weatherby; and probably the postman, and the iceman, and the milkman, and the grocer's clerk all feel the same way."

"Well, what do you smile at 'em for?" demanded the Bachelor.

"Simply because 'smiling' is a habit with me," explained the Widow. "That's just what I'm trying to prove. From the time a woman is old enough to climb up and look into a mirror, she learns that a smile is more becoming and more useful to her than a frown. It becomes second nature to her to pat her hair and glance in the mirror and assume her most attractive expression, at the sound of a masculine footstep. To charm—just for the sake of being charming—is not only a primeval instinct with her, it's a feminine fetich handed down to her by hundreds of ancestors. And the fact that she tries to be attractive to a man doesn't mean that she wants to marry him, or to 'vamp' him, or to break his heart or deceive him—it doesn't mean a thing in the world"——

"Except an acute and irresistible desire to see if she CAN attract him," put in the Bachelor.

"Yes," acquiesced the Widow, "like the 'fishing instinct' or the 'hunting instinct.' And the only difference between man, the hunter, and woman, the fisher, is that when a woman finally falls in love, she throws away her rod and reel and loses all interest in the sport—as a sport—forever!"

"Her designs are accomplished! Amen," finished the Bachelor impressively.

"Designs! Designs!" cried the Widow, flinging up her hands with a gesture of exasperation. "Haven't I just spent half an hour proving to you that a woman HASN'T any 'designs'? She has nothing but IMPULSES!"

"Tell that to the trout!" scoffed the Bachelor. "Perhaps he won't mind being caught, if he knows it was nothing but an 'impulse' that made you catch him—just to prove that you COULD!"

WIDOW-CISMS.

Love is a game of hide-and-seek, in which a man always insists on being "IT" and doing all the seeking, while the woman pretends to hide.

The only time when a sense of humor is of the slightest use to a woman is when she can laugh at herself for having tried to fascinate a man with it.

A girl may succeed in convincing a man that she can't be kissed, but she can never persuade him that she doesn't WANT to be.

All a man asks is that a woman shall laugh at all his jokes, admire all his epigrams, agree with all his opinions and be blind to all his faults—but never "flatter" him or "deceive" him.

A bachelor could bravely face the possibility of being shipwrecked on the sea of matrimony; but what he dreads is the awful possibility of being becalmed.

a litter of imitation ivory dresser fittings. On the edge of the bed, and with no thought for its lacy coverlet, she sat down heavily, her wet coat dragging it awry. An hour ticked past. The maid completed her tasks, announced her departure and tiptoed out to meet an appointment with a gas-fitter's assistant in the lower rear hall.

After a while Madam Moores fell to crying, but in long wheeze that came from her throat, dry. The child in the crib uncurled a small pink fist and opened his eyes, but with the gloss of sleep still across them and not forfeiting his dream. Still another hour and she rose, groping her way behind a chintz curtain at the far end of the room; fell to scattering and reassembling the contents of a trunk, stacking together her own garments and the tiny garments of a tiny white layette.

Toward midnight she fell to crying again beside the crib, and in audible jerks and moans that racked her. The child stirred. Cramming her handkerchief against her lips, she faltered down the hallway. In the front room and on the pillowed couch she collapsed weakly, eyes closed and her grief-crumpled face turned toward the door.

On the ground floor of a dim house in a dim street, which by the contrivance of its occupants had been converted from its original role of dark and sinister dining room to wareroom for a dozen or more perambulators on high rubber-tired wheels. Alphonse Michelson and Gertie Dobriner stood in conference with a dark wrappered figure, her blue-checked apron wound muff fashion about her hands.

Miss Dobriner tapped a finger against her too-red lips.

"Seventy dollars net for a baby carriage!"

"Yes'm, and a bargain at that. If he was home he'd show you the books hisself and the prices we get."

"Seventy dollars for a baby carriage! For that, Phonzie, you can buy the kid a taxi."

In a sotto voice and with a flow of red suffusing his face Alphonse Michelson turned to Gertie Dobriner, his hand curved blinker fashion to inclose his words.

"For Gawd's sake, cut the haggling, Gert. If this here white enamel is the carriage we want, let's take it and hike. I got to get home."

Miss Dobriner drew up her back to a feline arch.

"The gentleman says we'll take it for sixty-five, spot cash."

"My husband's great for one price, madam. We don't cater to none but private trade and"——

"Sure you don't. If we could have got one of these glass-top carriages in a department store, we wouldn't be swimming over here to Brooklyn just to try out our stroke."

"Mrs. Van Ness who sent you here knows the kind of goods we turn out. She says she's going to give us an order for a twin buggy yet, some of these days. If the Four Hundred believed in babies like the Four Million, we'd have a plant all over Brooklyn. Only my husband won't spread, he—he"——

Mr. Michelson waved aside the impending recitation with a sweep of his hand.

"Is this the one you like, Gert?"

"Yes, with the folding top. Say, don't I want to see Madam's face when she sees it. And, say, won't the kid be a scream, Phonzie, all nestled up in there like a honey bunch?"

He slid his hand into his pocket, withdrawing a leather folder.

"Here, we'll take this one with the folding top, but get us a fresh one out of stock."

"We'll make you this carriage up, sir, just as you see it now.

"Make it up! We've got to have it now. Tonight!"

"But, sir, we only got these samples made up to show."

Then we got to buy the sample."

"No, no; my husband ain't home and I—I can't sell

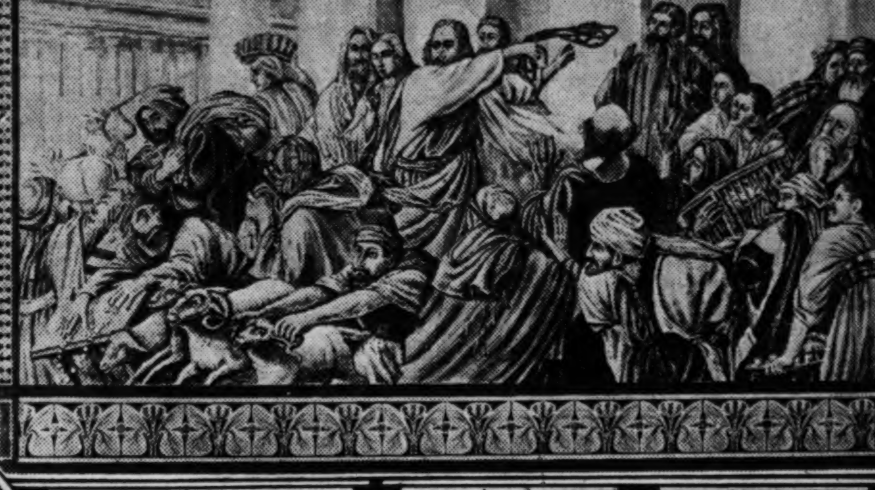
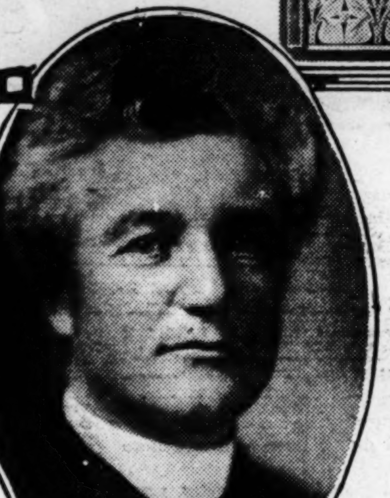
Artist-Priest and the Church He Has Built on an Arkansas Hill-Top

Father Placidus of the Benedictine Order designed and helped to paint the scenes on the stone walls of his church on summit of Pond Creek Mountain—House of worship that becomes the showplace of Western Arkansas grew from a seed planted by a railroad company—Faces of living persons depicted in the biblical scenes, one of the striking features of the elaborate decorations over the altars in this Basilica of the Hill Country

(See also pictures of interior of church printed on page 6 of the Rotogravure Section with this issue of the Sunday Post-Dispatch.)



Panel directly under the organ loft, representing Christ driving the money changers from the temple, as mentioned in St. Matthew 21, 12.



Father Placidus, priest, artist and architect.

FROM almost any point in Franklin County, on the west side of Arkansas, the tall spire of the Church of Our Lady of Perpetual Help may be seen on a clear day as its cross rises majestically far above the summit of Pond Creek Mountain, on which the structure, built of stone quarried in the immediate neighborhood, is firmly intrenched. There is something about this house of worship that attracts visitors from afar, and when they come they are heartily welcomed by its Benedictine rector, Rev. Father P. Placidus, who is known far and wide as the "artist priest." When the caller glimpses the interior decorations of this mountain temple serving a colony of less than 700 souls, he will understand the appellation.

Aside from the artistic ensemble of the church at Altus, for that is the postoffice at the base of Pond Creek Mountain, the congregation boasts of a history that is unique, since it was a railroad corporation that planted the first seed from which it sprang into its present prominence as the showplace of Western Arkansas. The railroad in question was the Little Rock & Fort Smith, which ran its line through that section in the late '70s. The company had skilled, dependable workmen, some of whom lived in the fertile valleys between these Ozark elevations, and they had no place to assemble for devotions. As most, if not all, of their number were Catholics, the railroad company built the first church and told the workmen to dedicate and take it, with the compliments of the corporation—a departure, indeed, for an institution of a kind that is reputed to be quite soulless; but be this as it may, the gift was accepted and the little frame building was the first to grace the mountain top overlooking the valleys which are now so productive of grapes and other fruits. And from this humble and exceedingly odd beginning came the present artistic creation and Father Placidus.

It was not until May 24, 1881, that the Rt. Rev. Edward Fitzgerald, then Bishop of Little Rock and a diocese that included the entire State, was able to get there for the dedication. Church archives show that he made the last eight miles of his journey over very rough roads, with a team of oxen furnishing the motive power. But it was a gala day in the village of Altus, and later came the determination of the colonists who settled in the valleys to erect and furnish a church that would be a credit to a flourishing community. The Little Rock & Fort Smith had planted a more fertile seed than it had contemplated in its beneficent plan to provide the people with a place of worship. It was in 1887 that Bishop Fitzgerald turned the church and congregation over to the administration of the Benedictine Fathers, who had laid the foundation for the present large New Subiaco Abbey, located some 15 miles from Altus.

The artist-priest came to Altus in February, 1897, somewhat broken in health from his studies in the abbey, and as the change partly restored him, he was formally installed as pastor two years later and has been there ever since. The church that occupied the mountain crest did not appeal to him, and as new settlers were coming in with miners to prospect the hills for coal, he decided to make a start on his new project. Being of an artistic bent, he lost no time in consulting with architects, but made the plans himself and then sent for his builder. In May, 1901, the corner stone was laid by Very Rev. Gail d'Aujourd'hui and there was the student band from New Subiaco Abbey and the officials of the college, to participate in the ceremonials. Then the building program was rushed without the least interruption, with Father Placidus always on the job.

There were no strikes or labor troubles of any kind to mar the proceedings. He was not only the architect, but the superintendent as well. He made many urgent appeals to his flock to keep busy and the men of the parish responded and did their part fully in the execution of the plans. The farmers, miners and others for miles around came with their tools and donated their labor as well as their money contributions, that Western Arkansas might have a church that would be a real attraction.

When the volunteers enrolled for the work, Father Placidus took out an accident policy for every man in the amount of $5000, as there was much blasting and other hazardous work involved in the construction. The material, a hard limestone, was all taken from the mountain side on property owned by the congregation. Some skilled mechanics had of necessity to be employed for the dressing and setting of the blocks, but in all there were 4000 days of free labor given by the members of the parish. The roof was covered with steel shingles and the rock surfaces on the interior were polished to permit of the painting of Biblical and other scenes. The entire cost was but $27,000. The dedication conducted by the Rt. Rev. Abbot Ignatius Conrad, took place Sept. 2, 1902, some 16 months after the corner stone was set in place.

It was after this event that the artistry on the interior had its beginning. Being a painter himself, the rector sketched the views that he considered appropriate and then sent to Europe for a church decorator whom he knew in his boyhood days. Fridolin Fuchs came out from Germany and worked with the pastor for many months executing the paintings over the altars and on all the wall space, including the large panel over the organ. For his long engagement the congregation paid the European decorator $1500, but the members who looked in the church from day to day and watched their pastor with brushes and paints in hand, knew that he had a very important part in their production, though under the rigorous rules of his order he could not receive pay for his work.

Probably the most startling phase of Father Placidus' decorative plan was outlined in the preliminary sketches for the scenes that were to beautify the walls and panels over the three altars and the organ loft. These included the faces and figures in Biblical and other holy scenes.

Another idea of Father Placidus was to get the American flag in one of the holiest of the groups. This was painted in the large panel over the Blessed Virgin's altar and in the same group is a representation of the church on the Arkansas mountain. Standing on either side of the church are figures paying

"Brooklyn."

"Yes, two blocks from the bridge, and for a hen-pecked husband you got a large fat job on your hands if you want to make another getaway tonight. This man Hinshaw shows 'em right in his house."

"Brooklyn of all places!"

"Right-oh!"

He snapped his fingers in a series of rapid clicks.

"Ain't that the limit? If I'd only mentioned it to you this afternoon earlier, we could have been over and back by now."

"Wait until Monday, then, Phonzie."

"Yes, but you ought to have heard her this morning Gert; it's not often she gets her heart so set. Tomorrow being Sunday, all of a sudden she gets a wishing for one of the glass-top ones like she's seen around in the parks, to take him out in for the first time."

"Oh, I'm game; I'll go, but can you beat it! A trip to Brooklyn when I got a friend from Carson City waiting at his hotel to buy out Rector's for me tonight."

"You go on with him, Gert. What's the use you dragging over there, too, now that you got the address for me. I never would have mentioned it to you at all if I'd have known you couldn't just go and buy the kind she wants in any department store. I'll go over there alone, Gert."

"Yes, and get stung on the shape and the hood and all. I bought just an ordinary one for my little niece once, and you got to get them shallow. Anyways, I'm going to chip in half on this. I want to get the little devil something, anyways."

"Aw, no, Gert; this is my surprise!"

"I guess I can chip in on a present for the kid's month-old birthday."

"Well, then, say I meet you in the Eighty-sixth street subway at 7, so we can catch a Brooklyn express and make it over in 30 minutes."

"Yes."

"But it's raining, Gert. Look out, honest, I don't like to ask you to break your date to hike over there in the rain with me."

"Raining! Aw, then, let's cut it, Phonzie. I got a new marcel and a cold on my chest that weighs a ton. She can't roll it on a wet Sunday, nohow."

"Paper says clear and warmer tomorrow, Gert; but honest, you don't need to go."

"You're a nice boy, Phonzie, and a proud father, but you can't spend my money for me. What you bet I get 10 per cent off for cash? Subway at 7. I'll be there."

"I may be a bit late, Gert. She ain't so strong yet and after last night I don't want to get her nervous."

"I told you she'd be sore at me for taking you to the Ritz ball last night, and God knows it wasn't no pleasure in my life to go model hunting with you, when I might have been joy riding with my friend from Carson City."

"It's just because she ain't herself yet. I'm off, Gert. Till 7 in the subway!"

"Yes, till 7!"

When Mr. Alphonse Michelson unlocked the door of his second-floor, five-room apartment, a lamp softly burning through a yellow silk lampshade met him with the soft radiance of home. Beside the door he divested himself of his rain-spotted mackintosh, inserted his dripping umbrella in a tall china stand, shook a little rivulet from his hat and hung it on a pair of wall antlers.

"That you, Phonzie?"

"Yes, hon, it's me."

"Sh-h-h!"

He tiptoed down the aisle of hallway and into the soft-lighted front room. From a mound of pillows and sleepy from their luxury Millie Moores rose to his approach, her forefinger placed across her lips and pale mist of chiffon falling backward from her arms.

What a masseuse is love! The lines had faded from Millie's face and in their place the grace of tenderness and roundness where the chin had softened. Years had folded back like petals, revealing the heart and the unwithered bosom of her.

He kissed her, pressing the finger warning closer against her lips, and she patted a place for him on the Mexican afghan beside her.

"Phonzie!"

"How you feelin', hon?"

"Strong! If it ain't raining tomorrow, I'm going to take him out if I have to carry him in my arms. Say, wouldn't I like to feel myself rolling him in one of them white-enamel, glass-top things like Van Ness has for her last one. Ida May tried three places to get one for us."

"They're made special."

"All my life I've wanted to feel myself wheeling him, Phonzie. I used to dream myself doing it in the old place down on Twenty-third street, when I used to sit at the sewing table from 8 until 8. Gee, I—honest, I just can't wait to see if the sun is shining tomorrow."

He kissed her again on the back of each finger, and she let her hand, pale and rather inert, rest on his hair.

"Is my boy hungry for his din-din?"

"Gee, yes! The noon appointments came so thick I had to send Eddie out to bring me a bite."

"What kind of a day?"

"Everything smooth but the designing room. Gert done her best, but they don't take hold without you, hon. They can't even get in their heads that gold charmeuse idea Gert and I swiped at the Ritz last night."

"Did you tell them I'll be back on the job next week, Phonzie?"

"Nothing doing. You're going to stay right here, snug in your rug, another two weeks."

"Rave on, hon, but I got the nurse engaged for Monday. How's the Van Norder wedding dress coming?"

"Great! That box train you drew up will float down the aisle after her like a white cobweb. It's a knockout."

"Say, won't I be glad to get back in the harness!"

"You got to take it slow, Mil."

"And ain't you glad it's all over, Phonzie?"

"Am I!"

"Four weeks old tomorrow, and Ida May was over today and says she never seen a kid so big for his age."

"He takes after my grandfather, he—was 6 feet 2 without shoes."

"You ought to seen him today laying next to me, Phonzie. He looked up and squinted, dear, for all the world like you."

A bell tinkled. In the frame of a double doorway a 17-year-old maid drew back the portieres on brass rings that grated. In the room adjoining and beneath a lighted dome of colored glass a table lay spread, two uncovered dishes exuding fragrant spirals of steam.

"Supper! Say, ain't it great to have you back at the table again, Mil?"

"Oh, I don't know, the way—the way you went hiking off last night to—to a ball."

"Aw, now, hon, ain't you got that out of your system yet? For a girlie with all your good sense, if you ain't the greatest little one to get a silly gix and work it to death."

"What was the use wasting that $10 pair of tickets the guy from Carson City gave her, when we could use them and get some tips on some of the imports the women wore?"

"I never said to waste them."

"You know it don't hurt to get around and see what's being worn, hon. That's our business."

Tears of weakness welled to her eyes and she stooped over her plate to conceal them.

"I'm not saying anything, am I? Only—only it's right lucky she can fill my place so—so well while I—I got to be away awhile."

Her barbed comment only pricked him to happy thought. He made a quick foray into his side pocket.

"I brought up one of these pink velvet roses for you to look at, Mil. It's Gert's idea to festoon these underneath the net tunic on McGrath's blue taffeta. See, like that. It's a neat little idea, hon, and Gert had these roses made up in shaded effects like this one. How you like it?"

The tiny bud lay on the table between them, nor did she take it up.

"All right."

He leaned to pat her cheek.

"These are swell potatoes, hon."

Her lips warmed and opened.

"I—I told her how to make 'em."

"Give me some more."

She in turn leaned to press his hand.

"Such a hungry boy."

"Can I take a peek at the kid before"——

"Aw, Phonzie, and wake him up like you did last night. He'll sleep straight through now till 12:30; that's why I didn't even tiptoe back in the bedroom myself. The doctor says the first half of the night is his best sleep; let him sleep till 12:30, dear."

"Aw, just one peek before I go."

"Before you what?"

"I got to go out for a little while tonight, hon. On business."

"Where?"

"Slews. I got to meet him in the subway at 7 and go to the Brooklyn shops with him to look over those ventilators I'm having put in the fitting rooms."

She laid down her fork.

"I thought you said he was in St. Louis?"

"He got back."

"Oh!"

"You lay down in the front room and read till I get back, hon, and maybe—maybe I'll bring you a surprise."

The meal continued in silence, but after a few seconds her throat seemed to close and she discarded the pretense of eating.

"Now don't you get sore, Mil; you never used to be like this. It's just because you're not right strong yet."

"I ain't—ain't sore."

"You are. You got foolish ideas in your head, Mil."

"Why should I have an idea? I guess I'm getting all that's coming to me for—for forcing things."

"Now, Mil, I bet anything you're still feeling sore about last night, aren't you?"

"Sore? It ain't my business, Phonzie, if you can stay out till 1 o'clock one night and the next want to begin the same thing over again."

"We had to stick around last night, Mil. Gert was drawing off the models under her handkerchief and on the dance program. That's how we got the yellow charmeuse, just by keeping after it and drawing it line for line."

"I know, I know."

"Then give me a kiss, and when I come back maybe—maybe I'll bring you a surprise up my sleeve, hon."

She sat beside her cold meal, tears scratching her eyes like blown grit.

"It's like I told you this morning, Phonzie; when you get tired, all you got to do is remember I got the new trunk standing right behind the cretonne curtains and I can pack my duds any day in the week and find a welcome over at—at Ida May's."

"Mil, ain't you ashamed!"

"Why, I could pack up and—and find a welcome there right tonight, if the kid wasn't too little for the night air.'

"Mil, honest, I—I just don't know what to make of you. I—I've just lost my nerve about going now."

"I'm not going to be the one to say stay."

With his coat unhooked from the antlers and flung across his arm, he stood contemplating, a furrow of perplexity between his eyes.

"If I—I hadn't promised"——

"You go. I guess it won't be the last evening I spend alone."

"Yes it will, hon."

"I know, I know."

He buttoned his coat and stooped over her, the smell of damp exuding from his coat.

"Just you lay down in the front room till I get back, Mil. Here, read some of these new fashion books I brought home. I'll be back early, hon, and maybe wake you and the kid up with—with a surprise."

"Quit!"

"Just a French kiss, hon."

She raised a cold face. He tilted her head backward and pressed his lips to hers, then went out, closing the door lightly behind him.

For a breathing space she remained where he had left her, with her lips held in between her teeth and the sobbing breath fluttering in her throat. The pink rose lay on the table, its beautiful silk-velvet leaves concealing its cotton heart. She regarded it through a hot blur of tears that stung her eyeballs. Her throat grew tighter. Suddenly she sprang to her feet and to the hallway. A full-length coat hung from the antlers and a filmy scarf, carelessly flung. She slid into the coat, cramming the sleeves of her negligee in at the shoulders, wrapping the scarf about her head and knotting it at the throat in a hysteria of sudden decision. Then down the flight of stairs, her knees trembling as she ran. When she reached the bubbly sidewalk, cool rain slanted in her face. She gathered her strength and plunged against it.

At the corner, in the white flare of an arc light, chin sunk on his chest against the onslaught of rain and head leading Alphonse Michelson stepped across the shining sea of asphalt. She broke into a run, the uneven careen of the weak, keeping to the shadow of the buildings; doubling her pace.

When he reached the hooded descent to the subway, she was almost in his shadow; then cautiously after him down the iron stairs, and when he paused to buy his ticket, he might have touched her as she held herself taut against the wall and out of his vision. A passerby glanced back at her twice. From the last landing of the stairway and leaning across the balustrade, she could follow him now with her eyes, through the iron gateway and on to the station platform.

From behind a pillar, a hen pheasant's tail in her hat raising her above the crowd, her shoulders rain-spotted and a dripping umbrella held well away from her, emerged Gertie Dobriner, meeting him with a pantomime of laughs and sallies. A tangle of passengers closed them in. A train wild with speed tore into the station, grinding to a stop on shrieking wheels. A second later it tore out again, leaving the platform empty.

Then Madam Moores turned her face to the rain-swept street and retraced her steps, except that a vertigo fuddled her progress and twice she swayed. When she climbed the staircase to her apartment she was obliged to rest midway, sitting huddled against the banister, her soaked scarf fallen backward across her shoulders. She unlatched her door carefully, to save the squeak and to avoid the small maid who sang over and above the clatter of her dishes. The yellow lamp diffused its quiet light the length of hallway and she tottered down and into the bedroom at the far end.

A night lamp burned beside a basinette that might have been lined with the breast feathers of a dove, so downy was it. An imitation ivory clock ticked among

Lardner Comes Out for the Nomination

By RING W. LARDNER.

TO THE EDITOR:

Now days pretty near every time you pick up a paper you read where they's somebody else going to run for president and they didn't want to but their friends coaxed and weedled till they sacrificed their own personal feelings for the cause and it looks to me like so many of them has yielded that unless a compromised candidate comes to the 4 and relieves the congestion they will half to shut down on the last few 100 nominating speeches so as the newspaper man can go to the worlds series.

Amongst the names that has been mentioned they's a few that would make a pretty good president, and I wouldn't mind seeing them nominated a specially men like Pershing and Wood but 1 reason I got against them running vs. each other is that the comical writers would all say it was a general election and besides that suppose Pershing was to get elected and all of a sudden Belgium would plunge everybody into another war, why Black Jack wouldn't know whether it was his duty to go away and fight or stay home and write. But even if we eliminate the 2 gents: they's still so many candidates yet that they can't never ballot on all of them on acct. of the white paper shortage, so as I say the only thing to do is for each party to agree on a compromised candidate and may the best man win.

Yes, but whom would it be you ask. Well gents I have in mind one man that God knows he has moved enough lately without moveing to Washington but would cheerfully pack up and move again if my country demands it. This man gents would run on either ticket if necessary and from any state that seen fit to nominate me except Rhode Island witch they tell me is so little that the higher class of people like myself would have to stand up all the time they lived there.

In regards to qualifications it comes kind of hard for one of my calibers to talk about themselfs but as some of the other candidates don't seem to have no such compunction I will ask the genial readers indulgents wile I give a few bear facts.

Comparisons between the great presidents of the past and myself is mostly odious as far as they are conserned. For inst. I am taller than Abraham Lincoln and as good looking to say the lease. I have crossed the Delaware a 100 times to Geo. Washington's once but never got near the publicity. I use as much tobacco as U. S. Grant and pretty near as much language and play golf a whole lot like President Wilson. Unlike Gens. Pershing and Wood and Sens. Harding and Johnson and etc. I wouldn't half to resign from no other job to take this job as I all ready write for a liveing like a president and as for speech makeing why I addressed the Cincinnati Reds right after they win the national league pennant and they went ahead and win the worlds series like they was inspired or something.

A great many people might think I am too young for the office but as my birthday is March 6 it wouldn't only be 2 days after I was inaugurated when I would be older than I was and I would promise to wait those 2 days before takeing any steps.

What about your war record I hear somebody inquire. Well gents I got over there and seen it any way and arrived less than 2 mos. in arrears of Gen. Pershing and the first dozen and further more the ship I went over on didn't have no more convoy than Jess Willard at Toledo but I never give submarines a thought except day times and part of the night beside which they's no man in America that said nastier things about the Germans and didn't mince no words or nothing and finely when Uncle Sam announced that they was going to draft men between 31 and up why I went right over to the nearest board and took a number though I was very busy at the time and my number was drawed amongst the first and I waved exemptions and was ast to come over and take a physical examination the 15 of Nov. a year ago and if it hadn't of been for the d—m armistice getting signed on the 11 why I would of got turned down 4 days later on acct. of flat ft. In addition to this, out of 8 brother in laws witch I have picked up at 1 time and another more than 1-2 of them was in the service and instead of standing in their way I told them to go ahead and do their best and the same with a good many of my man friends.

Perhaps the public will maybe want to know how I stand on the various questions of the day. Well gents I am in favor of military training for everybody under 34 yrs. of age but if elected I can assure my friends that they wouldn't be no war except maybe a short 1 with Mexico as I would ignore all challenges from the other side of the pond just like once wile I was travelling with the Cubs and I wrote something in the paper that 1 of the boys didn't like and he called me something but I pretended like I didn't hear him and here I am.

On the question of prohibition I stand pretty good and the only real question in my mind is witch will last longest me or the basement and I will say that if the liquor interests is left with a lot of supplys on their hands why it is not my fault but poor salesmanship and if I was in the present incumbrents shoes I would of declared peace a long wile ago and by this time everybody would of been out getting demobilized at reasonable prices instead of paying $1 a shot for ether highballs.

In regards to Sabbath baseball I would allow it at once in all citys except Philadelphia and would give it to them as soon as they have got the week day kind mastered.

I would cut out the income tax and other taxes of all kinds and if the govt. needed some money the first of the month why I would send over and get it some place where it is cheap like Russia.

That is where I stand gents and you can take it or leave it and if elected I would guarantee to give the stars and stripes a administration like witch they never seen and pledge myself to not run a 2d. time and I haven't had a day's sickness for yrs. only once in a wile in the morning and even when I got my tonsils took out a couple yrs. ago was able to write 2 days later though it pretty near killed me to swallow but never complained except in the bosom of my family.

I am aware that in a campaign of this kind they's bound to be many personaltys and mud throwing and etc., but if chose by either side as their compromised candidate I will say nothing about my rivals above a whisper and personly my own private life is a open book without no plot or theme and on the few occasions when I tried to read it aloud my audience has either fell asleep or walked out on me. AN INTERVIEW WITH A 2.75% BOLSHEVIST

BY JAMES J. MONTAGUE

A 2.75 BOLSHEVIST has been in here, telling me how the country ought to be run. He isn't in favor of putting melinite in Christmas packages, or blowing up children's parties with T N T. These things, he says, are advocated only by extremists.

His idea is to get the nation's work done with the least possible effort. At present he says the many have the monopoly of the hard work and the few have a cinch on the soft snaps. He wants these divided 50—50.

For example, he says that Douglas Fairbanks ought to jump over precipices and lasso grizzly bears for four hours a day, and spend the other four hours of his working day feeding planks into a buzz saw.

After John D. Rockefeller completes his daily four hours of coupon clipping, it would be best for the state if he walloped docks or walked a police beat for four hours.

It is his belief that the dentist who fills your teeth or the doctor who clips out your appendix should go off watch at 12 o'clock noon and turn their unfinished business over to the White Wing who has been tidying up Main street.

When I objected to this on the ground that the White Wing would have little skill either in filling teeth or digging out appendices, he said that would be as nothing compared to the value of dividing up the nation's work.

"If the White Wing cannot do these things," said he, "he ought to learn. He cannot learn without experience. What is the temporary suffering he may inflict on your molars, or the comparatively slight loss that would be sustained by your family in case he took out your liver instead of your appendix, when set over against the value to the White Wing of a change of occupation?"

"But there are some people who just naturally can't do anything but the job they are doing."

"Nonsense! Didn't Paderewski put his piano in dead storage and get himself elected Premier of Poland?"

"True. But do you think the six Brown brothers could lay aside their saxaphones and go round delivering lectures on esoteric Buddhism to your ladies' finishing schools?"

"Sure they could. All they'd need would be a few books. And if they didn't know what they were lecturing about, neither would anybody else, so what would be the difference?"

"Then, in your opinion, Jack Dempsey ought to punch the bag in the morning and spell William Dean Howells or Mabel Herbert Urner on their fiction stunts in the afternoon?"

"Certainly. The only thing people of Dempsey's class need is to learn to write. The whole state benefits when the individual benefits."

"How about burglars? Would you set them preaching sermons when they had finished cracking a crib?"

"Theoretically, there would be no burglars, for everybody would have what they wanted, and there would be no necessity to steal anything. But until the perfect state is attained, it would help the burglar to preach, and it would give the preacher a useful understanding of the burglar's point of view to ply the jimmy for a brief period each day."

"But everybody can't do everything," I objected. "You can't expect that each individual is going to have time in the course of one existence to take a hack at every trade and profession."

"That is quite unnecessary. All that is needed is a change from mental to physical labor, so the burden of physical labor will be divided.

"The lawyer will have his choice of the job of plumber's helper, railroad fireman, mill hand, anything that is hard work. That will, in addition to relieving the worker, and giving him a taste of the intellectual life, keep the lawyer in fine physical trim, thus raising the standard of health, which is highly important for posterity."

"But the plumber's helper that takes the lawyer's place will probably gum up his case and cost his client a lot of money."

"There will be no money in the perfect state. And if the case is lost—well, that will have to happen."

"So you believe absolutely that all men should for at least one-half of their time do manual labor, in order that the state may thrive."

"Absolutely."

"And you would be willing to put this plan into practice immediately?"

"Certainly."

"Very well. The furnace is out, there is a leak in the kitchen boiler and eight inches of snow on the front walk. I was just about to do these things, but I have been engaged in splitting kindling all the morning. You, as far as I can judge, have been only talking. Suppose you go build the furnace fire, fix the leak in the boiler and shovel off the snow, while I spread the doctrines you have just proclaimed."

But he wouldn't do it. As I said in the beginning, he was only a 2.75 per cent Bolshevist, anyway.

forgot all about her own 38 waistline when she ordered that pink organdie. She was seeing Gert's 22 inches."

"But honest, Phonzie, take a girl like Gert, even with her figure, she—oh, I don't know, there's something about her!"

"She may rub your fur the wrong way, madam, but under all her flip ways, they don't come no finer than Gert."

"No, it ain't that, only she don't always get across. Take Lipton; she won't even let her show her a gown; she's always calling for Do Do instead. Sometimes I think the trade takes exceptions to a girl like Gert, her all decked out in diamonds that—show how—how fly she must be."

"Gertie Dobriner's the best in the business, just the same, madam. She ain't stuck on her way of living, no more than I am, but she's a model and she ain't got enough of anything else in her to make the world treat her any different than a model."

"I'm not saying she ain't a good 36, Phonzie."

"I got to hand it to her, madam, when it comes to a lot of things. She may be a little skylarker, but take it from me, it ain't from choice, and when she likes you—God, honest, I think that girl would pawn her soul for you. When I was down with pneumonia"——

"I ain't saying a thing against her."

"She's no saint, maybe, but then, God knows, I'm not, either, and what I don't know about her private life don't bother me."

"Oh, I—I know you like her, all right."

"Say, I'll bet you any amount if that girl had memory enough to learn the words of a song or the steps of a dance, she could have landed a first-row job in any musical show on Broadway. She could do it now, for that matter. Gad, did you see her today showing off that Queen Louise cloth-of-gold model! Honest, she took my breath away, and I been on the floor with her 20 years."

"Ye-es."

"Keep down your hips and waist line, Gert, I always say to her, and you are good in the business for 10 years yet."

"She should worry while the crop of four-carats is good."

"Yes, but just the same a girl like her don't know when her luck may change. A girl can lose her luck sometimes before she loses her figure."

"Any old time she can lose her luck with you."

"Me!"

"Yes, you!"

Madam Moores bent over the pleats in her napkin. Opposite her, his cigarette held fastidiously aloft, he regarded her through its haze.

"Well of all things! So that—that's what you think?"

"I—I know!"

"Know what?"

"That she's dead strong for you."

"Sure she is; but what's that got to do with it? That girl's like—well, she's like a sister or—or a pal to me, but she's got about as much time for a fellow of my pace, except when she gets blue, as—as the Queen of Sheba has."

"That's what you think, maybe, but everybody else knows she—she's been after you for years trying"——

"Aw, cut the comedy, madam. Honest, you make me sore. She's nothing to me off the floor but a darn good pal. Say, I can treat her to a 60-cent table d'hote twice a week, but don't you think in the back of my head when it comes to a showdown that I couldn't even buy silk shoe laces for a girl of her kind. I ain't her pace and we both know it. Bosh!"

"You'd like to be all right if—if she didn't have so many rich ones hanging around."

"Just the same, many's the time she's told me if she could land a regular fellow and do the regular thing and settle down on seventy-five a month in a Harlem flat, why she'd drop all this skylarking of hers for a family of youngsters so quick it would make your head swim."

"Sure, that's just what I say, she"——

"Many's the time she—she's cried to me—just cried—because the kind of a life she has to live don't lead to anything, and she knows it."

"I ain't blaming you for liking her, Phonzie; a girl with her figure can make an old dub like me look like—well, I just guess after her I—I must look like 30 cents to you."

"You! Say, you got more real sense in your little finger than three of Gert's kind put together."

She colored like a wild rose.

"Sense ain't what counts with the men nowadays; it's looks and—and speed like Gert's."

"Girls like Gert are all right, I tell you; but say, when it comes to real brains like yours; nobody home."

"Maybe not, but just the same it's the girls with sense get tired having the men rave about their smartness and pass on, to go rushing after an empty head completely smothered under yellow curls. That's how much real brains counts for with—with you men."

He flung her a gesture, his cigarette trailing a design in smoke.

"Honest, madam, you got me wrong there. A fellow like me ain't got the nerve to—to go after a woman like you. A girl like Do Do or Gert is my size, but I'd be a swell dub trying to line up alongside of you, now wouldn't I?"

Tears that were distilled in her heart rose to her eyes, dimming them. Her hand fluttered in among the plates and cups and saucers toward him.

"Phonzie, I, I"——

"You what?"

"I—I—aw, nothing."

Her head fell suddenly forward in her arms, pushing the elaborate coiffure awry, and beneath the blue checked apron her shoulders heaved.

He rose.

"Madam! Why, madam, what"——

"Don't—don't pay any attention to me, Phonzie. I—I just got a silly fit on me. I'll be all right in a minute."

"Aw, madam, I—I didn't mean to make you sore by anything I said."

"You go now, Phonzie; the whole evening don't need to be spoiled for you just because I went and got a silly fit of blues on. You—you go get some live one like Gert and—and take her out skylarking."

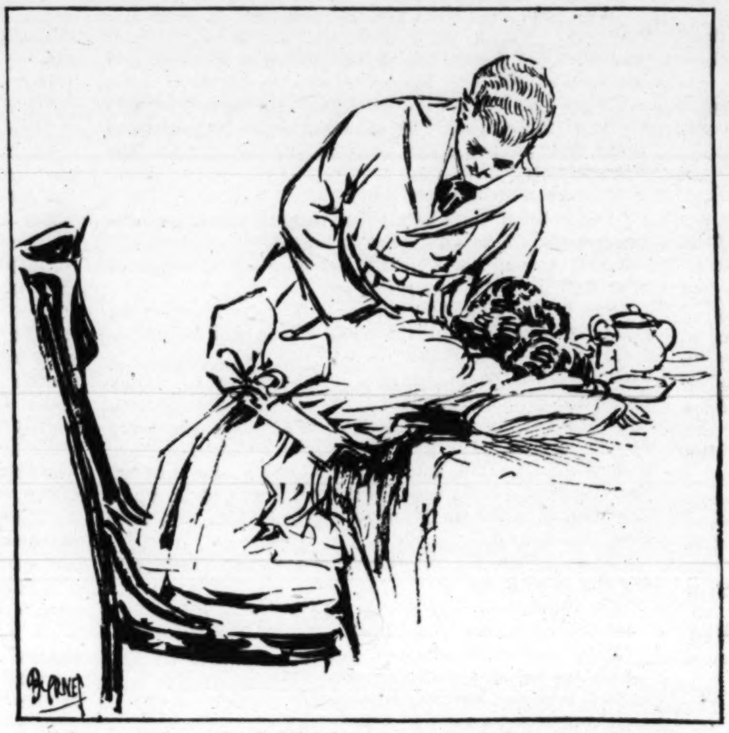
"You're sore about Gert, is that it, madam?"

"No, no! Honest, Phonzie!"

"Madam, I—I just don't know what's got you. Is it something I said has hurt your feelings?"

"No, no!"

He advanced with an incertitude that muddled his movements, made to cross to her side where she lay with her arms oustretched in the fuddle of dishes, made to touch her black silk sleeve where it emerged from the blue checked apron, hesitated, sucking his lips in between his teeth, swung on his heel, then around once more, and placed his hand lightly on her shoulder.



"Aw, madam, I—I didn't mean to make you sore by anything I said."

"Madam?"

"You—you just go on, Phonzie. I—I guess I'm an old fool, anyways. It's like trying to squeeze blood out of a turnip for me to try and squeeze anything but work out of my life. I—I guess I'm just nothing but an old fool."

"But, madam, how can a fellow like me squeeze anything out of life for you? Look at me! Why, I ain't worth your house room. I'm nothing but a fellow who draws his salary off a woman, and has all his life. Why, you—you make as much in a week as I do in a month."

"What's that got to do with it?"

"Look; you with a home you made for yourself and a business you built up with your own brains, and what am I? A hall-room guy, that can put a bluff across with a lot of idiot women. Look at me, 40 and doing a chorus man's work. You got me wrong, madam. I don't measure nowheres near up to you. If I did, do you think I wouldn't be settled down long ago like a regular—aw, well, what's the use talking."

He plucked at his short mustache, pulling the hairs sharply.

She raised her face and let him gaze at the ravages of her tears.

"Why—why don't you come right out and say it—that I ain't got the looks and—the pep?"

"Madam, can't you see I'm only"——

"You—you can't run yourself down to me. You and nobody else has made the establishment what it is. I never had a head for the little things that count. That's why I spent my best years down in Twenty-third street. What did I know about the big little things!—the carriage-call stunt and the sachet bags in the lining and the blue and gold labels, all little things that get big results? I never had a head for the little things that hold the rich trade, like the walking models, or the French accent."

"You got the head for the big things, and that's what counts."

"That's why, when you say you can't line up alongside of me, it's no excuse."

"I—I mean it."

"Just because I got a head for designing doesn't make me a nine days' wonder. Why don't you—you come right out and say what you mean, Phonzie?"

"Why, I—I don't even know how to talk to a woman like you, madam—La-La girls have always been my pace and"——

"I know, Phonzie, and I ain't blamin' you. A slick-looking fellow like you can skylark around as he pleases and don't need to have time for—the overworked, tired-out ones like me."

"Madam, I never dreamed"——

"Dreamed! Phonzie, I—I've got no shame if I tell you, but, God, how many nights I—I've lain here on this couch dreaming of—of"——

"Well?"

"Of you and me, Phonzie, hitting it off together."

"Madam!"

Her head burrowed deeper in her arms, her voice muffled in their depth.

"Madam!"

"How many times I've dreamed, Phonzie. You and me, real partners in the business and—and in everything. Us in a little home together, one of the five-room flats down on the next floor, with a life-size kitchen and a life-size dining room and—and a life-size—aw, Phonzie, you—you'll think I'm crazy."

"Madam, why, madam, I just don't know."

"Them's the dreams a silly old thing like me, that never had nothing but work and—and nothing else her life, can lay right here on this couch, night after night, and—Gawd, I—I bet you think I—I'm just crazy, Phonzie."

For answer he leaned over and took her small figure in his arms, wiping away with his untried handkerchief the tears, but fresh ones sashayed down her face and flowed over her words.

"Phonzie, tell me, do you—do you—think"——

He held her closer.

"Sure, madam, I do."

On the wings of a 12-month, spring had come around again and the taste of summer was like poppy leaves between the teeth, and the perennial open shirtwaists and open street car bloomed, even as the distant larkspur in the distant field. At 6 o'clock, with darkness came a spattering rain, heavy single drops that fell each with its splotch, exuding from the asphalt the warming smell of thaw. Then came wind, right high-tempered, too, slanting the rain and scudding it and blowing pedestrians' skirts forward and their umbrellas inside-outward. Mr. Alphonse Michelson fitted his hand like a visor over his eyes and peered out into the wet dusk. Lights gleamed and were reflected in the dark pool of rain-swept asphalt. Passersby hurried for shelter and bent into the wind.

In Madam Moores' establishment, enlarged during the 12-month to twice its floor space, the business day waned and died; in the workrooms the whir of machines sank into the quiet maw of darkness; in the showrooms the shower lights, all but a single cluster, blinked out. Alphonse Michelson slid into a tan, rainproof coat, turning up the collar and buttoning across the flap, then fell to pacing the thick-nap carpet.

From a mauve-colored telephone booth emerged Miss Gertie Dobriner, flushed from bad service and from bad air.

"Whew!"

"Get her?"

"Sure I got her. Is it such a stunt to get an address from a customer?"

"Good!"

"I says to her, I says, 'I seen it standing on the sidewalk next to your French maid and I wanted to buy one like it for my little niece.'"

"Can we get it tonight?"

"Yes, O proud papa! But listen; I wrote it down, 'Hinshaw, 2227 Casset street, Brooklyn.'"

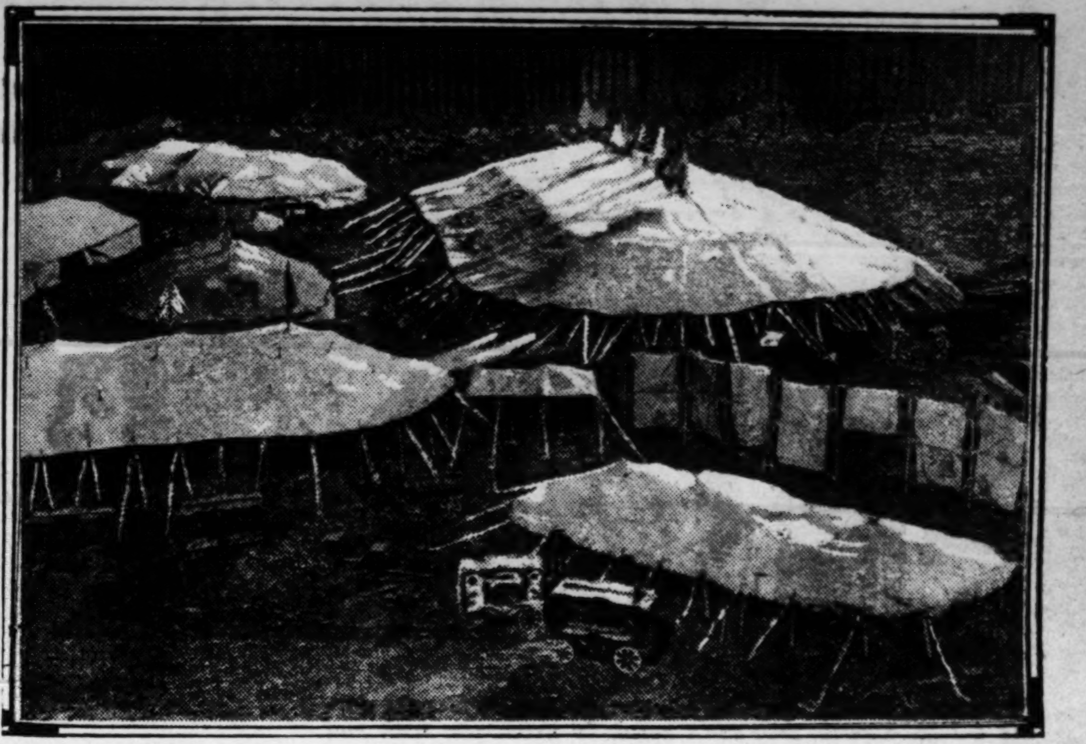
Fifteen Years of Persistent Whittling - Produces a Perfect Miniature Circus -

How a fascination of his childhood days has remained with Arthur E. Thorpe, though he is now 27 and holds down a responsible technical job—Inspiration gathered during the World's Fair bears fruit in the shape of a faithful replica of the "Big Show" — All the tents and 85 circus wagons, in correct detail



When this consistent whittler gets his canvas spread in the back yard of his home there isn't an abundance of room for the spectators. Every detail of the big circus is reproduced faithfully.

FIFTEEN years ago, during the World's Fair held in St. Louis to commemorate the centennial of the Louisiana Purchase, Arthur Earl Thorpe of 7430 Hazel avenue, Maplewood, who was then but 12 years old and small for his age, spent much of his time contemplating the marvelous exhibits of the various nations of the world and the bewildering variety of diversions on the Pike. He saw many things to stir a lad of his age, but what impressed him most of all was a wood carver, who, with apparently little effort, was able to turn out all sorts of creations with only his jacknife, a supply of bass wood and some paints to furnish the required decorations. Now, from his babyhood days the circus had held a very high place in the dreams and plans of this same boy, and the ease shown by the carver gave him an idea which grew in magnitude as he trudged home that evening. Taking his mother into his confidence, he announced that he was going to create a miniature circus that would be as complete as human ingenuity and persistent application could make it, and he began operations the very next day.

Though a decade and a half have flown since that day, Thorpe is still working on his big undertaking, though years ago it was pronounced by circus men to be the most complete replica of its kind anywhere.

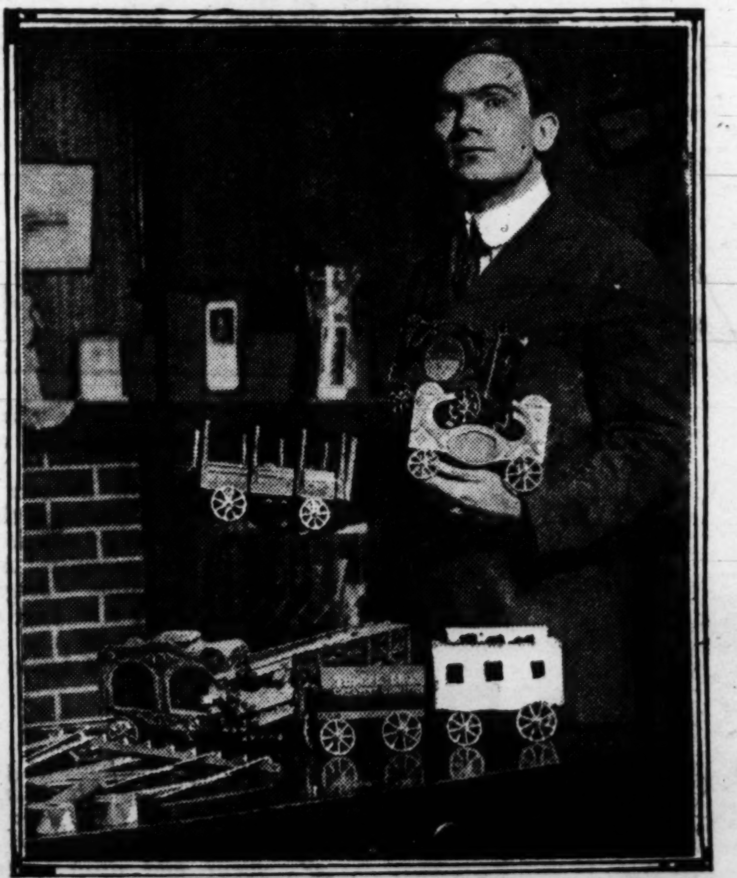
Thorpe is now 27 and his duties in the engineering department of the Bell Telephone Co. keep him very busily employed, but he finds time of evenings to go over his great collection of properties, such as tents, cages, poles, clowns, bareback riders, animals of every known species down to the last detail, not overlooking the sideshow with its fat lady, living skeleton, snake charmer, wild man and other lures that separate people from their money when they venture in the realm of circusdom.

Even the poles used to support the tents are faithfully reproduced in the miniature plant, with not a single point missing. When he gets his tents up in his back yard nearly every square foot of space is occupied and children flock in to see "Thorpe's Wonder of Two Continents." All the tents are placed just as they are in the Ringling Bros.' show. There are the two gaily decorated ticket wagons to accommodate the rush. The calliope or steam piano is in its place, and even the stands and baskets of the peanut venders are not overlooked; neither are the lemonade stands, reserved and box seats and the great array of bleacher seats with the coating of blue paint.

That Thorpe has made good on his boyhood plan was demonstrated in a most convincing way not long since, when a circus advance man came out to the Maplewood back yard and made a minute inspection of the outfit. He looked over all the cages, wagons and tents but reserved his judgment until he had made an examination of the mess tent, where the employes are fed. He inspected the tables, benches and other paraphernalia and pronounced the exhibit a most faithful reproduction, even to the "dust on the table."

During the evenings of the many years he has whittled and painted, Thorpe has never missed an opportunity to get new ideas; he attends circuses every time he gets a chance and one of his proudest boasts is that he missed but one show since his birth, and that was when he was but three weeks old. He was then living in Marshall, Mo., and his parents decided that one of his limited powers of observation and comment had no business at the show; hence he remained at home with his mother, while the balance of the town flocked in the direction of the big tent. But he was on the front seat at the succeeding shows, and since his removal to St. Louis in 1901 he has been a consistent first and last nighter.

One of his autograph letters was written by May Wirth, star bareback rider of the Ringling shows, whose fame is world-wide. She wrote him a pretty note of encouragement some years ago when she was apprised of his ambition to produce a minature that would be the last word in perfection of design and execution. She also sent her photograph in costume. His father and mother encouraged him from the very beginning and readily supplied the materials before he was able to earn his own capital. They rightly assumed that he was automatically acquiring some technical education while he was pursuing his pet desire. Now they both agree that the young man's time was very well spent and they take as much delight in showing the finished product as does its creator. Owing to the innumerable details in the ensemble it requires a long while to set up the tents, poles, pins and get every whittled piece in its proper place. During the Christmas season, while Thorpe was home on his vacation, it took him almost an entire day to get everything in place, and when the task was finished he was rewarded with the delight of the little folk who trooped in the rear yard to see the show.



Arthur E. Thorpe with a few of the 85 wagons he cut out with his pocket knife and supply of bass wood. Uses the same decorative scheme employed in the days of P. T. Barnum

Some idea of the size of Thorpe's show can be gathered from the fact that the main show tent, with its three rings, measures 12 by 6 feet. This connects directly with the menagerie tent, which is 8 feet long by 3 in width. The next in size is the tent which provides quarters for the horses. This is 7 1-2 feet by 3 feet 4 inches and the mess or dining tent, is nearly as large. Then there are the dressing tents and the side show, with its highly colored posters featuring the many attractions that could have been seen in the pre-war days at the big circuses, for "the small sum of one dime." When the canvas, which in the Thorpe show is made of the best grade of linen, is spread, there is only a limited space for the spectators. The main pole is but 18 inches high and the observer has to stoop low to see the rings and the little wooden figures within.

On the main spread there are 16 first quarter poles, 34 second quarters and not less than 250 stakes to hold the tent in place. In addition to the three rings there are two stages and a track for the hippodrome features. The grandstand is six feet long and there are 9 tiers of seats in the bleacher section, and these are arranged precisely as they are in the big circus league.

There are 18 cages in the menagerie for the lions, tigers and other wild beasts, besides quarters for elephants and camels. Counting the cages there are 85 wagons, ranging in size from the pony cart to the long vehicles used for transporting the poles and canvas. The animal cages have decorated sides, just as they have in the sure-enough road productions, and there are two gorgeous conveyances for the bands which go abroad in the towns with other features to arouse the people and attract the crowds. In his decorative scheme, Thorpe stuck closely to the old-time gilt and carving so lavishly employed in the days of Phineas T. Barnum himself. All of these conveyances were whittled out of soft woods, but the wheels were bought at toy stores. The animals were also secured in the same way, but the wee manikins representing the ring master, clowns and the other actors were products of Thorpe's jacknife and an abundant supply of bass wood.

In the properties are hand bills, some of which were printed by Thorpe the first year of his undertaking. The first are naturally crude enough, but as he grew older and kept up his efforts, he turned out many which he shows with some degree of pride.

All of these he printed himself with pen and brush and that he followed the customs of the more hardened circus advertisers is shown by the alluring character of the announcements. Adjectives are used unsparingly plaid, Gert?" "No, she's coming back tomorrow."

"Today's the day to land an order."

"She says that pongee we made her last spring never fit her slick enough between the shoulders. I felt like telling her we don't guarantee to fit tubs."

"You got to handle Laidlaw right, Gert. There'll be two trousseaux and a ball in that family before June. The best way to lose a customer like Laidlaw is to sell her what she ought to wear instead of what she wants to wear."

"Handle her right! I wore rubber gloves. Did I quiver an eyelash when she ordered that pink organdie, and didn't Phonzie nearly double up when he took down the order? You want to see her measurements. I'll get the book and"——

"No, no, Gert; you can go on. I got to stay and go over the appointment book with Phonzie."

A quick red flowed up and under the rouged surface of Miss Dobriner's cheeks.

"Oh—excuse me!"

"What!"

"I—all right, I'm going."

She readjusted her hat, a tiny winged chariot of pink straw and designed after fashion's most epileptic caprice, coaxed her ringed fingers into a pair of but slightly soiled white gloves, her eyes the while staring past her slim reflection in the mirror and out to the mauve-colored swinging door.

"Good-night, Gert."

Miss Dobriner bared her teeth on a smile and closed her lips again before she spoke.

"Good-night—madam."

Then she went out, clicking the door behind her. Through the mauve-colored swinging door and scarcely a clock's tick later, entered Mr. Alphonse Michelson, spick, lightfooted, slim.

"Charley's left with the black lace, madam."

It was as if Madam Moores suddenly threw off the husk of the day. "Tired, Phonzie?"

He ran a hand across his silk hair and glanced about.

"Everybody gone?"

"Yes."

He reached for his hat and cane and a pair of untried gray gloves atop them.

"I sent the yellow taffeta out on a C. O. D. That gold buckle she wanted on the shoulder cost her just 20 bucks more."

"Good!"

He fitted on his hat carefully and snapped his gloves across his palm.

"Well, I'm off, madam."

"Like to come up to the flat for supper and—and go over the books, Phonzie?"

"Huh?"

"There's plenty for two and—and we could kind of go over things."

"Oh, I—I'm running up there too often, sponging off you."

"Sponging! Like I'd ask you if I didn't want you!"

"I been up there sponging off you three times this week. Anyway, I'm"——

"Don't I always just give you pot luck?"

"Yes; but you'll think after while that I got you mixed up with my meal ticket."

A sensitive seepage of blood rushed over Madam Moores' nervous face, stinging it.

"Of course, if you don't want to come!"

"Don't want to come! A fellow that's never had a snap like your cozy corner in his life."

"Of course, if—if you got a date with one of—of the models or something."

"I never said that, did I?"

"Well, get that sponging idea out of your head, Phonzie. There's always plenty for two in my cupboard. Like I says the other night, what's the use being able to afford my little flat if I can't get some pleasure out of it."

"It sure looks good to this hall-room Johnnie."

She gathered her gloves and her black silk handbag.

"Then come, Phonzie," she said; "I'm going to take you home"—and her throat might have been lined with fur.

They went out together, locking the doors behind them, and into an evening as soft as silk and full of stars.

Along the wide uptown street the human tide flowed fast and as if thaw had set in, releasing it from the bondage of winter. Girls in light wraps and without hats loitered in the white flare of drug store lights. Here and there a brown stoop bloomed with a boarder or two. In front of Seligman's florist shop, which occupied the ground floor of Madam Moores' dressmaking establishment, Alphonse Michelson paused for a moment in the flare of its decorative window and flecked at his hatband with a sheer, untried handkerchief.

"Come on, Phonzie."

"Coming, madam."

In the uptown subway, bound for the uptown flat, he leaned to her with his small blond mustache raised in a smile.

"Where's the book, madam?"

"Forget it," she replied, without shame.

* * * * * * * * *

Out of $380 cash, a bit of black and gold brocade flung adroitly over the imitation hearth, a cot masquerading under a Mexican afghan of many colors, a canary in a cage, a potted geranium, a shallow chair with a threadbare headrest, a lamp, a rug, a two-burner gas stove, Madam Moores had evolved a home.

And why not? The Petit Trianon was built that a Queen might there find rest from marble halls. The Borghese women in their palace live behind drawn shades, but Italian peasants sit in the low doorways and sing as they rock and suckle.

In Madam Moores' two-flights-up flat the windows were flung open to the moist air of spring, which flowed in cool as water between crisp muslin curtains, stirring them. In the sudden flare of electric light the canary unfolded its head from a sheaf of wing, cheeped and fell to picking up seed from the bottom of its cage.

Mr. Alphonse Michelson collapsed into the shallow chair beside the table and relaxed his head against the threadbare dent in the upholstery.

"Whoops; home was never like this!"

"Is him tired?"

"Dead."

"Smoke?"

"Yep!"

"There."

"Ah!"

"Now him all comfy and I go fix poor tired bad boy him din-din."

More native than mother tongue is mother's tongue. Whom women love they would first destroy with gibberish. To Mr. Michelson's linguistic credit, however, he shifted in his chair in unease.

"What did you say?"

"What him want for din-din?"

He flung one leg atop the other, slumping deeper to the luxury of his chair.

"Dinner?"

"Yes, din-din!"

"Say, those were swell chicken livers smothered in onions you served the other night, madam. Believe me, those were some livers!"

No, reader, Romance is not dead. On the contrary, he has survived the frock coat and learned to chew a clove.

A radiance as soft as the glow from a pink-shaded lamp flowed over Madam Moores' face.

"Livers him going to have and biscuits made in my own ittsie bittsie oven. Eh?"

"Swell."

She divested herself of her wraps, fluffing her mahogany-colored hair where the hat had restricted it, lighted a tiny stove off in the tiny kitchenette and enveloped herself in a blue bib-top apron. Her movements were short and full of caprice and when she set the table, brushing his chair as she passed and repassed, lights came out in her eyes when she dared raise her lids to show them.

They dined by the concealed fireplace and from off a table that could fold its legs under like Aladdin's. Fumes of well-made coffee rose as ingratiating as the perfume of a love story. Mr. Michelson dropped a lump of butter into the fluffy heart of a biscuit and clapped the halves together

"Some biscuits!"

"Bad boy; stop jollying!"

"Say, if I'd tell you the truth about what I think of these biscuits, you'd say I was writing a street-car advertisement for baking powder. Say, this is some cup custard."

"More?"

"Full to my eyebrows."

"Just a ittle bittsie?"

"Nope."

He lighted a cigarette and they settled back in after-dinner completeness, their dessert plates pushed well toward the center of the table and their senses quiet. She pleated the edge of her napkin and watched him blow leisurely spirals of smoke to the ceiling.

"What you thinking about, Pohnzie?"

"Nothing."

"Honest?"

"If I was thinking at all I was just sizing it up as pretty soft for a fellow like me to get this sort of stand-in with—with my boss. Gawd, me and Du Gass used to love each other like snakes."

"I—I ain't your boss, Pohnzie—don't I give you the run of everything—hiring—the models and all?"

"Sure you're my boss, and it's pretty soft for me."

"And I was just thinking, Phonzie, that it's pretty soft for me to have found a fellow like you to manage things for me."

"Shucks!"

"Without you, so used to the ways of the avenue and all that kind of thing, where would I be now, trying to run in the right kind of bluff with the trade?"

"That's easy! After all, Fifth avenue and Third avenue is pretty much alike in the end, madam. A spade may be a spade, but if you're a good saleman, you can put it on black velvet and sell it for a dessert spoon any day in the week."

"That's just what I'm saying, Phonzie, about your knowing how. I need just a fellow like you to show me how the swell trade has got to be blindfolded, and that the difference between a dressmaker and a modiste is about a hundred and fifty dollars a gown."

"You ought to see the way we handled them when I was on the floor for Du Gass. Say, we wouldn't touch a peignoir in that establishment for under two hundred and fifty and—we had 'em coming in there like sheep. The Riverside drive trade is nothing, madam, compared to what we could do down there with the avenue business."

"You sure know how to handle the lorgnette bunch, Phonzie."

"Is it any wonder, being in the business 20 years?"

"Twenty years—why, Phonzie, you—you don't look much more than 20 yourself."

He laughed, shifting one knee to the other.

"That's because you can't see that my eyeteeth are gold, madam."

"You're so light on your feet, Phonzie, and slick."

"To look 20 and feel your 40 years ain't what it's cracked up to be. If I had a home of my own, you know what I'd buy first?—a pair of carpet slippers and a patent rocker."

"I bet you mean it, too, Phonzie!"

"Sure I mean it! How'd you like to go through life like me, trying to keep the kink iron in my hair and out of my back or lose my job at the only kind of work I'm good for. It's like trying to live with a grin frozen on your face so you can't close your mouth.

"I—I just can't get over it, Phonzie; you 40! You five years older than me and me afraid—thinking all along it was just the other way."

"I had already shed my milk teeth before you were born, madam."

"Whatta you know about that!"

"Ask Gert. She's been following me around from place to place for years, sticking to me because I say there ain't a model in the business can show the clothes like she can."

"Yes?"

"Ask her; she's my age, and we been on the job together for 20 years. Long before live models was even known in the business, she and me were showing goods in the old Cunningham place on Madison avenue."

"Even—even back there you was dead set on having good figures around the place, wasn't you, Phonzie?"

"I tell you, it's economy in the end, madam, to have figures that can show off the goods to advantage."

"Oh, I'm not kicking, Phonzie, but I was just saying."

"I have been in the business long enough, madam, to learn that the greatest way in the world to show gowns is on livestock. A dame will fall for any sort of a rag stuck on a figure like Gert's, and think the waistline and all is thrown in with the dress. You seen for yourself Van Ness order five gowns right off Gert's back today. Would she have fallen for them if we had shown them in the hand? Not much! She

The Dinner to the Visiting Celebrity

Character Sketches by

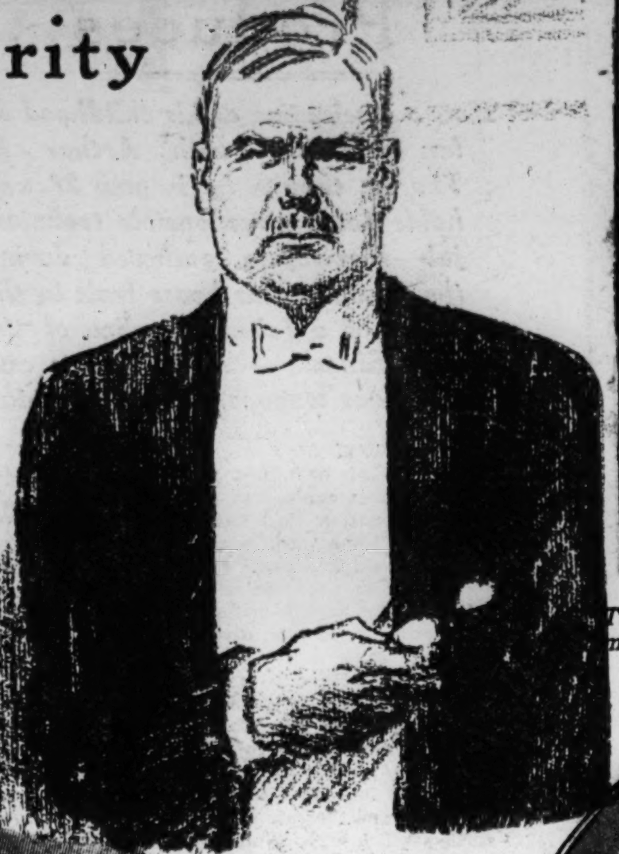
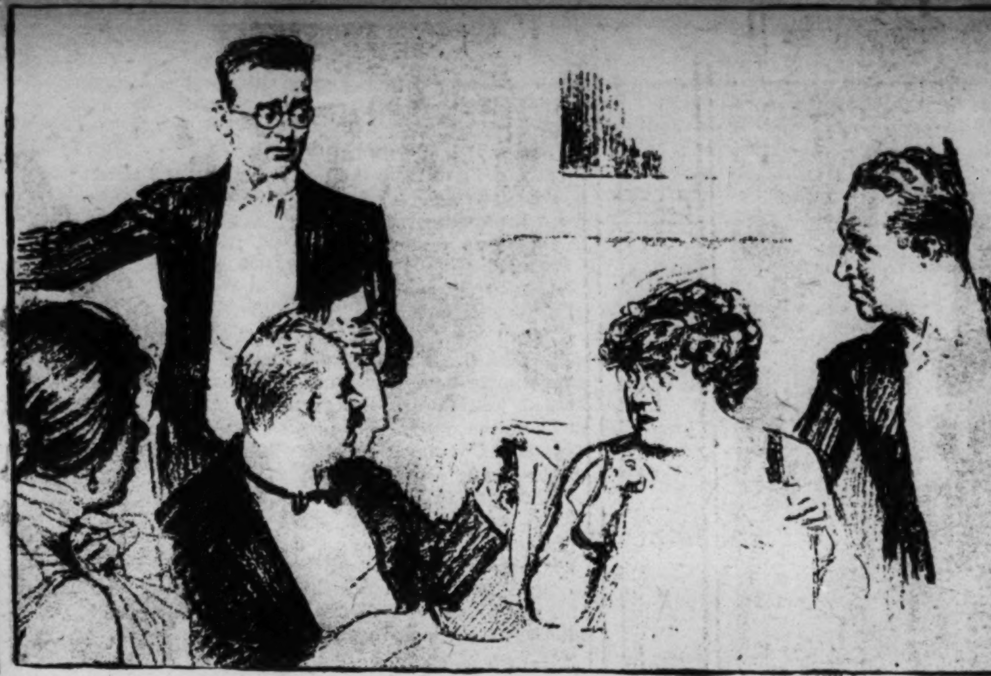
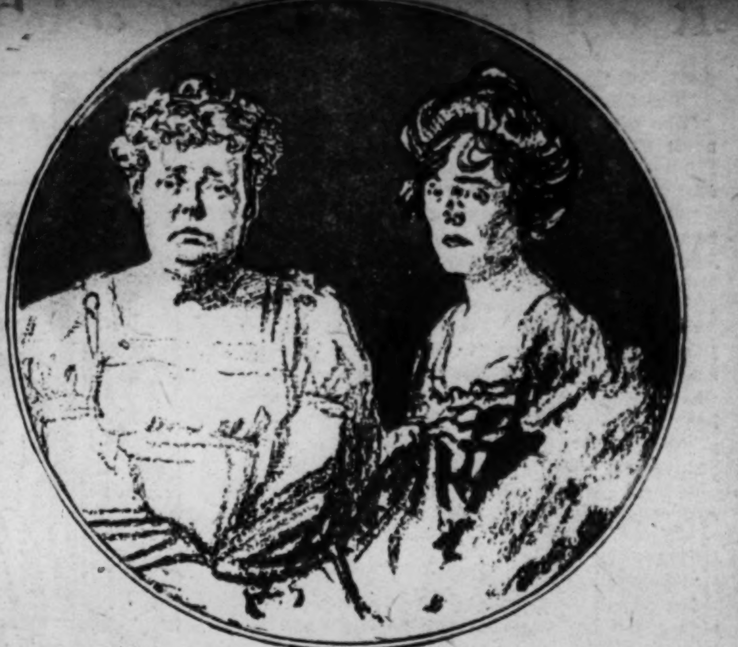
The lady with the carrying voice, who stage-whispers during a long speech that she's going to avoid the rush and start to get her wraps, which makes all the ladies nearby wonder if they can beat her to it.



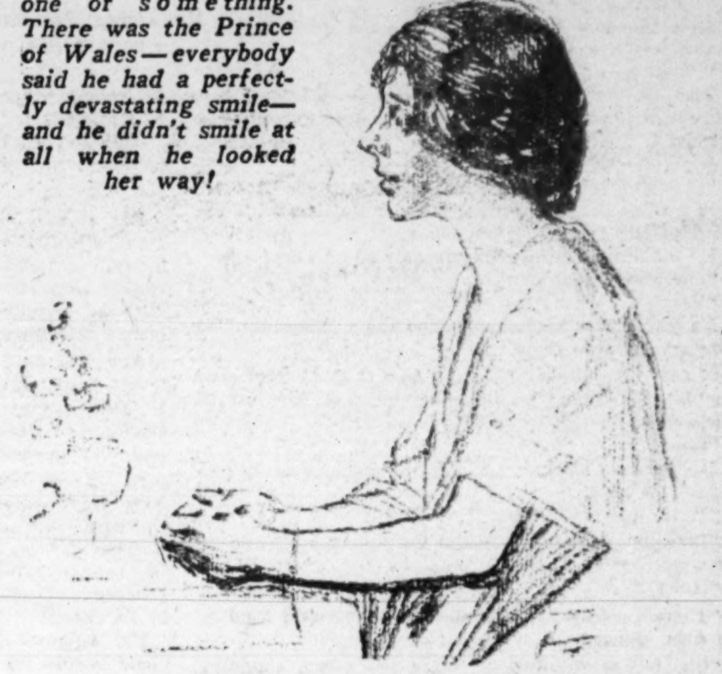
The principal speaker of the evening being unable to attend, Mr. Noah Wazzle (who wrote that really splendid little nature story for children called "Caddy Caterpillar's House Party" some years ago) has proved an able substitute. Mr. Wazzle has been going strong for twenty-seven minutes, which is not bad, considering that all Mr. W. had intended to say had been said by another speaker, according to Mr. W.'s opening remarks.



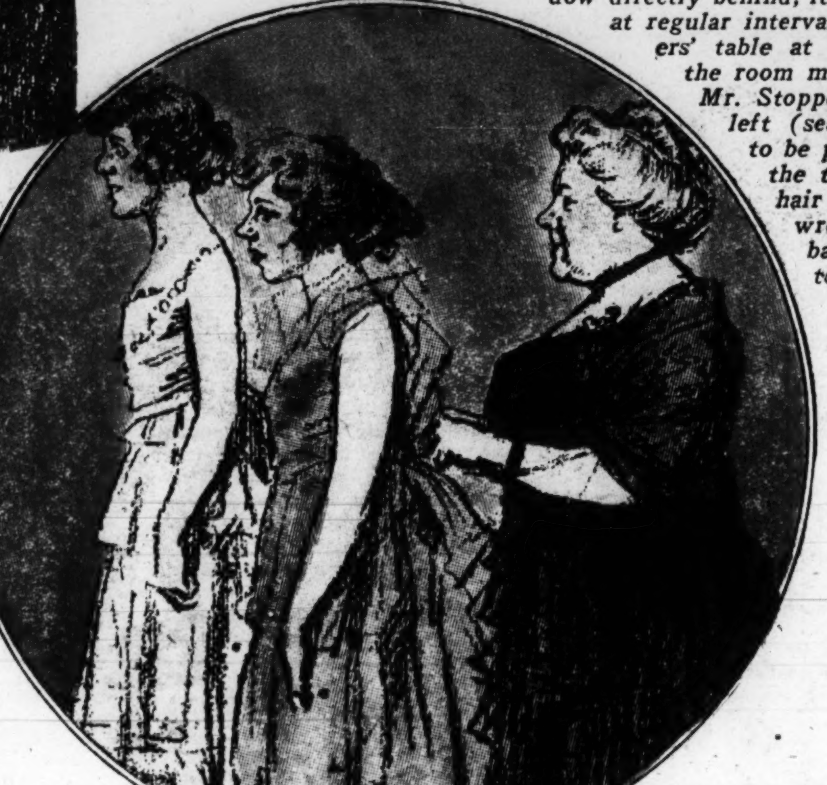
The farthest-off table in the room, at which are herded the unfortunates whom the members of the committee look upon as the dregs of humanity. If there is a window directly behind, it is sure to be opened at regular intervals, so that the speakers' table at the opposite end of the room may be properly aired. Mr. Stopper, second from the left (seated), is particularly to be pitied. Being right in the teeth of the gale, his hair is being blown the wrong way, so that his bald spot is exposed to view.



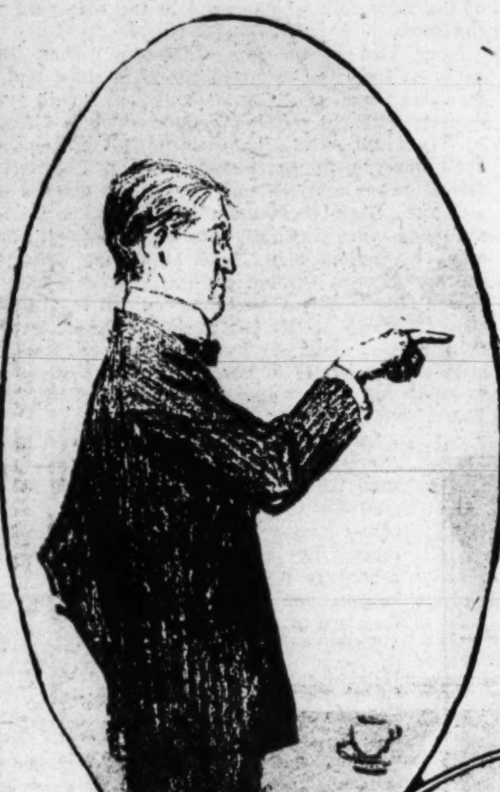
"My dear! You don't mean to say that is——! Oh, I'm so disappointed! Why, he is quite common looking!" Mrs. Clapper is always being disillusioned about someone or something. There was the Prince of Wales—everybody said he had a perfectly devastating smile—and he didn't smile at all when he looked her way!



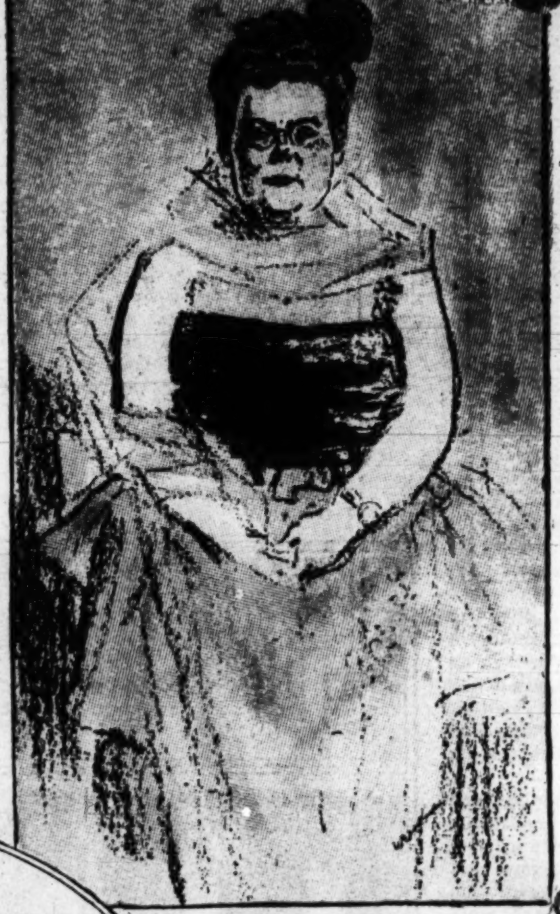
The wife of the guest of honor, who is making a superhuman effort not to commit murder when the seventh person inquires pleasantly how it feels to be the wife of a genius.



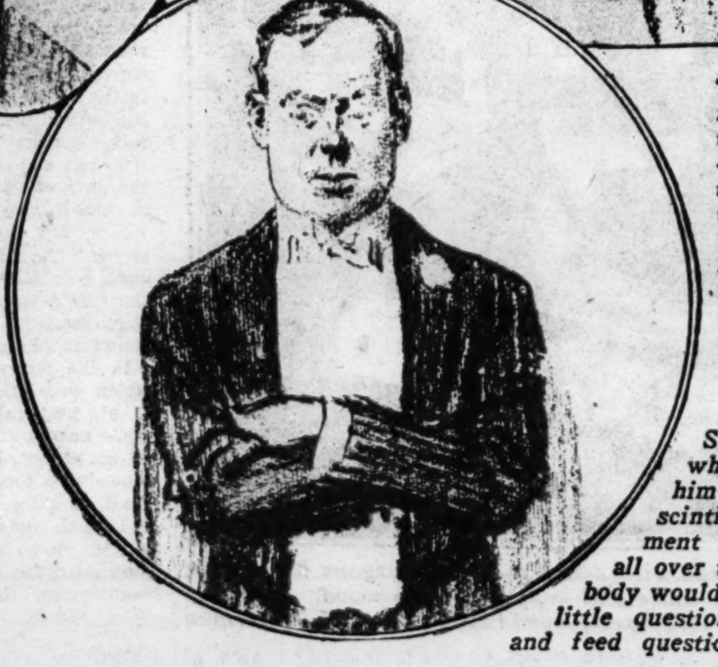
Two debutantes from the outlying districts about to be introduced, not to the celebrity, but to a gentleman reputed to be worth thirty millions—or maybe it's three millions, Mrs. Klawson isn't quite sure.



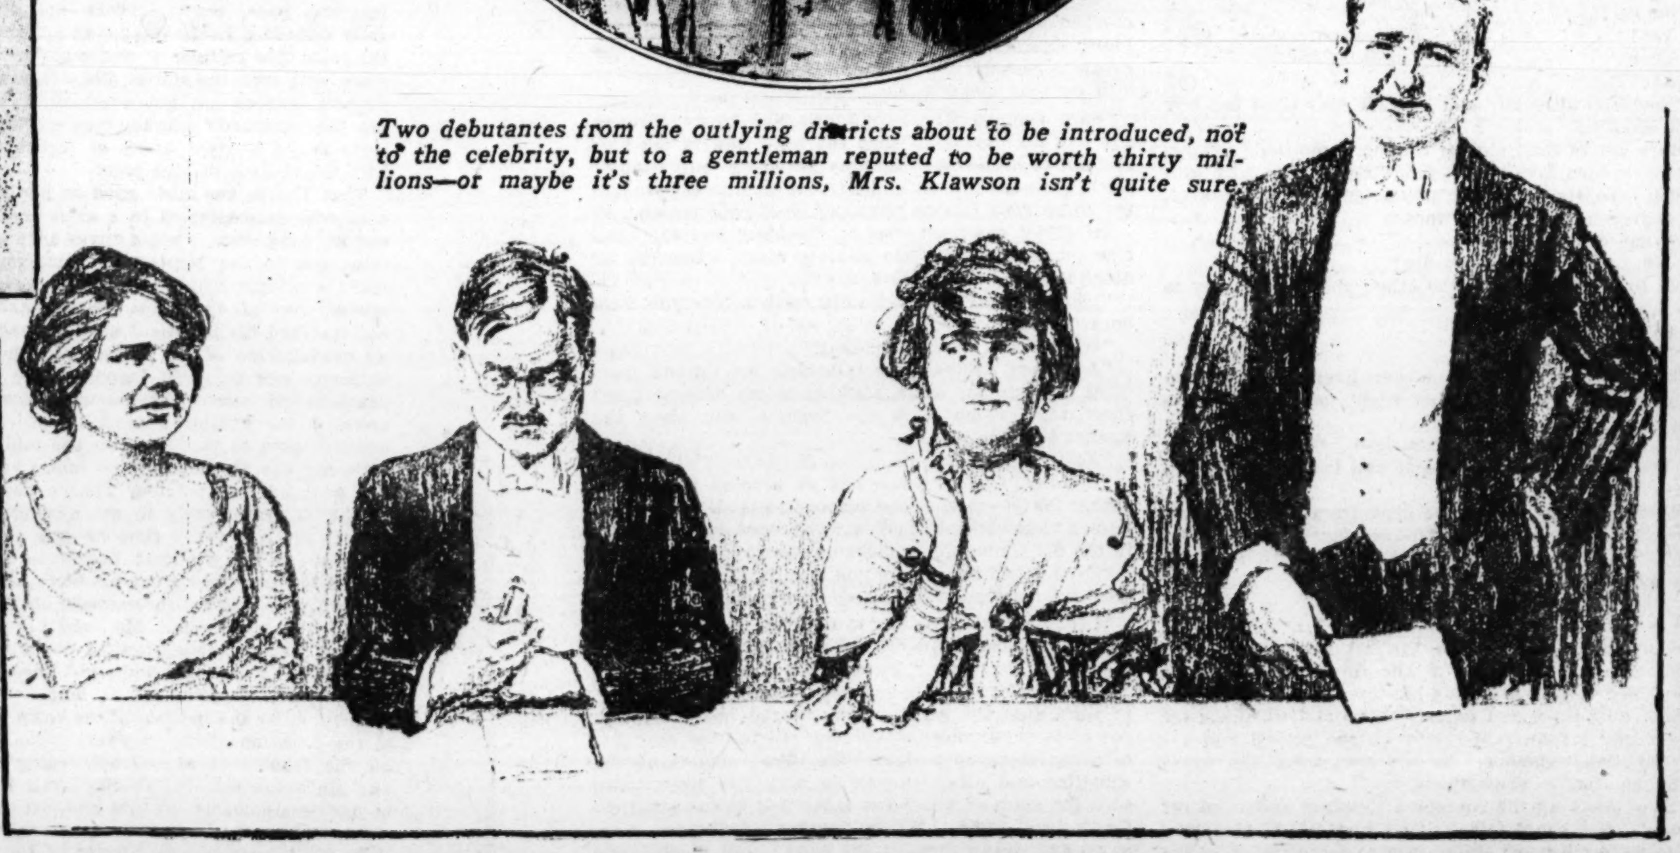
Mr. Doolittle, the drama expert, telling the diners all the things that are at present the matter with the drama. According to Mr. D., the fault lies not so much with the individual as with the community—in fact, it is the community as a whole and the drama as a unit, etc.



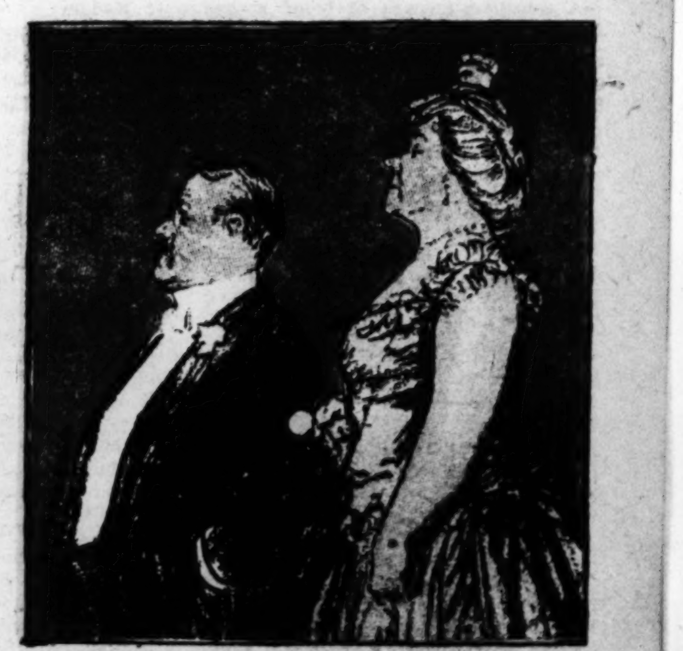
"Oh, I do think it must be such a joy to be able to write—how do you ever think enough things to write down! Isn't it awfully hard keeping original? Isn't it?" Just some more of the same old bunk.



Somebody's guest, who feels it is up to him to be clever and scintillating every moment and drop epigrams all over the place. If somebody would only ask him some little question about the flour and feed question in Minneapolis!



The speakers' table, showing the guest of honor playing with the salt, surrounded by two lady authors and one Mr. Bunkum, who is giving an address of welcome and incidentally explaining the G. of H.'s latest literary output. The G. of H. is learning things he never knew before about his books.



Mr. and Mrs. Battle simply hate all celebrities. It dates back to the time when some celeb or other forgot to keep an appointment with Mrs. Battle. In fact, both Mrs. Battle and husband Fred will go out of their way to go to places where they may have the pleasure of saying, "No, thank you!" to would-be introducers of celebrities—which is what they have done here.

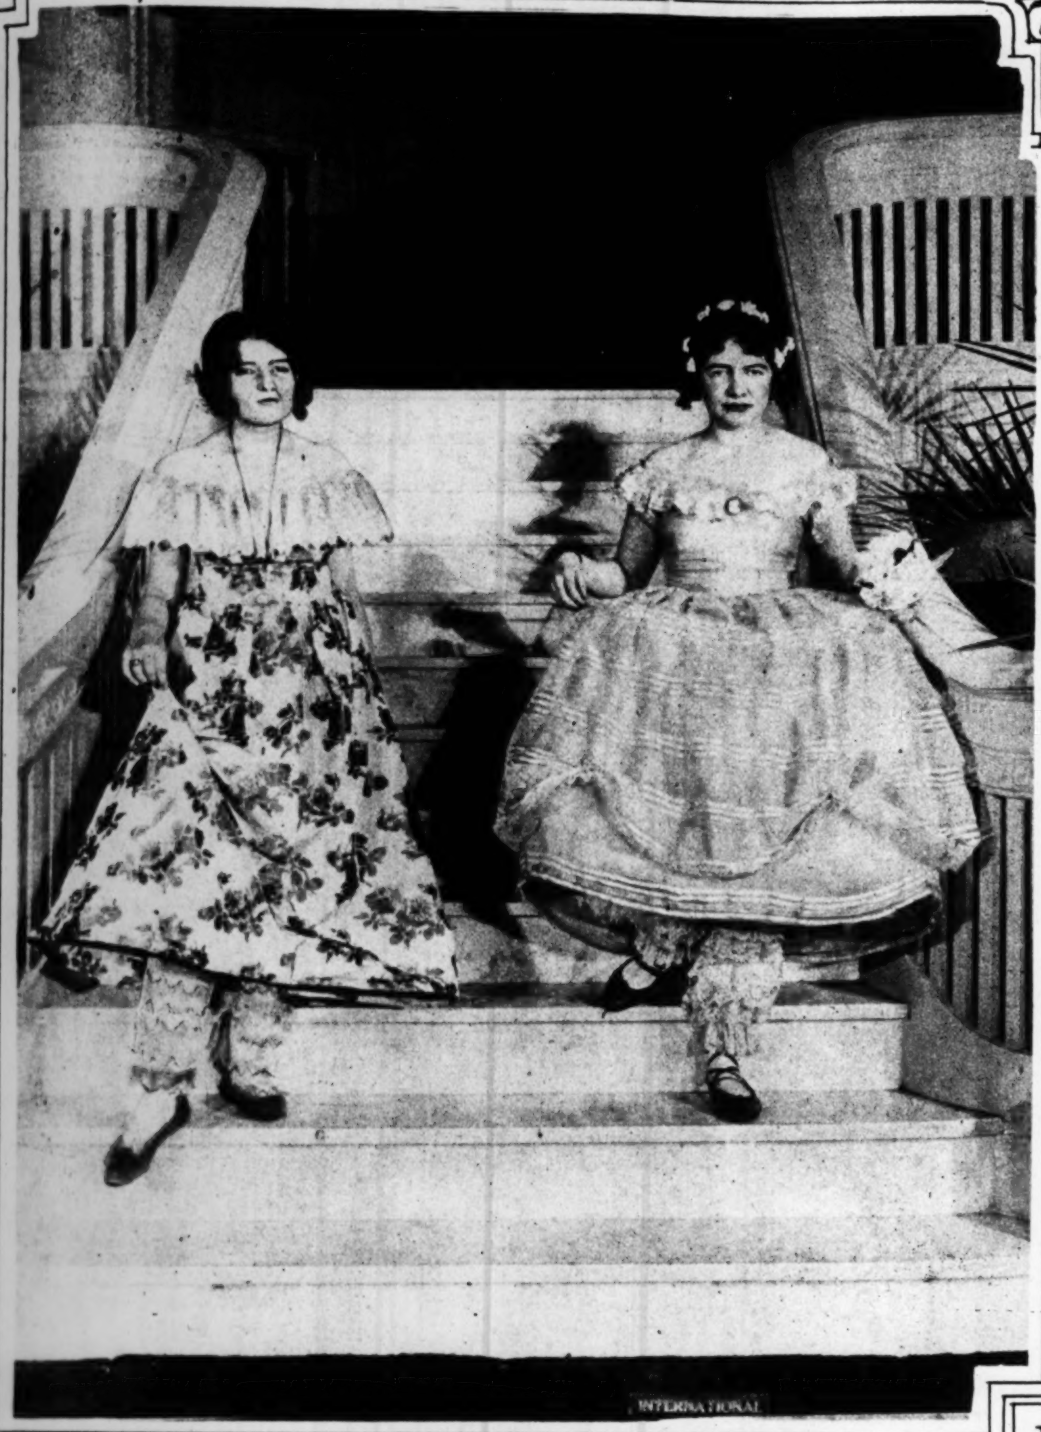
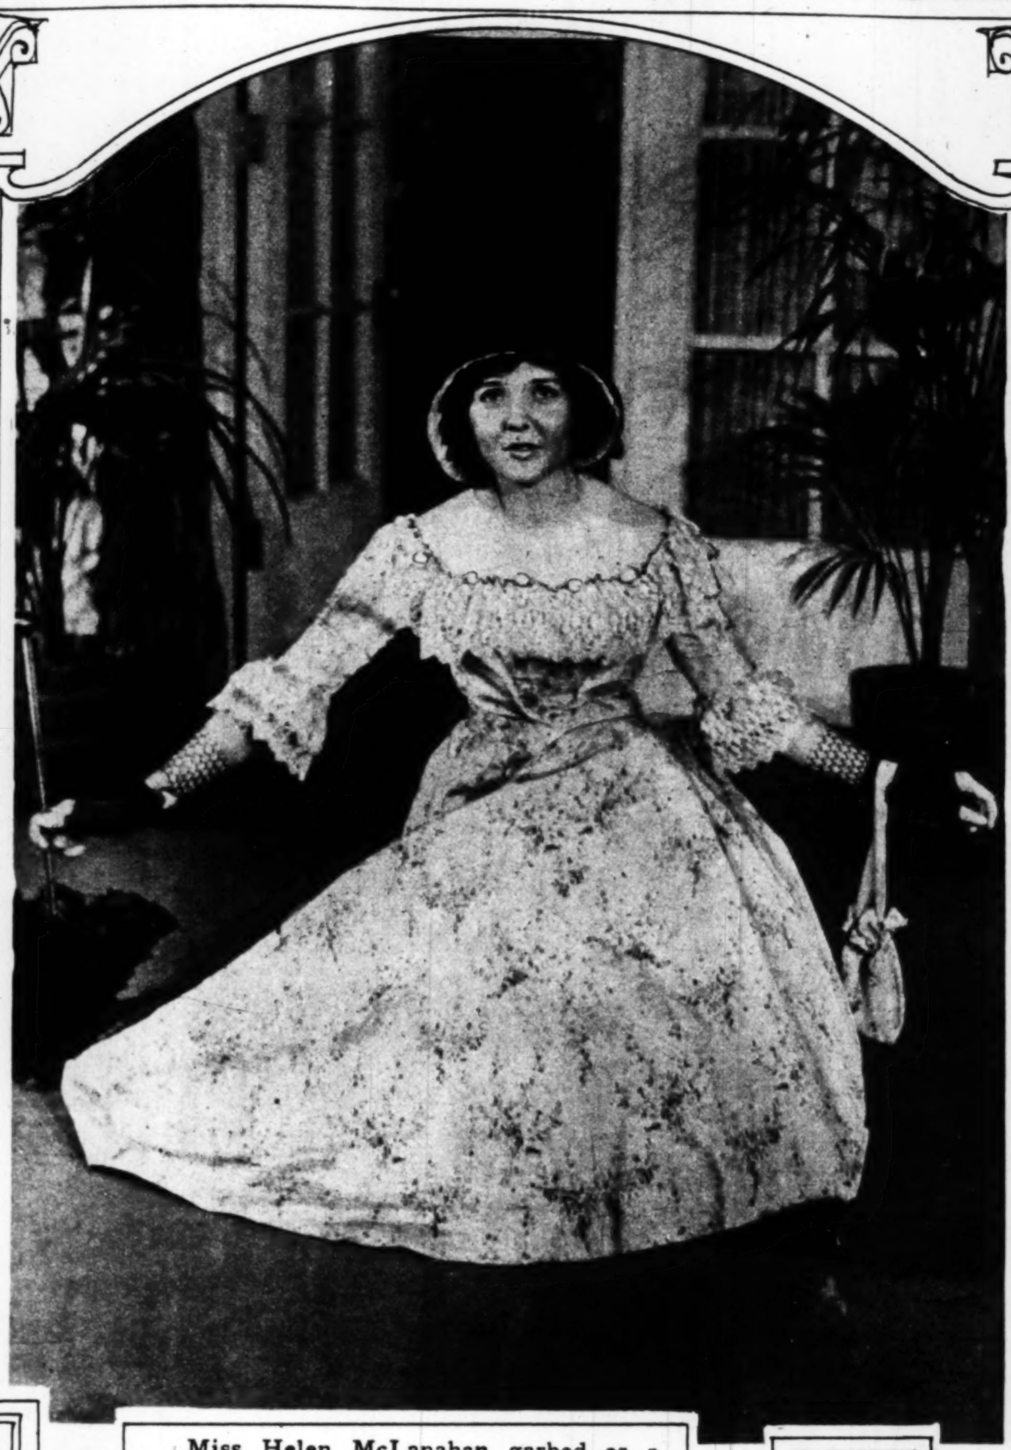
GLIMPSES OF AMERICAN FASHIONS THROUGH THREE CENTURIES

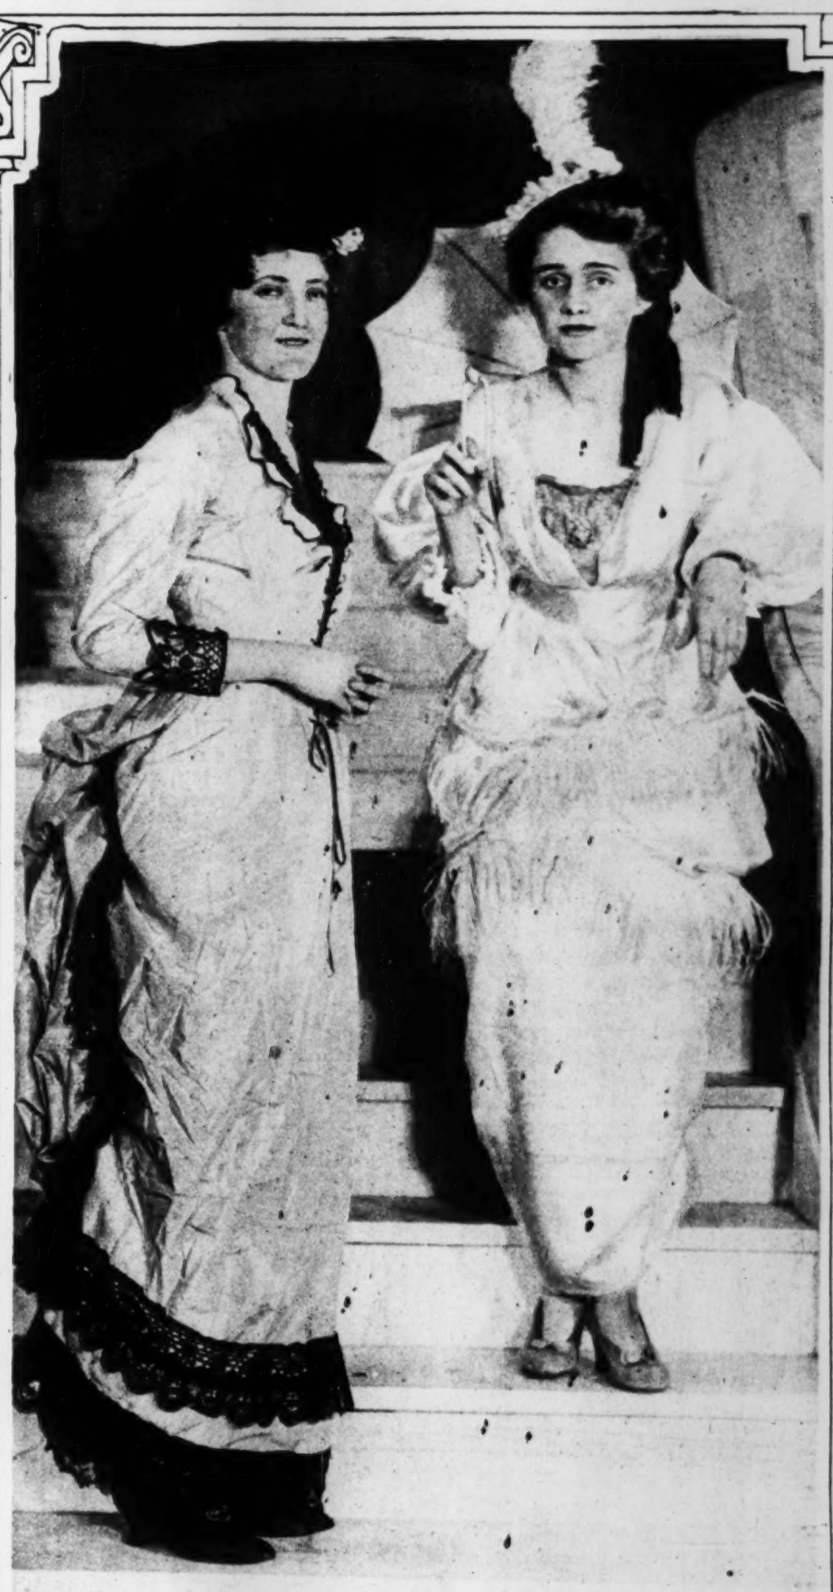


Back in 1840 the debs appeared like this. Posed by Miss Mona Blodgett and Miss Celeste Crosby.

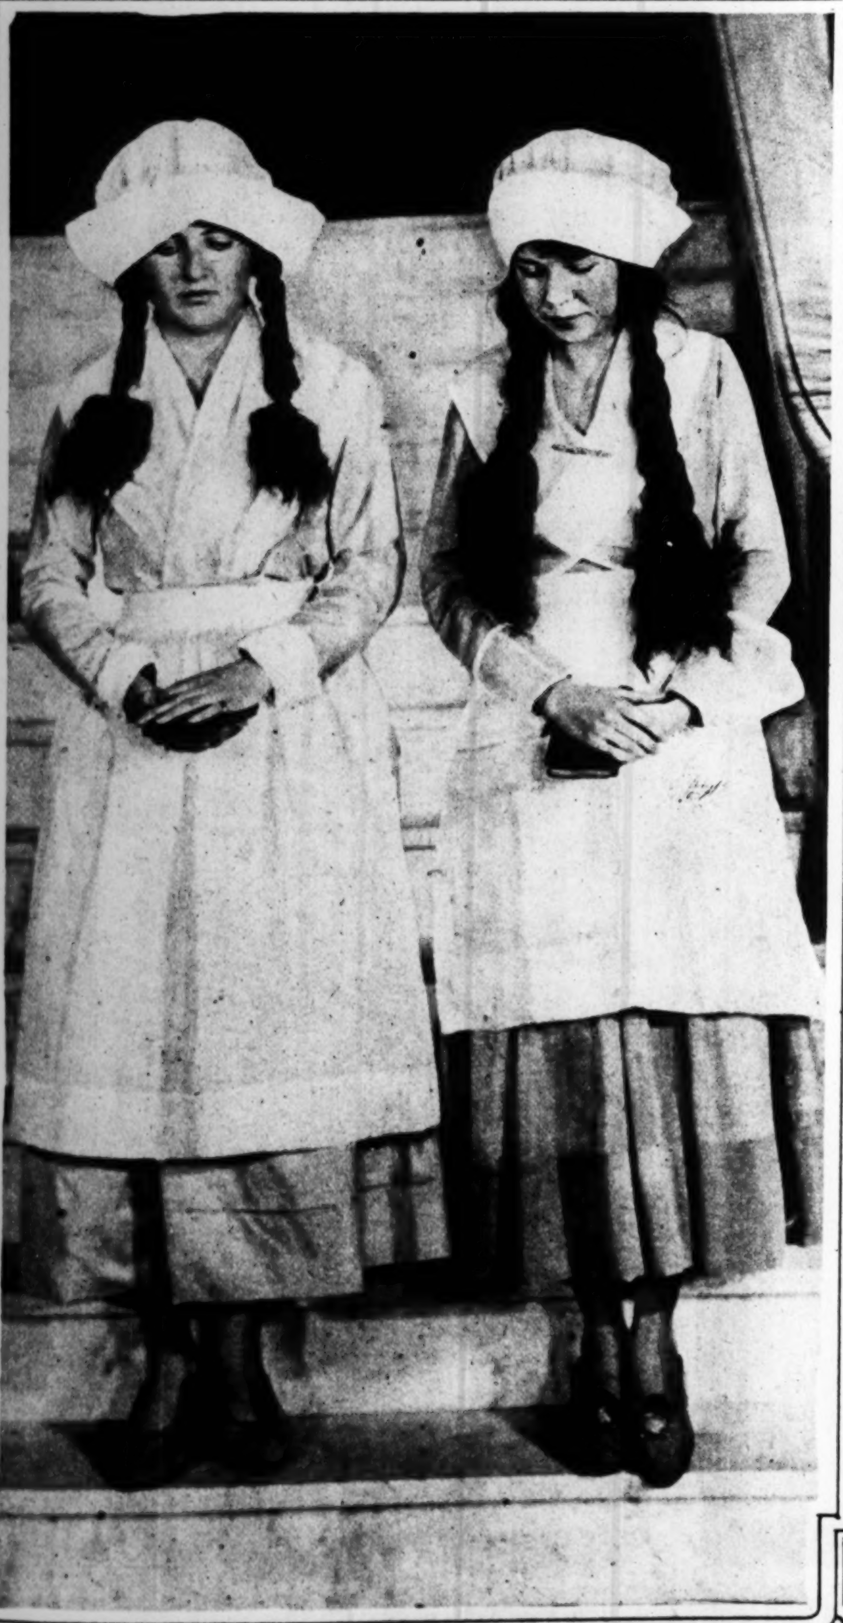


Miss Helen McLanahan garbed as a fashionable girl of 1860.

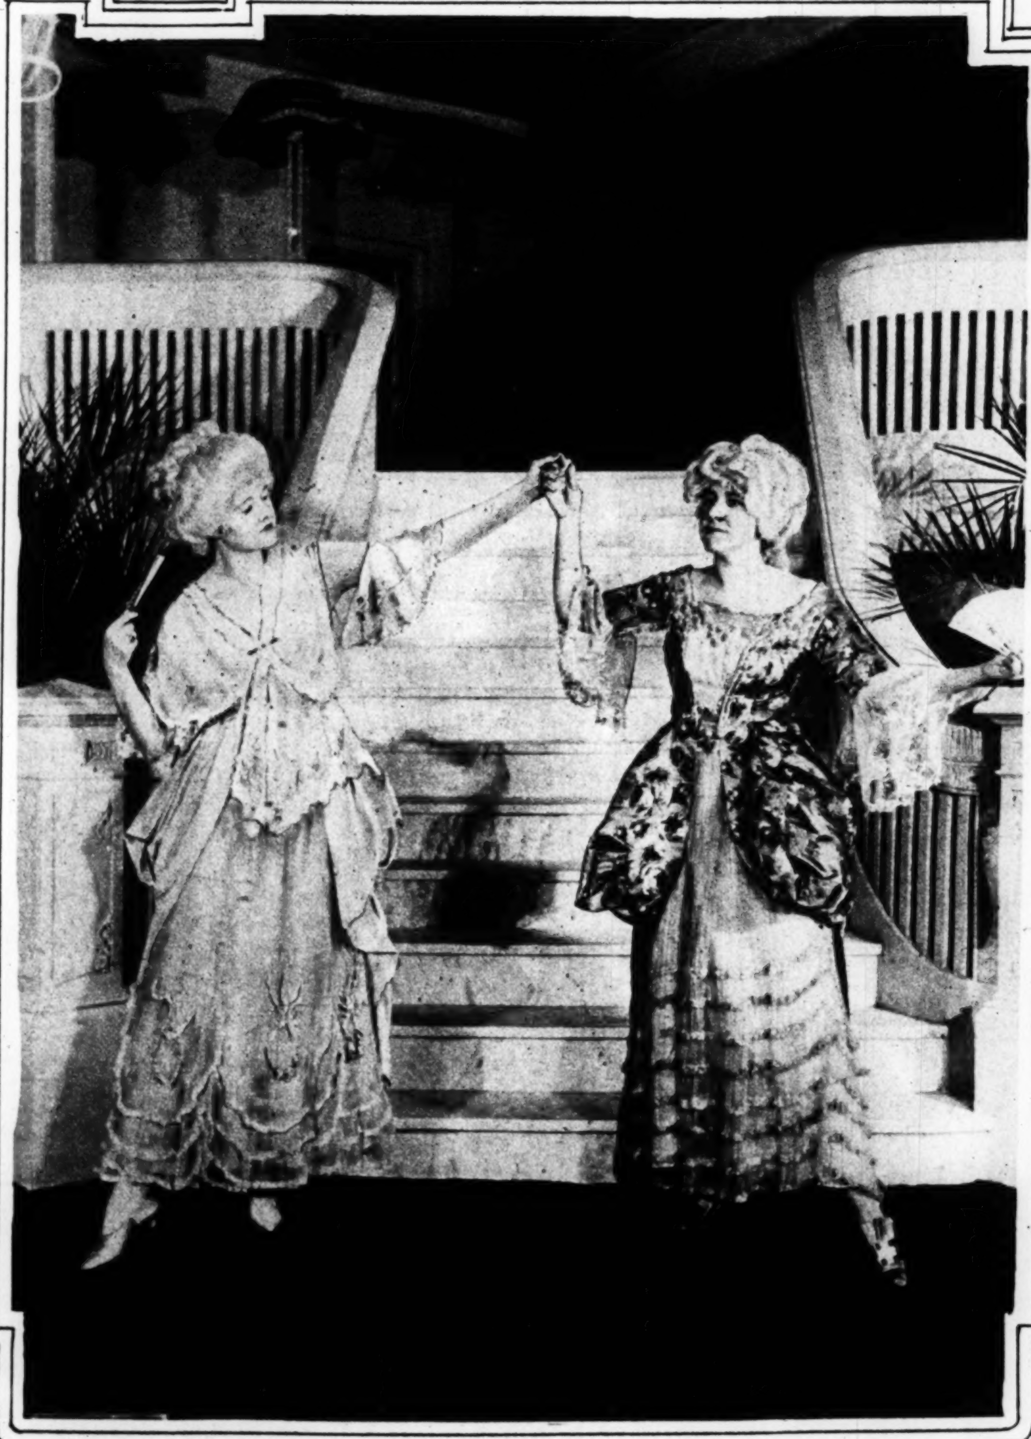
Belles of Washington, D. C., gowned in the costumes of different periods from the landing of the Pilgrims, in 1620, down to modern times. A few of the best are shown on this page.



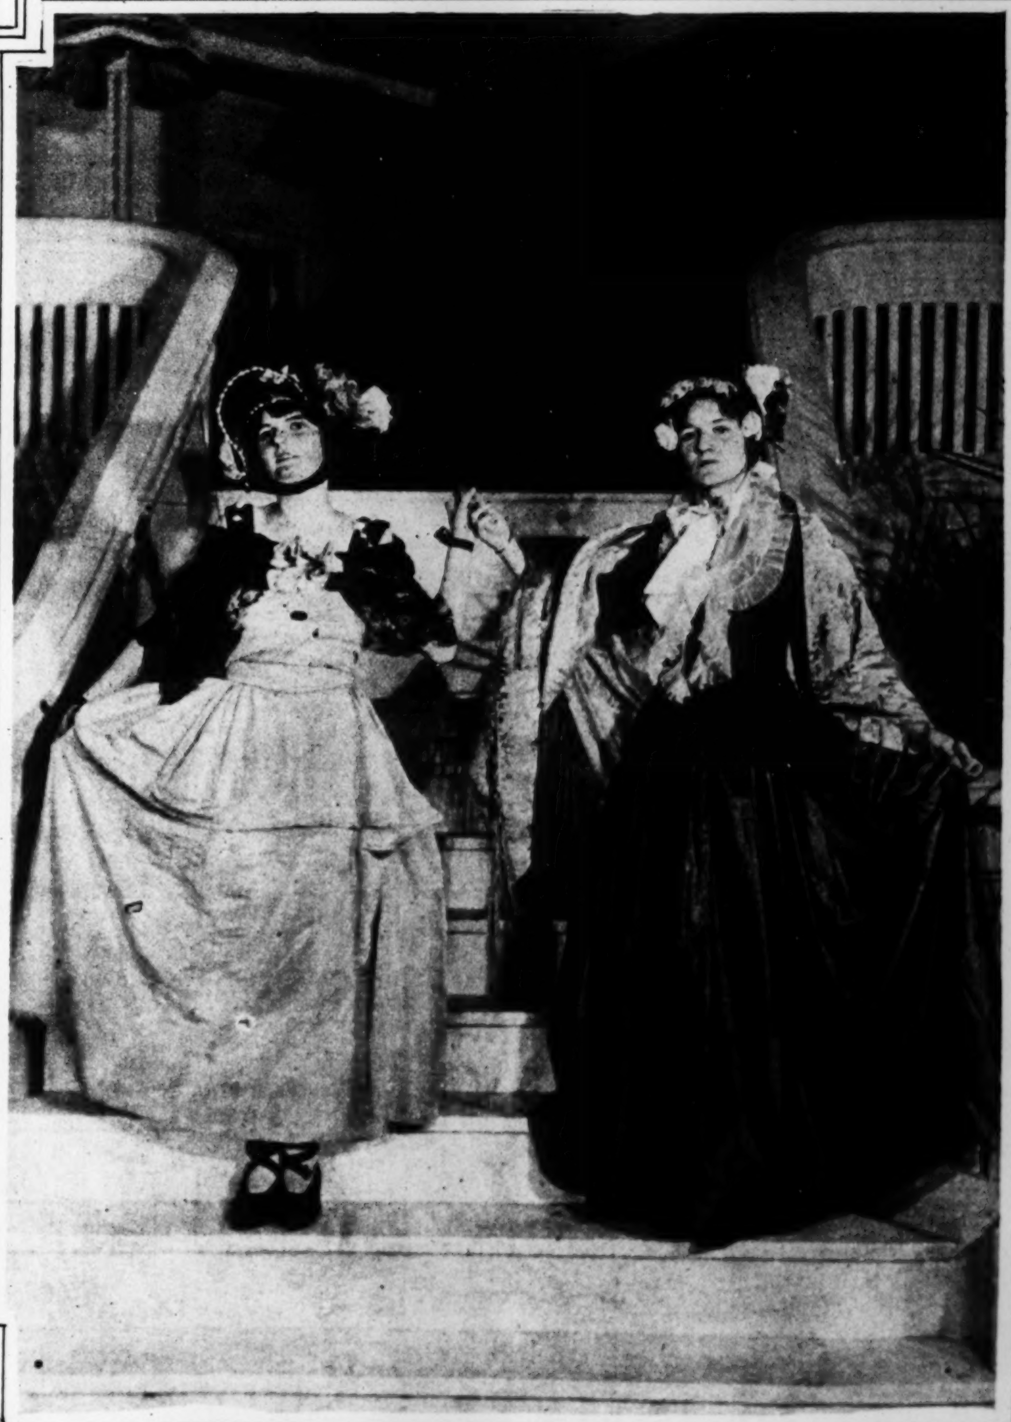
In 1870 the fashionable young women dawned on the ball room in these gowns. Worn by Miss Barrine Drake and Miss Elizabeth Grinnell.



Turning fashion's pages back two centuries. The demure Colonial misses of 1700, represented by Miss Peggy Martin and Miss Betty Grove.



The Colonial Dames, in their very most stylish frocks. Worn by Miss Genevieve Brooks and Miss Helen Blodgett.



Some years before the Civil War the leaders of American society, when togged out in their best, appeared like this. Costumes worn by Miss Margaret Crosson and Miss Beatrice Pollock. —Photos by International

What life will mean to you

Beauty, comfort and infinite opportunities for happiness are the foundations of life at San Diego, California.

Ocean, mountains and bay, Nature's complete panorama, unite here to make an ideal setting for your permanent home. Soft breezes from the warm Pacific are fragrant the year 'round with the perfume of millions of flowers, and lawns and foliage are always green.

Four hundred miles of finely engineered boulevards lead through green upland valleys and mountain passes. Motor trips, games in the stadium, swimming, yachting, golfing, launch parties and the daily assemblages at the afternoon organ recital among flowers and birds in the great park, are only part of the enjoyment of life in this hospitable modern city of 85,000 inhabitants.

The sun shines more than 350 days in the year, and every day is an adventure in happiness at

San Diego California

Through Pullman service is operated between San Diego and Chicago over the new San Diego and Arizona railway, in connection with the Rock Island and Southern Pacific Golden State Limited. A delightful mild climate trip through Imperial Valley and magnificent scenery.

The United States government is spending more than twenty million dollars in San Diego in permanent stations for its air, land and sea forces, because official tests proved the advantages, in comfort and efficiency, of its equable climate and continuous sunshine.

Second Parisian Showing

SPRING 1920

Featuring the Blended Silhouette

OUR Second Parisian Showing for Spring, 1920, begins January twelfth at our New York showrooms. It is, without doubt, the most authentic display of Paris-inspired creations that any one American house is showing, being sent over by our own designing staff in Paris. It is as unique as it is all-inclusive, representative of the best that Paris has put forth this season, and featuring in addition much that is new and novel.

It matters little how complete you feel are the selections you have already made from our previous collections in New York—if you seek to keep abreast of Paris and ahead of the community in which you serve, you cannot afford to miss this Second Parisian Showing.

$100 Minus Lumber Waste $82

Save the Waste

$100 Minus Labor Waste $70

SAVE THE WASTE ~~AND~~ REDUCE THE COST—The Aladdin System scientifically prepares the materials and conserves the labor. You can save 18% on the cost of the lumber and 30% on the cost of the labor.

Certified records of thousands of Aladdin Homebuilders in every state prove these statements. You can prove these statements for yourself, for there is an Aladdin Home near you wherever you live.

The pictures at the right tell the story of scientific preparation and handling of materials and the efficient conservation and direction of the labor.

Fourteen years success of the Aladdin System of construction have firmly established its many advantages. The lumber that's wasted costs just as much as the lumber that's used. The only possible way to reduce the present high prices of lumber and labor is to save the usual waste. The Aladdin System prepares all the lumber in our mills ready to be nailed in place. Waste of lumber is reduced to less than 2%. Cost of labor is reduced 30%. One man will do in six days, with Aladdin materials, what it requires ten days to accomplish without Aladdin's System. The book, "Aladdin Homes," sent free to prospective builders, explains this completely and thoroughly.

Four Mills—Four Offices

Shipments of Aladdin Readi-cut Homes will now be made from the four greatest timber producing sections in the United States. From the Atlantic to the Pacific—from Canada to the Gulf—Aladdin can serve you wherever you live. Aladdin houses are manufactured and shipped direct from the Aladdin Company's own mills in Michigan, Mississippi, North Carolina and Oregon. Wherever you live, Aladdin houses come to you in a straight line from the nearest timber region.

Aladdin's National Homebuilding Service means shorter routes, quicker delivery and lower freight rates for builders in every part of the United States. Three days to a week are saved in shipments reaching destination.

Complete Sales and Business Offices are maintained in connection with each mill. Fully twenty-four hours' time is saved in your mail reaching our offices.

Bungalows, Dwellings, Garages—Send for 100-page Book

Beautiful Aladdin Homes shown in the Aladdin 100-page book have a charm for everyone desiring a home. Bungalows of 4 rooms to 10 and 12 rooms, in shingled walls, heavy siding or stucco, are well represented in this book. Dwellings of one and two stories, Colonial types and cottages to suit the desires of every builder. Many illustrations in actual colors. Exterior and Interior illustrations made direct from actual photographs of each Aladdin Home as it is now built and occupied in many parts of the country portray the most popular designs of home today. There is an important message for every homebuilder in this book. It points the way to a better home at reduced costs. It helps you to avoid present high building prices. Send for a copy today.

Dollar-a-Knot Quality

Aladdin's Dollar-a-Knot Guaranty Proof of High Quality. Knotless Lumber, the purest and clearest that ever came out of the forests, is the kind that Aladdin houses are made of. This is evidenced by our famous Dollar-a-Knot guaranty, which has now been in effect for over four years. Better quality lumber does not grow. The highest grade paints, hardware, doors, windows, millwork, etc., are all included with every Aladdin house. The same grade, the best, is furnished for the small as for the large houses.

20 ft of Lumber From a 16-ft Board

The Aladdin System of Homebuilding has been practicing for fourteen years the principle the world has only learned during the war—the elimination of waste of lumber and labor. The Alladin Book explains this System thoroughly, shows how 20 feet of lumber is cut from a 16-foot board. The great Aladdin organization, composed of experts in every branch of homebuilding, stands ready to help you build your home at a saving. Put this group of experts to work on your problem. Send for the interesting book, "Aladdin Homes"

Aladdin Houses Cut-to-Fit

The Aladdin Book of Homes has a message for you. Amongst its pages, profusely illustrated in colors, leading home designs are represented to you. Aladdin houses are cut-to-fit as follows: Lumber, millwork, flooring, outside and inside finish, doors, windows, shingles, lath and plaster, hardware, locks, nails, paints, varnishes. The material is shipped to you in a sealed box car, complete, ready to erect. Safe arrival of the complete material in perfect condition is guaranteed.
